A message was received from the Senate by MR. FERGUSON, who informed the House that the Senate had agreed to the following joint resolution:

Whereas, the Honorable Henry Delaware Flood, Representative in Congress of the Tenth District of Virginia, departed this life on the 9th day of December, 1921; and

Whereas, the General Assembly of Virginia desires, by an enduring record, to express its estimate of his character, abilities and achievements,

Resolved by the Senate and House of Delegates of Virginia:

First: At an early age he entered public life and served with distinction and constructive power in both branches of this General Assembly, in the Constitutional Convention of 1901-2, and in the Congress of the United States for more than twenty years:

He was an active and influential member of the Debt Commission which, after years of persistent effort, completely and forever set at rest the controversy between Virginia and West Virginia, to the great advantage of Virginia and the cause of justice;

In the House of Representatives he was chairman of the Committee on Territories, and afterwards chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs;

As chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs he was burdened during the great war with duties and labors the most delicate, important and exacting. He stood at the right hand of President Wilson, and with unhesitating courage and great resourcefulness, he met the enemies of his country and his party at the gate;

A convinced Democrat, he rendered notable service to his party. He was chairman of the National Congressional Committee. Afterwards, upon the call of his party, he became chairman of the State Democratic Committee of Virginia. He gave himself no time to recover from the exhausting labor of the war times or the hardly less exhausting labor of reconstruction;

Like the beloved and lamented Senator Martin, he sacrificed his life to his conception of duty to his country and his party. He died in the full tide of his usefulness and power, just after a great victory achieved under his leadership;

His private life was blameless. With courage and firmness he united sympathy and understanding. He was a friend to those who needed a friend, and his acts of kindness were innumerable;

Second: That the General Assembly of Virginia deplores his loss both as an honored and beloved citizen and as a public man whose life was spent in unselfish service to his country;

Third: That the sincere sympathy of the General Assembly is extended to his family in their great bereavement;

Fourth: That the Clerk of the Senate send a copy of this preamble and resolution to his bereaved family;

Fifth: That as a mark of further esteem and respect, we direct that when the two houses of the General Assembly adjourn today it will enter on both journals that they adjourned in honor of the memory of the Honorable Henry Delaware Flood of the county of Appomattox;

In which they request the concurrence of the House.

Ordered that MR. HORSLEY inform the Senate.

To the Senate and House of Delegates of Virginia:

Your undersigned conferees, upon the disagreeing votes of the two houses on House bill No. 252 to amend and re-enact sections 5, 14, 21½, 27, 32, 41, 55, 57, 63, 73 of an act to define ardent spirits, and to prohibit the manufacture, use, sale, offering for sale, transportation, keeping for sale, and giving away of ardent spirits or drugs, and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof, and adding new subsections, commonly known as the prohibition bill, beg leave to report as follows:

(1) We recommend that Senate amendment to section 21½, page 11, line 118, inserting the word "net" be not agreed to, but that the word "net" be stricken out, and the word "gross" inserted in lieu thereof, and in the same line that the word "fifty" be stricken out, and that the word "one hundred" be inserted in lieu thereof.

(2) We recommend that Senate amendment to section 21½, on page 12, line 7, inserting the words "of greater capacity than two gallons" be not agreed to, and that said words be stricken out.

(3) We recommend that Senate amendment to section 32, page

19, striking out lines 32 to 46, inclusive, be not agreed to, but that said lines be reinserted in the bill with the change in lines 36 and 43 of the words "thirty-seven thousand five hundred" to "thirty-five thousand," and in line 45 changing "seventy-five" to "seventy."

(4) We recommend that Senate amendment 35½ be made to read section 35½, and that in said section on page 9 of the amendment after the word "spirits" strike out the phrase "knowing it to contain such poisonous substance."

(5) We recommend that Senate amendment to section 41, page 23, line 13, striking out the words "or female" be not agreed to.

(6) We recommend that Senate amendment striking out all of lines 19 to 29, both inclusive, of section 63, on page 34, be not agreed to, but that in lieu thereof section 63 be made to read as follows, the lines renumbered from 1 on consecutively:

"Upon the trial of any officer charged with the enforcement of the prohibition laws of the State, for an offense against the person or property of any one, committed in the performance of his duties in the enforcement of such laws, on the affidavit of such officer, or his attorney, that in the opinion of such officer or attorney, such officer cannot obtain a fair trial in the county or city wherein such offense was alleged to have been committed, the court shall change the venue for the trial of such officer to some other county or city wherein a fair trial of the alleged offense may be had. And in case of such change of venue the witnesses of the defendant shall be paid as if they were summoned for the Commonwealth."

(7) We recommend that Senate amendments to section 57, on page 31, line 113, striking out the word "is" and in line 114 inserting after the word "vehicle" the words "is less than five gallons" be not agreed to; and in the same section 57, on page 32, after the word "herein" in line 127, striking out the balance of said line, and all of lines 127, 128, 129 and 130, be not agreed to, and that said lines be restored to the act; and that the following new paragraph be added at the end of line 130, to-wit:

"Whenever any automobile or other vehicle or boat herein mentioned is seized under the provisions of this section, the officer making such seizure shall be allowed a fee or reward of $25.00, to be taxed against the automobile or other vehicle seized and confiscated. In the event the automobile or other vehicle or boat is not finally confiscated under this section, such fee shall be $10.00, to be taxed against the confiscated vehicle or boat, or the defendant, and collected as other costs in the manner provided by law. Where two or more officers unite in capturing such automobile or other vehicle or boat said fee shall be divided among them equally."

(8) We recommend that the amendment to page 24 after line 40, inserting the following new paragraph: "It shall be unlawful for any person to purchase ardent spirits from any person, firm or corporation, if the sale of same be in violation of any of the provisions of this act, or of any of the prohibition laws of this State, and any such purchaser shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding one hundred dollars" be not agreed to.

(9) We recommend that the amendment to section 35, page 22, line 16, after the word "boat" inserting the following: "Or the personal baggage of any person wherever situated, unless such person be found in the act of violating the provisions of this law, provided that where any intoxicating liquor is found in any wagon, buggy, automobile, or any similar conveyance, it shall be lawful to examine the baggage therein contained," be not agreed to, but that said amendment be stricken out, and in lieu thereof the following amendment to said section 35, on page 22, in line 16, after the word "boat" be inserted, to-wit: "Or any hand bag, suit case or trunk on any train or passenger steamboat, or the usual and ordinary hand baggage of pedestrians, unless such person be found in the act of violating the provisions of the prohibition laws of the State, but it shall be lawful to inspect and examine any such baggage while same shall be carried or found in any boat, automobile or other vehicle herein named, except a train or passenger boat."

(10) We further recommend that all other Senate amendments to said House bill No. 252 be agreed to.

(11) Having restored a part of section 63 as section 63, and having eliminated the provision with reference to the purchasing of ardent spirits contrary to law, we recommend that so much of the amendment to the title as is contained in the following words be stricken out: "And strike out section 63, and after the words 'giving away of ardent spirits' add 'the purchasing of ardent spirits contrary to law, and to repeal section 63 of the prohibition act,'" and further amend title by adding between the sections 32 and 41 in the title, the figures "35" and sections 5½ and 5⅘ inserted where they serially belong.

REPORT

VIRGINIA

1920

---

Letter of Transmittal

To the Members of the General Assembly of Virginia:

GENTLEMEN:

Your undersigned committee for the study of tuberculosis in Virginia, appointed under a joint resolution of the General Assembly, agreed to February 25, 1921, as follows:

Whereas, pursuant to a joint resolution of the General Assembly approved February 8, 1915, a commission of five members was appointed by the Governor, charged with the duty of formulating a general and comprehensive plan for the control of tuberculosis in Virginia; and

Whereas, on the 20th day of December, 1915, the commission made its report to the Governor, who in turn submitted it to the General Assembly under date of December 30, 1915; and

Whereas, since that time it has been demonstrated elsewhere that it is possible to eradicate tuberculosis from the body-politic; and

Whereas, it is the earnest desire of the General Assembly that this beneficent result may be accomplished in this Commonwealth; therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Delegates concurring), That a joint committee of five members, two of whom shall be appointed by the President of the Senate and three by the Speaker of the House of Delegates, be, and it is hereby, constituted, whose duty it shall be to investigate the laws of other jurisdictions and to report to the next session of the General Assembly a plan for the eradication of tuberculosis from this Commonwealth, which plan shall be accomplished by the necessary bill or bills to carry the same into effect; begs leave herewith to submit its report.

I. Your committee announces with pleasure that the death rate in Virginia has declined approximately eighteen per cent since 1915, at which time the first tuberculosis commission handed in its report with various recommendations which have since been completely fulfilled. This falling death rate represents the saving of 1,516 lives in the Commonwealth.

II. Yet in 1920 more than two and one-half times as many persons died from tuberculosis alone as from seven of the most dreaded infectious diseases combined—smallpox, typhoid fever, measles, scarlet fever, diphtheria, whooping cough, and malaria.

III. The death rate from consumption of the lungs has been reduced from 164.5 per hundred thousand in 1915 to 136.5 per hundred thousand in 1919.

IV. The death rate for Virginia, however, still remains higher than the death rate for the United States Registration as a whole, the former being 111.3 per hundred thousand for consumption of the lungs in 1919, and the latter being 136.5 per hundred thousand.

V. Virginia lost approximately $195,000,000 in wages, care of sick and capital invested in individuals in the seven years from 1914 to 1920, inclusive.

VI. It is estimated that by the declining death rate and the saving of life there has been an approximate saving of $11,691,392.00 in wages, care of sick, and capital invested in human life.

VII. By the eighteen per cent reduction in her death rate, Virginia has begun to demonstrate the truth of the statement of the first commission that the loss and suffering from this scourge is preventable.

Your committee has endeavored to study the work undertaken against the plague in the five years since the report of the first commission and to tabulate certain findings in the general population, in the schools, and in the negro population. The results of this analysis are embodied in more detail in the accompanying report.

The information relating to the deaths from tuberculosis in Virginia was obtained from the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Board of Health. The tabulation of this material we owe in large measure to the courtesy of Mr. Marion Fisher, Statistician for the Industrial Commission of Virginia.

Since the work accomplished against the plague during the five-year period analyzed concerned various departments of the State, your committee sought assistance from a group of officials and citizens, who were public spirited enough to serve on the Advisory Committee listed below. To their advice your committee is deeply indebted and desires to express their cordial appreciation of their wise counsel and willing service. We also desire to express our appreciation for the services of Miss Agnes D. Randolph, director of the bureau of tuberculosis education of the State Board of Health, who served as secretary for the committee, and who undertook certain field studies for it.

In the estimates relating to the value of human lives, and the losses to the State by death, great caution has been taken to keep our figures low. In estimating human life values in Virginia we have had the courteous assistance of the Commissioner of Insurance, for which we beg to express our thanks. The wage scale was furnished by the State Department of Labor; the cost of care is estimated in part by the cost at the sanatoria, in part upon conclusions reached by intricate methods in other communities.

Our recommendations relate first to those measures which your committee feels should engage the attention of the State at once, and to carry out which we think immediate steps should be taken at this legislature; second, to a campaign which will be continued over many years before control of tuberculosis is achieved. In making the recommendations for immediate action, full regard has been given to the results obtained from measures already undertaken, and to the social and economic conditions existing in the Commonwealth at this present time.

Bills to carry out the recommendations of the committee will be submitted to the General Assembly by members of the joint committee.

Respectfully submitted,

J. SINCLAIR BROWN, Chairman.

REPORT OF TUBERCULOSIS COMMITTEE, 1920

NUMBER OF DEATHS—DEATH RATES—COMPARISONS.

The appalling fact continues true in 1920 as in 1914, that seven of the fatal infectious diseases, i. e., typhoid fever, smallpox, measles, scarlet fever, diphtheria, whooping cough and malaria combined, caused 1,219 deaths in the State of Virginia, while tuberculosis alone caused 3,286 deaths, or over two and one-half times as many.

Yet both of these figures, high as they are, and tragic as they are, bear out the boast of modern preventive medicine. Both show a saving of human life. With an increase of 150,178 in population, there is a decline of 601 deaths from the infectious diseases and 628 from tuberculosis. This means a reduction of thirty-three per cent in the seven infectious diseases combined, and sixteen per cent in tuberculosis. Such a record in a short period of seven years, should stir to grim determination to go further. Virginia need no longer accept theoretical doctrines of preventive medicine. Her demonstrations of truth, cook the meals, plow the fields, and walk the streets in the shape of living men and women.

The commission in 1915 made it clear that the Vital Statistics Bureau would, as it increased in efficiency, show a gradual increase in the tuberculosis death record. This was true, in that in 1913, 1914, 1915, the number of deaths reported increased each year, the maximum being reached in 1915 with 4,003. It is cause for encouragement that there has been an annual decline since that year, with the single exception of 1918, when the number went over the established maximum of 4,003. The effect of the influenza in that year cannot be known.

While Virginia should look with pride upon the reduction in her tuberculosis death rate, it must not be forgotten that it is far from the goal. Our Commonwealth still shows a higher death rate from tuberculosis of all forms than the registration area as a whole, the latter being 125.7 per hundred thousand persons living in 1919, while the Virginia rate was 150.2. Our rate remains higher, also, than that of several other States in which an intensive campaign has been continued over a period of years. New York in 1920 gives a death rate for consumption of the lungs of 105.6 per hundred thousand; Massachusetts, 96.7 per hundred thousand. Virginia in 1915 had a rate of 164.5 for consumption of the lungs per hundred thousand persons living, and 127.5 in 1920.

REGIONAL DISTRIBUTION

Every county, village, and city shares in the tuberculosis burden carried by Virginia. Mountain region and tidewater; north, east, south and west, singly and together must pay the cost in lives, in money, in pain, in sickness, and in death.

It has been said that tuberculosis is a local problem, in that control must come through the education and care of the individual consumptive; the elevation of standards of living in individual homes; the lessening of economic pressure upon the individual. County records prove that in this sense every county in Virginia has its own tuberculosis problem; but the sum total of the problems of all the counties of Virginia is the problem of the State.

The declining death rate thus reduces the burden of each division of the Commonwealth, and the great burden of the Commonwealth as a whole.

RACE

It remains true that the high death rate in the negro race is the compelling factor in Virginia's tuberculosis problem. The white rate is a little below that of the registration area as a whole. The negro death rate is, also, below that of the registration area. The death rate from tuberculosis for the entire population is, however, higher than that for the United States. It is apparent that this is due to the large percentage of negro population with its high death rate.

The interrelation of the races is such in Virginia that a high death rate in either race reacts unfavorably upon the other. A large percentage of the negro race is still engaged in some form of domestic service. The intimate contact with white homes necessitated by this service makes the incidence among them of a communicable disease a danger, particularly to the children whom they serve as nurses, cooks, laundresses, etc.

The State as a unit will continue to sustain an excessive loss from tuberculosis, so long as the incidence of the disease and the death rate remain excessive in any large division of its population.

AGE

The tuberculosis age tables for Virginia do not show any marked variations from those of other States. The percentage of deaths in the period from 20-29 is rather high. An examination of the tables shows this due to the higher percentage of loss at this period in the negro race. This is probably caused by the heavy work of the negro laborer, plus his mode of life. His habit of working for long hours and of spending the night in various unwise forms of entertainment, is well known. Add to these unhygienic surroundings, and the death rate shows the result.

The Virginia tables bear out well known facts regarding the disease. The percentage of deaths is elevated in the age period from 0-5, reduced in 5-10 and reaches its maximum from 20-29, or sometimes 30-39. These two periods mark the time of greatest productivity, both in work and happiness. Many deaths could be prevented during these periods by diagnosis in preceding years and by inculcating right habits of life. The establishment of adequate medical school supervision would go far to bring about this happy result.

SEX

Maurice Fishberg in his book, "Pulmonary Tuberculosis," makes the statement that "the total mortality is less among females than males, a fact which is observed in all countries where vital statistics are available. In England and Wales the mortality from phthisis in 1916 was: Among the total population 12.59 per ten thousand; among males, 16.35, and among females, 9.16."

On the contrary, the number of women dying of tuberculosis in Virginia was larger than the men in 1914, 1915 and 1920, the years for which the committee tabulated the statistics. In 1914 the excess of white women was 130, and colored 145; in 1915 there was an excess of 129 white women and 220 colored, and in 1920, an excess of 198 white women and 216 colored. In 1920 the rate for tuberculosis of all forms was 12.2 per ten thousand in the male and 16.1 per ten thousand of females living. The difference in white rural deaths in favor of the males was 122 out of a total difference between the sexes of 129 in 1915, and 159 out of 198, in 1920. The excess of colored women over men in 1915 was 148 in the rural population out of the total excess of 220, and 112 out of the total of 216 in 1920. As elsewhere the greatest loss among women is from the age of fifteen to thirty-five. This period includes the time of the establishment of sex function and of childbearing. The deaths after thirty-five are not more marked in Virginia among males than females. They are elsewhere.

The difference in favor of females in the registration area as a whole is continuous throughout the period from 1913 to 1919, inclusive. The greatest difference is shown in 1914, in which year the female deaths were 14,545 below the male; the lowest numerical difference occurs in 1919, in which it was 8,649 in favor of females in the registration area. This seems to bear out for the United States, Fishberg's statement that "during the World War there has been noted an increase in the tuberculosis rates in females much more intense than that of the males."

This departure from the usual findings in tuberculosis is worthy of further study. The white female rate is probably due to the greater hardship of farm life, since the burden of the excess falls on the rural districts. The colored rate may be due to hard work, poverty, dissipation, the incidence of the disease in the race, a score of causes.

Fishberg gives some figures which indicate that after the entrance of women into industry the female tuberculosis death rate has shown a tendency to rise. Certainly Virginia's old social order was particularly kind to women, shielding them from much of the strain of competition and usually assuring them sufficient domestic service. The rapid increase in the number of wage-earning women in the past two decades may account for the even rate among males and females in the cities.

Without detailed data over a more extended period and for other States than Virginia, deductions are unsafe. The fact of this deviation from other communities is obviously of importance to the Commonwealth and should be studied.

OCCUPATION

The picture presented by the deaths from tuberculosis analyzed by occupation, does not differ in 1915 and 1920 from that of 1914. The largest number of deaths occur among farmers, laborers, domestics and housewives. These four classes probably represent the majority of the population. Rates cannot be computed, since the total number of persons in each occupation is not known.

Very little tuberculosis work has been done among the industrial groups. No estimate can be made, therefore, of the effect of the incidence of tuberculosis upon the industrial life of the State.

COST

The money loss from tuberculosis is enormous. It represents approximately $200,000,000 during an eight-year period.

Your committee has been impressed, however, from another financial angle, the possible return in money value from State money invested in a tuberculosis campaign.

The State expenditure in the fight against tuberculosis has been $1,478,-091.73 in an eight-year period. At a conservative estimate the value of the lives saved during this eight years reaches approximately to the sum of $11,691,392.

Again, the total cost of Catawba Sanatorium has been $379,000 and its maintenance, $756,548; a total investment of $1,135,548. It has treated 4,545 patients. The investment per patient in construction, therefore, is $70, and in maintenance, $166. The construction cost per patient will naturally diminish from year to year as the number treated increases.

The wage earnings reported by ex-patients of Catawba Sanatorium in answer to an annual letter from the resident physician, has totaled $2,517,-690.28, or over twice the total investment made by the State. The other State sanatoria are too new to be able to furnish such data, but Piedmont with eighty beds had $15,000 wage earnings reported last year by ex-patients.

To these figures may be added the gain made in human happiness by the saving of illness and bereavement. With such a return in human happiness and in money, surely the Commonwealth is justified in spending to the limit of its ability in order to remove from its citizens the constant drain caused by the presence of this disease.

AMOUNT OF SICKNESS (MORBIDITY)

The examination of approximately 3,208,446 men by the United States War Department, since the report of the commission of 1915, has established definite figures by which to estimate the incidence of tuberculosis disease. The findings of an intensive study of an average American community bear out the reports of the army.

In the 3,208,446 men selected as most fit to bear the strain of trench fighting, 50,000 were rejected as tuberculous either by draft boards or on their first examination in camp. Two per cent of the total number examined were found to have some tuberculous lesion. Careful examinations of one-third of the total population of a normal American town demonstrate like conditions. It would be too much to hope that Virginia would show a smaller disease group. Clinic results, indeed, elaborated elsewhere in this report, would indicate that a two per cent infection is the minimum we could hope to find.

With a population of 2,309,187, Virginia has, therefore, approximately 23,010 active cases of tuberculosis. In addition to this large number of active cases, there are approximately 20,000 of arrested disease.

Your committee is convinced that to control the disease this large group must be educated to care for themselves and to protect others. In no other way can the incidence of tuberculous sickness be reduced than by the education of these two groups.

It is worthy of profound consideration that in an eight-year period, only 27,731 cases of tuberculosis have been reported by rural physicians to the State Board of Health. The opinion of the State Clinician is that of the cases found by clinic work in the various counties, only from one to five per cent were under the care of doctors.

The knowledge of the facts with regard to tuberculosis is one of the scientific achievements of our own age. False doctrines still retain their hold over the average citizen. Tuberculosis was considered incurable, and a diagnosis of positive disease was held to be a death warrant. Consumptives did not seek physicians until the period of possible cure was long past. This, in part, remains true today.

Your committee regards it as essential that a widespread educational campaign, both by placards, circulars, lectures, etc., and by field clinics for purpose of practical demonstration, is essential to success in the fight against tuberculosis.

The consumptive must be taught to seek advice early in the disease. Every possible method must be utilized to increase the number of patients under the regular supervision of physicians. Virginia can never hope to wage a successful war against consumption until her registration of patients more nearly represents actual conditions.

RESULTS IN THE LIFE OF THE STATE

It is almost impossible to estimate the result of tuberculosis upon the fabric of society. If the giant woe could be lifted today from our midst, the effect of the miracle would be a revelation of our present suffering.

Your committee would commend to your attention two major manifestations of its results, the human suffering, and the money loss.

At least 23,000 of our people have active tuberculosis and are actually sick with it today, although, possibly, themselves ignorant of the cause of their illness. This means illness and the thought of death in thousands of our homes. In family histories taken at clinics, 1,889 persons out of 5,301 cases reported some case of tuberculosis in the family. The home contact was given as mother or father in thirty-three per cent of the positive cases, and brother or sister in twenty per cent. These facts alone create a picture of the suffering and heartbreak woven into the life of our Commonwealth through the presence of this disease.

The money loss from tuberculosis is almost unbelievable. The capital value of human life is to most of us an abstract theory. Sums quoted on such values do not impress us as actual money. The daily wage, however, is a concrete, human necessity, the value of which is apparent to everyone. The wage loss from deaths from consumption over a five-year period reaches the vast sum of approximately $33,884,477. Who can estimate the cost to our people of such a reduction in family budgets? Its effects are written in terms of poverty and need in the lives of women and little children.

PRESENT PREVENTIVE MACHINE

It is in a spirit of congratulation that your committee notes the increase in the capacity of the State sanatoria. In 1915 the State had one sanatorium with 170 beds and a waiting list of over 250. Patients often died while awaiting admission. The State now has three sanatoria. While the State Board of Health reports frequent urgent appeals for admission, sometimes after a delay of from four to six weeks, nevertheless, the waiting lists now run from sixty to seventy-five at each sanatorium, an average waiting time of four weeks.

Catawba Sanatorium now has 300 beds. It has continued its excellent work and has hosts of friends throughout the State. Its 1,800 ex-patients form a band of educators and missionaries. With the addition of an adequate infirmary, its usefulness has been much extended. It has developed appreciably since 1915. Its immediate needs are workshops for patients and additional service buildings.

Piedmont Sanatorium at Burkeville, was opened in 1918. It is exclusively for colored patients and has a capacity of one hundred beds. This institution has been a credit to the State, and has attracted to itself widespread interest and favorable comment. Its results have been much beyond expectations. It is doing pioneer work in the sanatoria treatment of the negro, and is furnishing evidence which will materially aid in the work against the disease in this race. Your commission wishes particularly to emphasize the value of this institution, in the campaign against consumption in the Commonwealth.

Blue Ridge Sanatorium, at Charlottesville, was opened in 1920. It is for white patients and now has a capacity of 125 beds, with an infirmary of sixty-five beds already under construction. The location of this institution has added to its value, since from its establishment it has been utilized by the University of Virginia for the clinical teaching of tuberculosis in the medical school.

Provisions for tuberculous patients are made at the State hospitals for the insane and at The Penitentiary.

The State Board of Health, in addition to the three sanatoria, has a bureau of tuberculosis education which carries on a continuous educational propaganda by publications and field clinics.

The Virginia Tuberculosis Association, a volunteer organization, has also carried on educational propaganda. It has co-operated with the State Board of Health and has, until this year conducted the field work for the board. Since the establishment of the bureau of tuberculosis education the necessity for this has ended, and the association has continued an active educational campaign.

Your committee regrets to report that local development has not kept pace with the State work, Richmond and Danville remain the only cities with hospitals. Danville this spring held the best organized drive for funds ever made in the State, and secured $45,000 for a new Tilltop with forty beds. This is the largest sum ever donated by a Virginia community for the tuberculosis campaign, and is especially noteworthy for that reason. Richmond has added no beds for the tuberculous, but has organized a bureau of tuberculosis which is rapidly increasing the number of cases under supervision.

Norfolk continues its excellent dispensary work.

Lynchburg has an effective tuberculosis department in its city board; under the charge of a special tuberculosis nurse, the home care and supervision has been well developed.

Newport News has also developed special tuberculosis work. In one or two other cities provisions are made at city homes or farms.

The development in county public health machinery during the past five years has been gratifying. The large areas without any health activity which existed in 1915, and were outlined by the commission, have been much reduced in extent. The final elimination of these areas seems the only possible solution of the county problem. Where a public health nurse or other health machinery is established, tuberculosis work must develop. As the number of counties in which health work is developed increases, the area in which some effort is made toward the control of tuberculosis will likewise increase. When the time comes that every county in Virginia has some form of public health organization, that date will mark the beginning of the possibility of an adequate campaign against this scourge.

RECOMMENDATIONS

The resolution authorizing the appointment of your committee reads, in part, as follows:

"Whereas, it has been demonstrated elsewhere that it is possible to eradicate tuberculosis from the body politic; and

Whereas, it is the earnest desire of the General Assembly that this beneficial result may be accomplished in this Commonwealth; therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Delegates concurring), That a joint committee of five members is hereby constituted, whose duty it shall be to investigate the laws of other jurisdictions and to report to the next session of the General Assembly a plan for the eradication of tuberculosis from this Commonwealth, which plan shall be accompanied by the necessary bill or bills to carry the same into effect."

As a result of the investigation of your committee, it would say with earnest emphasis, that tuberculosis may be eradicated just as more dreaded diseases have been eradicated, or nearly so. To accomplish this, intelligent, persistent effort and much money will be required, but such a consummation deserves and will justify all the effort, all the time, and all the money that may be necessary to effect it.

Your committee is further convinced that successful effort lies in the direction of education rather than in therapeutics. Therefore, every educational process at command should be brought to bear upon a subject so rich in promise of benefit to the human race and to the economic life of the State.

One chief value of sanatoria is in their being foci of intensive education since every patient discharged from them becomes a competent and an enthusiastic worker for the cause. Hence, the sanatoria should be extended and increased in capacity and, at the same time, community work already inaugurated to a limited extent should be energetically carried forward.

It is the decision of your committee that a campaign for eradication must of necessity be progressive, with certain essential next steps and a gradual evolution into a completed program. With this decision in mind, we submit herewith certain recommendations which in our judgment are urgently necessary and also an outline for a more fully developed campaign. Your committee desires to make it clear that the recommendations herewith submitted are in its judgment the minimum for any safe development in the campaign against the disease. It is the belief of your committee that the Commonwealth would be justified in making immediately larger appropriations for this cause; and that such expenditure would bring immeasurable returns in the increased welfare of our people.

RECOMMENDATION I

The findings in the seven thousand chest examinations held by the State Board of Health in affiliation with the Virginia Tuberculosis Association has made two facts conspicuously apparent: The belief of large numbers of our people in the old, false doctrines regarding tuberculosis, and the large number of our tuberculous patients who are not under the care of physicians. The campaign already conducted has accomplished much good, as is evidenced by the increased number of patients applying for admission to the sanatoria; the increased demand for clinics throughout the State; and the encouraging decline in the death rate.

Your committee would respectfully urge, therefore, a decided increase in the extent of this educational campaign. For this purpose we would recommend the appropriation of $15,000 for the year 1922-1923 and $20,000 for 1923-1924 for the conduct of an intensified educational propaganda, through lectures, placards, pamphlets and other regular publications in factories, schools, churches, etc., and, in addition, the employment of doctors and nurses for the conduct of chest examinations in the counties of the State.

RECOMMENDATION II

It was not necessary for your committee to trust wholly to statistics for proof of the presence of tuberculous children in our State. Groups of ten and twenty children at our State sanatoria were demonstrations even more moving than the recorded deaths, high as these are.

The State is without special pavilions for children. The sanatoria have made every effort to refuse children, since they must be admitted to adult pavilions. In spite of this effort, however, a group of twenty children at Blue Ridge and ten at Catawba were evidence of the futility of any effort to deny the existing need.

Your committee respectfully urges the recognition of this need and the establishment of a children's pavilion at each of the State sanatoria, white and colored. Our children are our greatest asset. In them is vested the future of our State. Their protection and care is the insurance of a stalwart citizen body.

Your committee has recommended the erection of pavilions for children at each of the sanatoria for obvious reasons. The citizen who will send his child a half day or day's journey from him, will hesitate to send him further even in the guardianship of the State. A central pavilion would we believe, work a hardship upon many citizens.

We recommend, therefore, the appropriation of $25,000 each for Catawba and Blue Ridge, and $20,000 for Piedmont for the erection of a pavilion for children.

RECOMMENDATION III

In the belief of your committee no part of the tuberculosis campaign is more important to Virginia than that among the negro race. No single group has more intimate contact in our homes than the negro domestics, as cooks, as maids, as nurses. Although lowered, our negro rate remains high. As a consequence, our State rate is high.

In the opinion of your committee, Piedmont is doing an excellent work and is a valuable part of our tuberculosis machinery. It needs, however, to be much enlarged. For sometime it had a waiting list which was so long as to discourage application for admission on the part of both doctors and patients. Your committee would, therefore, recommend the appropriation of $30,000 for the addition of a pavilion of forty beds at Piedmont.

RECOMMENDATION IV

The earnings reported by Catawba ex-patients in 1920 reaches the sum of $600,000. In many cases the arrested case of tuberculosis must seek a new occupation. The $600,000 was earned by ex-patients in spite of this handicap.

It is recognized that the sanatorium to reach the highest usefulness must return its patients fit for gainful occupation. Many institutions have established workshops and during the ambulant months of the cure make a consistent effort to readjust the patient to wage-earning capacity. This, in the belief of your committee, is an economically sound procedure. We recommend, therefore, the appropriation of $13,500 for the establishment of a workshop and recreation hall at Catawba Sanatorium.

RECOMMENDATION V

It is apparent from the fact that at least seventy-five per cent of the tuberculous infection occurs in childhood that a main point of attack must be in the schools. Every child should leave our school system with accurate knowledge of the fundamental facts regarding tuberculosis and the program necessary for its eradication. No better means can be found to enlist the interest of the body of our citizenship.

Your committee recommends the incorporation of such teaching in the school curriculum in the time already allotted to the teaching of hygiene. It further recommends that a practical demonstration be carried on in co-operation with the State Board of Health and the State Board of Education to determine the most economic and efficient method which Virginia must adopt to combat the amount of dormant tuberculous infection and malnutrition, or impaired body resistance, which now exists among our school children. For this purpose it recommends the appropriation of $5,000 annually for a two-year period.

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR THE GENERAL PLAN OF CAMPAIGN

In elaborating a campaign against tuberculosis to be continued over five or ten years it is impossible within reasonable space to touch upon all of the ramifications of the work. Your committee has, therefore, confined itself to the development of hospitalization, the increase of the numbers under supervision, and the general conduct of certain phases of the preventive and educational propaganda.

INCREASE IN HOSPITAL BEDS

Experience elsewhere has demonstrated that to meet the needs of a community, a minimum of one bed for each annual death from tuberculosis must be provided. This would mean for Virginia approximately 3,000 beds, which with a reduced death rate might be brought down to 2,500.

Virginia actually has approximately 800 beds. The State, therefore, needs 1,700 additional beds in order to provide adequately for consumptives.

In the opinion of your committee a definite continuous increase is essential to meet the demand as educational propaganda becomes more effective.

Your committee would, therefore, recommend that the State institutions for tuberculosis be enlarged steadily each year; the increase to be at the rate of not less than fifty beds each calendar year, and not to exceed the demand as indicated by the waiting lists at sanatoria. Elsewhere in the report, the committee has recommended the number of beds which it considers essential for the State to build during the next legislative period.

SUPERVISION OF CASES

With the large number of cases ill in homes with the disease, increase in public health nursing for the purpose of home visiting and instruction would seem a fundamental need. Your committee has noted with pleasure the development in this phase of work. It desires, however, to emphasize its sense of the importance of further enlargement. Every possible agency should be utilized to increase the number of county nurses. The amount of work in the various fields of public health nursing, schools, baby clinics, tuberculosis, industrial, instructive bedside visiting, etc., makes it imperative that Virginia should as rapidly as possible place nurses in the hundred counties of the State and continually increase the number of nurses in each county.

EDUCATIONAL PROPAGANDA

Your committee has considered various educational methods. It is of the opinion that a continuous educational propaganda by pamphlets, placard, poster, lectures, and continuous publications should be conducted. It should be made scientific and attractive. The State Board of Health has always carried on such propaganda. Your committee desires to express its appreciation of the value of the past service and to recommend its enlargement in the special field of tuberculosis.

The field clinics as conducted by the State and volunteer tuberculosis association have also been valuable. The committee has elsewhere elaborated its opinion of their fundamental place in the campaign and recommended their development. It recurs to them here only to reiterate that in its judgment a successful campaign in Virginia against tuberculosis must, during the next few years, include enlarged facilities in this field.

SCHOOLS

The State Board of Health already conducts a successful health work throughout the school system. This is carried on under the direction of the Bureau of Child Welfare and is directed largely to physical inspection and correction. Ample evidence has come to the committee to confirm it in the belief that the tuberculosis campaign must be carried into the schools. The system of medical inspection and correction inaugurated in other sections of the country, and begun in Richmond and Norfolk, has demonstrated its value. The West law already gives authority for medical inspection in the counties.

Your committee is convinced that development in this direction is the essential next step in the educational propaganda. A medical inspection in one or more counties, with adequate correctional work, would give sufficient evidence upon which to found a successful extension of this phase of the campaign. Such work would inevitably lead to activities of a non-medical nature which have, however, a direct bearing upon tuberculosis control, notably, playing and sleeping out of doors, adequate ventilation in schools and houses, proper habits regarding food and rest, etc.

INDUSTRY

No adequate tuberculosis work has as yet been undertaken in the Virginia industries. A few chest examinations have been made in one or two cities; one or two educational campaigns have been conducted. Beyond this, very little has been accomplished.

The groups found in our factories are potent influences in our State life. The effect of their active co-operation and whole-hearted support in the tuberculosis campaign would reach to hundreds of thousands of homes. A constant educational propaganda should be employed to enlist their sympathetic assistance.

The effect of tuberculosis in lowering industrial efficiency is incalculable. Education of individuals through annual examinations and regular lectures would do much to reduce this direct loss. Your committee desires to recommend prompt development of this phase of the campaign.

APPENDIX I.

NOTES ON STATISTICAL TABLES

In tabulating the death certificates for 1915 from the originals filed in the Bureau of Vital Statistics, 60 certificates classed among the deaths from tuberculosis by the United States Census Bureau were omitted.

In 1920, there is a difference of 14, owing to the delayed certificates received too late to incorporate in the report.

APPENDIX II.

How Much Tuberculosis Is in Virginia

"Multiply your annual deaths from tuberculosis by ten, and you have your living cases." This was the accepted rule for tuberculosis workers in any section of the United States, until it was recently corrected by the Framingham, Massachusetts, demonstration.

The idea of this demonstration originated with Dr. Lee K. Frankel, third vice-president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. In 1916, through Dr. Frankel, the company made an offer of $100,000 to be used by the National Tuberculosis Association over a three-year period to make an intensive health survey of an average American community. The offer was based on the fact that the company paid claims of over $4,000,000 on the lives of policyholders dying from tuberculosis in 1915, and that over sixteen per cent of the deaths in its industrial department were due to this disease. The study was undertaken "to determine whether it is possible to substantially reduce the mortality and morbidity from tuberculosis."

Framingham, Massachusetts, was selected as an average community, with varied industries, several racial groups, and a normal amount of disease. Dr. Donald B. Armstrong was appointed executive officer. At the end of the three years a committee of appraisal recommended the continuance of the work for a further five-year period on a second budget of $100,000.

The demonstration has been the most intensive health study of a community ever conducted. While it is not yet complete, it already shows a death rate from tuberculosis lowered by fifty per cent. It has furnished what Dr. Armstrong calls "yardsticks" with which to measure tuberculosis standards. It has given additional proof of certain established theories, and has corrected others.

Among the latter is the old formula for estimating cases. The "ten cases" were supposed to refer to active and arrested tuberculous disease. Dr. Armstrong's "yardstick" shows that an intensive medical survey, in homes, shops, schools, etc., found nine or ten active cases for every annual death. The total tuberculous infection found, active, and arrested, would approximate sixteen cases for each annual death.

The value of some such formula is apparent. Tuberculosis is communicable. The first essential step to its control is to find and educate the consumptive. People forget this fact. Their minds linger in the old explanation of its infectious character as heredity. The same citizens who would not tolerate carelessness regarding more acute infections, fail to grasp the significance of a uniform tuberculosis death rate. Locating foci of infection in acute infectious diseases, measles, scarlet fever, smallpox, is for the purpose of segregation. By this method the infection is promptly controlled with the isolation of the source. Locating foci of infection in tuberculosis is not for this purpose of segregation, except in isolated examples of very ignorant, far-advance consumptives. It is, rather, for the purpose of education, education of the individual to save his own life and protect the lives of others.

A trained or educated consumptive is no danger to anyone, and his life should run far on towards normal expectancy. The untrained or uneducated consumptive is a menace to everyone and his days are usually few. The education he requires is technical, concerning itself with the laws of bacteriology and hygiene, sciences regarding which the world knew little until this generation. With our grandmothers taking pride in ignorance of bodily functions it is not to be expected that the man on the street today has much knowledge of preventive medicine. Without certain rather technical facts in his possession, the consumptive is doomed.

For this reason, the locating of tuberculous infection is essential to tuberculosis control. Since Virginia has a large number of active cases with an equal number of inactive, her problem is to find how many people sick of the disease there are, and to educate them to its prevention and cure. Until they know the facts regarding the care of the sputum, the proper mode of life and association with others, the annual deaths will continue.

If they are to be educated they must first be found. It must be insisted upon that this question of the number of cases reported to the State Health Department each year is not one of academic interest. It is, rather, a "yardstick" with which to measure the efficiency of the community tuberculosis work.

Using the Framingham "yardstick" formula for Virginia, we find that with 3,286 deaths from tuberculosis in 1920 we will have 29,574 active cases, and 23,002 with some inactive tuberculous lesion. This latter group may at any time, through worry, overwork or dissipation slip into the active class. Education is as essential for them as for the active cases.

No definite facts are established regarding how many of the nine active cases should be reported each year as new cases. Certainly not the total, since tuberculosis is a disease extending over a period of years, consumptives do not often die or recover within a twelve-month. As the man on the street learns more of the early symptoms of the disease and gains faith in the cure, the number of cases reported will increase. Fear and ignorance keep many patients out of the doctor's office until the disease is far advanced. Faith and knowledge will overcome this evil, and the early case will seek diagnosis and care. Some experts claim that when education in early symptoms is spread throughout the mass of the population, a total of nine new cases for each annual death will be reported each year. This seems scarcely possible, although it is certain that at least nine cases for each annual death should be recorded in the health department as under supervision of doctors and nurses. Some States in which active tuberculosis campaigns have been continued over a period of years, average from two to four cases per death. Two new cases for each annual death would seem the minimum number which should be reported to a fairly aggressive health department. The department should be rated high when that number is passed.

In 1915, Virginia reported the largest number of deaths from tuberculosis that she has recorded in any single year. This is probably explained by the fact that accurate registration was established at that time. Since that year, the number has declined, except in 1918, in which year the flu was a factor of unknown potency. In 1920 the number of deaths reported was 3,286.

Rural Virginia has reported to the State Health Department, 14,697 deaths from 1915 to 1920, inclusive, and 18,489 new cases, or 3,792 more cases than deaths in a six-year period. It is interesting to note that in 1915, a year of much publicity on the part of the Vital Statistics Department, rural Virginia reported 2,742 deaths and 5,519 cases; very close to two cases for each death. In 1920, on the contrary, the same counties reported 2,119 deaths and 2,128 cases, nine more cases than deaths.

It might be concluded that Virginia was not having new tuberculous disease. The study of two city health departments, however, gives a different picture. In 1915, Richmond physicians reported 329 deaths from tuberculosis and 498 cases. In 1920 the reported deaths were 269 and the new cases 614. In other words, Richmond reported about one and one-half new cases for each annual death in 1915, when her health department was seven years old; and six years later, under the improved system of reporting, about two and one-quarter new cases for each death. Lynchburg, while showing fewer new cases for each annual death than Richmond, records 33 deaths in 1920 and 183 cases under the supervision of city health nurses, or somewhat more than five cases for each death. The number under supervision in Lynchburg has come from 131 for 67 deaths in 1915 to 183 cases for 33 deaths in 1920. It is scarcely wise to assume that were accurate reports filed from rural Virginia different conditions would be shown.

Analysis of the county morbidity returns over an eight-year period show wide variations. One single one of the hundred counties of the State reports an average of five cases for each annual death. This is the highest average. The county with the most constant low average has reported sixty-nine fewer cases than deaths in an eight-year period. This particular county has few physicians and it is certain that the cases are not under any supervision. Eighteen counties report more cases than deaths each year; thirty-four counties more cases than deaths in all except one or two years of the eight-year period; five counties have reported fewer cases than deaths each year; in thirty-one counties the number of cases per death has declined since 1915; three counties show an increase of cases reported per death in the past four years; while forty-seven show a lower average during this period.

No common factors can be found to explain the variations. Some counties in which field clinics have been held and many cases found have reported fewer cases through physicians. Some counties in which physicians are few report a high average; others very low. A county with seventy-eight fewer cases than deaths reported in the eight-year period is adjacent to an excellent tuberculosis center, while the next in line, showing sixty-nine fewer cases than deaths, is remote from any active campaign.

Two factors, however, which account in part for the incompleteness and variation are readily seen: First, lack of adequate county machinery; and, second, delayed diagnosis on the part of physicians.

The registration law reads:

"Every physician practicing in this Commonwealth who shall know or suspect that any person whom he or she is called upon to visit, or who comes to him or her for examination or treatment, is suffering from any infectious, contagious, communicable or dangerous disease shall make report in writing, on blanks to be furnished for that purpose by the State Board of Health, to the executive officer of the board of health of the county, town or city in which such person may be located, over his or her own signature, stating the name of the disease, and the name, color, sex and age of the person suffering therefrom, together with the street and number or such other sufficient designation of the house, room or other place in which said person may be located, and such other information as may be deemed necessary by said health authorities."

Without adequate county health machinery it is impossible to enforce this law in its entirety; and while blanks are sent to physicians, as the law demands, modifications have had to be made in the process. County health machinery has not grown like Jonah's gourd. The State Board of Health is to be congratulated on the fact that over fifty counties have some form of official health activity; eight with full departments; ten with sanitary inspectors; and forty-eight with nurses. In many counties, however, health officers continue to receive from nothing to $600 a year, although the health department in 1920 counted lives saved through preventive medicine by thousands. The progress has been great in fourteen years, but wide stretches of virgin opportunity lie ahead of the health departments, State, city and county.

The second factor, the inaccuracy of physicians, certainly plays a part in low registration of cases. Tuberculosis in its early stages is not easy to diagnose, simulating as it does various other diseases. A doctor is inclined to wait until a diagnosis is positive in an infectious disease before reporting it. When his diagnosis is assured, he forgets to report. Again, in the hurry and irregularities of medical practice a doctor is apt to overlook all clerical work. His intentions are excellent, his devotion to the good of his people has been inspiring, but his mind is filled with more urgent calls than that of the State Health Department; and his estimate of the value of statistics is small compared to the value of other duties in which his days are spent.

To be able to determine how large a part this plays in the small number of cases per death reported would be of vital interest. If the consumptive is under the supervision of physicians he is receiving the education necessary for his welfare.

Unfortunately, there are two pieces of evidence to refute this hypothesis. One is the ominous number of death certificates recorded in the Vital Statistics Department, which read, "Consumption. Did not have a doctor." The second is the verdict of Dr. Dean Cole, recently field clinician for the Virginia Tuberculosis Association, now director of the tuberculosis bureau of the Richmond health department. During his work with the Virginia Tuberculosis Association, Dr. Cole made some 5,500 examinations at field clinics. He states that of the positive cases of tuberculosis found in his field service only from one to five per cent were under physicians. An analysis of the findings of the field clinics held throughout the State is the most accurate index we have of existing conditions in rural Virginia.

In 1916, the legislature appropriated in the budget of the State Board of Health the sum of $5,000 annually for tuberculosis education. An affiliation was made by the board with the Virginia Tuberculosis Association, a volunteer organization already engaged in tuberculosis work, and a portion of the sum was expended in co-operative field and educational propaganda. In March of 1917 the first survey of a county was undertaken. During the succeeding four years this work has been continued.

The plan adopted was a modified form of the campaign conducted in Michigan. A county was selected in which there was a health officer who desired the experiment. The association's secretary, and the local health officer appeared before the board of supervisors and outlined the plan of the work and its probable results. The county selected had an average of fifty annual deaths from tuberculosis and the number of 500 living cases was set as the goal for the case finding.

With the consent of the board gained, the work was promptly undertaken. Copies were made of the tuberculosis death certificates over a period of five years. A field nurse was placed in the county by the association. Her first duty was to visit all physicians who had filed certificates and to secure from them any information they could give of the families of the dead, together with the names of any cases in their practices. With this co-operation from the doctors the nurse soon had a long visiting list. Her entire effort was focused upon the patients and suspects. Her work proceeded upon the theory that since tuberculosis was communicable, intimate contact in the home would frequently produce cases. When the nurse felt that sufficient interest was secured from "contacts" and patients, she arranged for a clinic or free chest examination.

It was soon found that the people would not respond to work confined exclusively to tuberculosis. From the first, "Safety First," or "Health" clinics were advertised, and "Stay Well," "Take Stock," "Live Longer," were among the advertising slogans. A good deal of the educational work concerned itself with the negro race. The State was completing an eighty-bed negro sanatorium, and it was desired for the good of the work to open the institution with a long list of applicants. Educational methods were at first of the pioneer, or "brass band" type, later in the campaign less sensational devices were used. The Sunday before the clinic dates, lecturers from the State Board of Health spoke in every church which would permit it, sometimes to the number of ten. Thorough educational talks were made and thousands of people reached. Newspapers assisted everywhere and printed educational matter as well as news stories. A determined effort was made to overcome prejudices created by the mistaken theories of incurability and heredity.

There were always plenty of applicants at the clinics. At first an effort was made to study economic and social conditions as well as clinical findings. The work, however, grew too rapidly. Social histories became incomplete under the stress of accumulating field work and were gradually discontinued. Valuable data were nevertheless collected. It remains the best available picture of the rural tuberculosis problem. Unfortunately, an additional element of incompleteness has entered because of the fact that probably three or four thousand case-histories were injured or lost in a fire in the offices of the Virginia Tuberculosis Association. There remained 5,301 case-histories collected prior to March, 1920, when Dr. Dean Cole resigned as field clinician with the association, and 1,886 collected since 1920, during a portion of which time, Dr. W. E. Brown, now superintendent of the Blue Ridge Sanatorium, was field clinician for the State Board of Health and frequently served with the field force of the association.

In the first group of 5,301 histories the cases are classified as glandular, arrested, inactive, suspicious and negative. Dr. Cole states with regard to the classification, that the active cases were under-estimated, owing to the fact that it was impossible to make a detailed examination and that all border-line cases were thrown into the suspicious class. No cases were marked positive unless the findings were conspicuous and beyond question; while no case was marked suspicious unless there was practically no doubt of the fact that some tuberculous lesion existed. The arrested cases were classified as inactive because of the fact that in a large percentage of these cases the individual had never known of the infection. Cases belonging to this group, without diagnosis and education, run the risk of breaking down at any time and becoming active.

The glandular group existed largely among school children. These cases were decidedly and purposely underestimated, suspicious cases being thrown out. This group is of especial interest, since it comprises the future citizens and is in danger of developing further tuberculous trouble unless located and properly cared for. The suspicious class consists of border-line cases, all of whom should be under the observation of physicians until the symptoms have either cleared up or have declared themselves. Every case was thrown into the negative class unless there were positive symptoms or signs pointing to tuberculosis, as every effort was made to throw the burden of error on the negative diagnosis, not on the positive.

Under these classifications the following cases were listed: Active, 527; glandular, 388; inactive, 889; a total of 1,804 active and arrested cases. With the addition of the 568 suspicious cases, the total reaches 2,372. There were 2,845 negative cases, and 84 for which no report was filed. Ignoring the suspicious group, and considering only tuberculosis of which there can be question, the findings give 34.2 per cent positive cases.

In the second group of 1,886 examinations in 1921, the cases are classified slightly differently, the positive cases being subdivided into degrees of activity, incipient, advanced and moderately advanced. Including arrested with these active cases and the later histories give 10.3 per cent with tuberculosis.

Such a difference in findings may be due to any of several facts. In the first place, it bears out the experience of the earlier clinics that the percentage of disease found is gradually reduced as an increased number of persons is examined. Again, the first clinics were persistently advertised; nurses were kept constantly in a restricted field and worked for a period of months in a given section; clinics were held infrequently and only after contact groups were located and interested. Several small clinics showed 100 per cent disease after educational work had been carried on over a two- or three-month period and a strictly "contact" clinic was held. The later clinics have been held frequently with a smaller field force of nurses, the association depending more upon local assistance. Always educational propaganda has been intensively developed, but for the first two or three years constructive work was planned to develop from the campaign. In this way, several public health nursing fields were opened and hospital beds secured. It is certain that neither 34.2 nor 10.3 per cent disease accurately represent existing conditions. The survey of greatest magnitude ever made, the examination of approximately 3,000,000 men by the United States government, disclosed two per cent infection in this selected group. Surveys everywhere bear out these figures. It is unlikely that Virginia has a higher percentage. The 34.2 per cent is, however, a vivid warning of how much tuberculosis may be found in any unselected group of persons.

The 34.2 per cent disease found at clinics by the association is chiefly valuable to Virginia taken in connection with Dr. Cole's statement that only from one to five per cent of the patients discovered were under doctors. Thirty-four per cent of the 5,301 case histories represents 1,804 cases of tuberculosis. Granting that the maximum of five per cent were known to physicians and we have a balance of 1,700 cases of tuberculosis who were without knowledge of the presence of the infection. Of this number, 525 had active, progressive disease. Their ignorance deprives them of the power to cure themselves or to protect their loved ones.

Another fact of vital interest to Virginia is the number of incipient cases found. In the 5,301 of the first group, sixty histories were marked incipient; while in the second group, fifty are similarly marked. In this early stage, tuberculosis is highly curable. A large percentage of these 110 patients should recover. Utilizing Dr. Cole's estimate of known cases once more, and we find that 105 of these were unknown to any physician. Delay at this stage means always a much lengthened illness and, frequently, death.

Nor must we look with less concern upon the arrested and glandular cases discovered. Many tuberculosis specialists require all arrested cases in their practice to report every six months for examination and advice. It is the only safe rule. Glandular infection in childhood is the actual implantation of tubercle bacilli. Unless properly nourished and trained to bodily care, such a child may become the adult consumptive. These two groups total 1,277 cases, 1,210 of whom were probably not under the care of any physician.

Tuberculosis was not the only disease discovered. There were 183 cases of heart disease, 172 cases of tonsils and adenoids, 410 cases of bronchitis, together with various other conditions. A total of 9,233 disease conditions other than tuberculosis were noted. Many of these cases went to physicians immediately.

It is a pity that many of the reports of the nurses were destroyed, and that no accurate idea can be derived from this source of the benefit to the patients. Very incomplete records give a total of 29 patients sent to sanatoria; 195 on the cure at home under nurse supervision; 104 sent to family physicians, and 71 sleeping out of doors. A better picture of the help given the patients is Dr. W. E. Brown's statement that the sanatorium always knew where clinics were held from the number of applicants coming from the one locality.

Family histories were taken for all applicants at clinics. It is a little like treading on holy ground to discuss this phase of the subject. Family contact does not, of course, always cause tuberculosis, yet it is a manifest danger. It is the right of every consumptive in Virginia that he shall be placed in a position to remove as far as possible this danger from his loved ones. The man on the street has been brought up in an atmosphere of error regarding this disease. Only constant reiteration of truth can overcome belief in false doctrines. While this belief continues, the consumptive is a danger to those most dear to him. This fact is borne out by the family histories recorded by the State Board of Health and the volunteer organization. Many contacts were not recorded. Thousands of people are still "ashamed" of having tuberculosis in the family, in spite of the noble company they keep by so doing. Among the 5,301 case-histories, 1,889 give a history of family contact. Of these, 1,048 were among applicants with positive disease; 841 among negative cases. This gave 55.4 per cent of the contacts to the tuberculous, who were, including "suspicious" cases, only 44 per cent of the total applicants.

A further analysis of the records show that 349 of the histories among positive cases, or 33  $\frac{1}{3}$  per cent, gave as the home contact either father or mother. This fact might have been expected, but its import is too full of tragedy to dwell upon. Of the remaining histories among positive cases, 210, or 20 per cent, showed contact with a brother or sister; 159, or 14.2 per cent, with uncle or aunt; 144, or 13.7 per cent, gave history of indefinite or distant family contact; and 61, or 5.8 per cent, contact with husband or wife. The remaining 13 per cent were divided between contact with grandparents and sons or daughters.

The percentage of contacts among negative cases approximated those among positive; 29.4 per cent showing contact with father or mother; 20 per cent giving indefinite histories; and 13 per cent contact with grandparents. This latter per cent is a trifle surprising, and would probably have been decidedly higher if family history had not included actual contact. The low percentage of contact with husband and wife, bears out the usual findings. Even with the unscientific method of gathering these histories, the absence of selection of cases in the majority of instances; the lack of any effort to prove theories, the results bring further evidence to demonstrate partly established ideas.

It is upon such findings as these that the committee has based its first recommendation for increase of educational propaganda and clinical service. It is assured that there are from 23,000 to 29,000 active cases of tuberculosis in the State. All available evidence indicates that the majority of these cases are ignorant of the presence of the infection. It is practically certain that this communicable disease is not today under the care of physicians. Tuberculosis is known to be preventable and curable, but this knowledge is so new that, for the average citizen, it is still in the realm of scientific theory. It must be translated into practical fact. In no way can Virginia further reduce her mortality from consumption except by teaching her people the simple laws underlying control. Thousands have already been educated through the field clinics. There are thousands still to reach.

A stationary or mounting tuberculosis death rate is a disgrace to a modern State. The disease costs millions in dollars, thousands in lives and broken homes. No more tragic fact is present in the life of the Commonwealth than the thousands of loving mothers whose very devotion is destroying the health and happiness of their children.

APPENDIX III.

Tuberculosis and the Virginia Schools

That at least 75 per cent of tuberculous infection occurs in childhood is now considered an established fact. Tuberculin tests administered to large numbers of children give a positive reaction in 50 per cent at 5 years of age, and in 75 or 80 per cent at 14 years. Autopsies bear out these figures, even when the cause of death has been other than tuberculosis. Infancy and childhood are the periods of implantation of the tubercle bacilli. They are also the periods of establishment of immunity. This fact should have full recognition in any school system.

Colonel George E. Bushnell in his illuminating book, "Epidemiology of Tuberculosis," makes particularly clear the distinction between this primary infection and the disease of the already tuberculous individual, which ordinarily manifests itself in the adult as "consumption" or pulmonary tuberculosis.

Colonel Bushnell says: "Antenatal infection being extremely rare, it may be assumed that the human infant begins life free of tuberculosis. The world of the very young infant is a narrow one. Its fate as to tuberculosis rests in the hands of the mother. The conditions are such that if tuberculous infection takes place at all as when the mother is consumptive, the dosage will probably be large and the child will be likely to die of an acute generalized tuberculosis. If the child escapes such a fate it will probably not be infected until it is old enough to move about. With cleanly surroundings and in the absence of opportunities for direct infection from consumptives, the child will pick up now and then a tubercle bacillus from some of the countless articles which come within its reach that may be infected. These bacilli reach the glands through the various portals of infection and there are collected and very possibly also increased by multiplication until the threshold of infection is reached, i. e., until the number is sufficient to arouse the specific resistance of the organism. The bacilli coming in one by one, in this manner, the threshold of infection will be passed by the smallest number of bacilli that can excite a reaction. The child thus infected, if shielded from massive re-infecting doses, will proceed to develop an immunity which in time reaches a maturity such that no subsequent infection from without can take hold. He may go through a long life without developing any manifest tuberculous disease, though, perhaps, repeatedly exposed to infection.

"It should be emphasized that a history of this kind is the history of the majority of civilized adults. But if the initial infection has been large or if there have been repeated early reinfections or if the resistance of the individual is lowered by intercurrent disease or by bad hygiene, the infection with tuberculosis is no longer simply a beneficent vaccination but it is in truth an infection."

Later Colonel Bushnell further elaborates the forms of infection which are of particular interest in connection with the school room. He says: "Primary tuberculosis is seen with us practically only in young children. It was formerly held that infection at this age is always fatal, but this is far from being true. As has been shown by tuberculin reactions, a considerable percentage of young children go on to develop an immunity as the result of the early inoculation and may never exhibit any manifestations of clinically apparent tuberculosis. The child which has received a tuberculous infection of the nature of a vaccination against the disease never has any marked swelling of newly involved lymph glands whatever its subsequent history as respects tuberculosis may be."

While there are indications that primary infection occurs before seven years of age, it is certain from Fishberg's findings in the New York schools by the administration of tuberculin that tuberculous infection increases from the seventh to the fourteenth years. The school problem as related to tuberculosis concerns itself, therefore, in a small part only with modes of infection. The establishment of immunity and the teachings of such health habits as may tend to conserve an already partly established immunity, should be the chief concern of the school authorities.

No specific study has been made to determine the extent of infection in Virginia schools. The mortality statistics furnish unhappy evidence of the number of children who have received doses of infection beyond the point of immunity. A few chest examinations in rural schools, and regular examinations in city schools give some light on the extent of infection. To this may be added some 57,000 physical inspections of school children by nurses, and their findings with regard to cervical gland involvement and malnutrition, the former frequently the result of already existing infection, the latter an indication of a resistance lowered to invasion.

During the years 1914, '15 and '20, there were 541 deaths from tuberculosis among children from the age of five to fifteen. This was approximately 4.9 per cent of the total deaths. Comparing this percentage with the loss in the same age period in eight other States the difference is so small as to be negligible. Virginia, then, has no more massive infection among children of this age than other States in the Union.

That the condition is present that Colonel Bushnell designates the infection of "imperfect immunization" is evidenced by the enlarged glands found in field clinics. During the first two years of this work, effort was made to decline to examine school children. This was due to the fact that the purpose of the clinic was to find active tuberculous cases, and to urge upon them the possibility of cure. There were no provisions for the children at the sanatoria and medical inspection in the counties was so little developed that it was considered almost impossible to provide any remedy. Therefore, the work among children was confined largely to suspicious contacts. A little later in clinic experience an effort was made to discover actual conditions in a few counties where public health nurses were already at work.

Unfortunately the records of examinations made in schools are not sufficiently exact to enable us to give percentages and precise findings. The 388 school children found in clinics with glandular involvement certainly represent a higher percentage than is desirable. The existence of such a figure in examinations purposely restricted to adults, is a warning which Virginia would do well to consider.

Much more definite tabulation can be made of the results of inspection of rural school children by public health nurses. The defects of particular interest from the angle of tuberculosis would naturally be glandular enlargement and malnutrition—the former an indication of possible infection, the latter, good soil. Both of these conditions, unfortunately, are more or less medical problems and it is apparent from the records that the nurses were unwilling to make decisions in cases where there was any doubt. The record of malnutrition is notably low. The nurse had no scales, and probably hesitated to pass judgment upon signs of underweight unless the evidence was conspicuous. In other words, “malnutrition” is probably definite anemia.

In inspections of 57,874 school children in rural Virginia in 1919-20, 38,374 defects were found. The burden, as usual, fell upon teeth, which yielded 15,212—a little less than one-half the total. Tonsils and adenoids came next with 10,482—a fact of profound importance to the welfare of the State. Writing of this condition, Dr. Lawrence Royster, of Norfolk, says: “Children who have infected tonsils are indeed handicapped since they are the recipients of continuous doses of toxins generated in the crypts (tonsils) and are therefore subject to a chronic toxemia, while those whose oxidation is impaired through the mechanical obstruction of hypertrophied adenoid tissue are apt to be anemic and flabby and subject to infection even though they may be above the average weight.” Among the 57,874 children inspected, 4,413 were found to have defective vision—a figure which represents 7 per cent of the total number.

In the two conditions of most interest in regard to tuberculosis, we find that 3,372 of the children are reported as having malnutrition. The percentages as found elsewhere in large numbers of children with regard to underweight range from 25 to 60 per cent. It is possible that a pair of scales would have produced similar figures in Virginia. When we consider the basis for this figure of 3,372 children with malnutrition, it becomes more important. It actually signifies that over five per cent of the total 57,874 children showed signs of anemia. Of course, it must be recognized that hookworm probably played an important part in producing this result. The number of children with enlarged glands was given as 1,584. This figure is really not of much import as representing actual conditions since a nurse would hesitate to make a diagnosis.

It is interesting to find that the nurses give a total of 5,085 corrections made in the total of 38,374 defects found. This is an incomplete record. The school enrollment in a county varies from 1,500 to somewhat over 11,000 children. In a large county it would be impossible for the nurse to do sufficient follow-up work to be able to make a complete report of corrections effected. The records show that 14,496 children showed defects, and that 10,489 notices were sent to parents. Two thousand one hundred and fifty-five children are reported as having had defective teeth “corrected,” and 889 operations were done for tonsils and adenoids. There is no data available regarding the care of the physically subnormal and sick group who showed marked malnutrition. Thirty-three out of 1,584 children with glandular involvement were reported as treated.

Reports from the results of teachers inspections under the West law were only filed last year and are not analysed here.

The reports quoted were filed with the State Board of Health during 1919 and 1920, the first two years during which there were more than four or five county nurses. It is interesting to compare these results with the data available from the city schools of Richmond. This city is selected and the analysis is confined to it, in spite of excellent work done in other cities, because the full records were readily available to the office of the committee. To the courtesy of Mr. Albert Hill, superintendent of schools, and Dr. N. T. Ennett, medical director, the committee is indebted for the completeness of the tables.

The medical inspection department was established in 1911. Dr. N. T. Ennett was appointed director, and has served continuously. In the first year he had one assistant physician and five nurses. In the fall of 1920 the department had been increased to four doctors—three on part time; eleven nurses, and three part-time dentists. The total enrollment of the schools in 1911-1912 was 20,296 and in 1919-1920, 30,219. When the department was organized each nurse averaged 4,000 children for supervision. In 1920 this was reduced to somewhat under 3,000.

The increase in force is reflected in a very large increase in children examined, defects found and corrections made. In 1911, for instance, 9,417 children were examined. In 1920 the total examinations reached to 15,117. In the nine-year period 45,758 physical defects have been found and 35,747 corrections made—slightly over 75 per cent. The consistent development in the effectiveness of the work is clearly shown by the difference in corrections made in the early and the later years. In 1911, 1,156 children were found to have defective vision, of which number 371 were treated. In 1920, 1,064 were found with this defect, and 1,149 were treated—evidently the department cleaned up a balance from a previous year.

In the same fashion, defective hearing was found in 229 children in 1912; and 48 corrections were made. In 1920, 226 such defects were found and 224 were treated. The development is even more marked in defective teeth, where 1,275 were found in 1912 and 599 treated; while in 1920, 5,573 were found and 4,981 were treated. In 1912, 484 children were found with enlarged tonsils and 109 were treated. In 1920 this condition was found in 1,104 and 880 were treated. In both these instances, the number of children found with defects was very much larger, also the percentage of corrections made.

The department has by no means confined itself to correcting physical defects. Much of its most effective work has been accomplished in more definitely medical fields with the subnormal and sick child. During the nine-year period, 15,287 cases of infectious diseases have been found in the schools. This figure is of interest in connection with Colonel Bushnell's statement as to the part played by "intercurrent disease" in lowering the resistance of the individual.

Such incomplete data as to the incidence of infectious disease is available from rural schools that no figures can be quoted. Among 5,301 patients examined at clinics by the Virginia Tuberculosis Association, 14,307 previous infections with measles, mumps, whooping cough, etc., were reported. In these histories the percentage of infections was almost even for the tuberculous and non-tuberculous applicants. Only in malaria, which of course does not appear in the reports of the Richmond schools, was there a larger percentage of cases among the tuberculous. Here it was 53 per cent of the total number of cases reported, although the tuberculous were only 44 per cent of the applicants. The early symptoms of tuberculosis so often simulate malaria that one is reminded of the warning made by Dr. Hobart A. Hare, in his Practice of Medicine, "In some cases there is no cough, but only a little rise of evening temperature, preceded by chilly sensations. If the number of cases in which these symptoms have given rise to the diagnosis of malarial poisoning could be gathered together, they would be a multitude which none could number." In spite of the lack of evidence furnished by the 5,301 case-histories made at the State clinics, by which to connect these early infections with tuberculosis, nevertheless each of these infections reduces the resistance of the individual to other disease.

Of much more direct bearing on the tuberculosis problem is the record of seventy-five children found with pulmonary tuberculosis in the Richmond schools in the nine-year period, and 452 suspects. It is for these tuberculous and pre-tuberculous children that Richmond has open-air classes. The first was begun in 1913, on the roof of one of the schools. There were twenty pupils in the first class. In 1920, seven years later, there were sixteen classes in operation with an enrollment of 255 pupils.

Dr. Ennett states that each child is given a complete physical examination including the chest before being admitted to the class and is examined twice every year, while the remainder of the school children are examined once every two years. Children with tuberculosis in their homes, or who are themselves tuberculous or anemic and physically subnormal are admitted. No open cases—cases with positive sputum—are admitted. The school hours are similar to those for the rest of the school, but one hour's rest on cots is given in the middle of the day. The children are given two light lunches during school hours. The average period of stay in the open-air class is one and one-half years. The promotion record is good, being usually as high or a little higher than for the children in the rest of the building. The daily average attendance is higher than the average for the school body.

The effect upon the health of the child is frequently remarkable. In 1920, in a class of twenty children, 25 per cent went over the normal weight for the height and age of the child; one gained twelve pounds; two gained ten pounds, and several from five to six pounds. All of these children ran slight temperatures on admission, and in the case of the tuberculous ones continued to do so throughout the school year, while the child gained steadily in weight and strength. Dr. Ennett says, in speaking of the increased cost of the open-air classes over the regular school class, "From our observation of the work done in the open-air class we are of the opinion that this increase in cost is fully justified since the majority of the open-air children would soon drop out if they continued in the regular grade, and would never be able to continue their studies. The open-air class enables them not only to continue their studies, but what is more important, to regain their health."

In addition to this group of tuberculous and pre-tuberculous children, the medical department gives special supervision to the large number of physically and mentally subnormal children found in the schools. No method of congregating the physically subnormal has been established. They receive, however, more direct supervision from the nurses; are re-examined as necessary by the doctors during the school term; in part, are provided with hot lunches at school; and are visited in their homes by the nurses who discuss with their parents the method of care necessary for their development.

Special classes were opened for retarded pupils in 1911 with an enrollment of seventeen. In 1920 this number had grown to 282. In 1913 classes were opened for fifty-two feeble-minded children and in 1920 the enrollment was 194. Special rooms and teachers are provided for these groups. Mr. Julian Binford, assistant superintendent of schools, has direct supervision of these special classes. He says of them: "These children who are mentally deficient can have their mentality improved in some cases by the remedying of all physical defects. As a result of finding and remedying all defects and employing special methods of teaching, about 10 per cent of this group go out into the regular classes. These mentally defective children belong to the class who do not remedy physical defects without outside help. We find it important that when they go out of the school system, at about sixteen years of age, they should have had such defects as teeth, adenoids, etc., corrected. They go into the simpler forms of industry and their working efficiency is increased by this physical care while in the school system."

Since no special rooms or buildings are set apart for the physically subnormal it is impossible to estimate the percentage of promotions among them. From the record of the open-air classes, which frequently give from two to five per cent higher promotion than the rest of the school building, it is fair to infer that this second and much larger group would also show a higher average of promotion than had they been left untreated. It is not possible to determine how much of the cost of the medical department Richmond saves by the reduction in the number of repeaters. Every child costs the city about $42.00 a year. The open-air classes double this amount for each child. It would certainly be fair to credit to the medical department of the schools the saving effected by the excess percentage of promotions from the open-air schools, and an amount now unknown, but possible to determine, saved in the same fashion in the second uncongregated group.

It must always be borne in mind also that Richmond is doing a great deal to make her future citizens fit for the battle of life. The results of the examinations of young men by the draft boards during the war is sufficient reply to anyone who argues that such work as that done in Richmond is not "necessary." America found that through carelessness and ignorance one in every three of her young men was unfit for war service. It is a stigma which only superlatively high future standards can erase. The value of the part played by the medical department of the Richmond schools to enable our future citizens to reach this standard cannot be estimated.

Comparisons between the record of the county work begun in 1918 in the face of known difficulties and lack of medical facilities, and the Richmond work begun in 1911 under competent medical direction and with medical facilities at hand, is manifestly unfair. Richmond has not effected the results outlined above without years of co-operative work, and the expenditure of much money. The schools have been fortunate to have the assistance of the Medical College of Virginia, to which dispensary they have referred 11,281 children, while many others have had operations for tonsils and adenoids at the Memorial Hospital. To secure that co-operation which is more mighty than all other combined—an educated public sentiment—the department has to its credit some 14,044 lectures and talks.

The analysis of results of the work under the widely differing conditions and opportunities is only proper if it clarifies the method to be evolved by the Virginia school system to attain the goal of proper and effective work in tuberculosis control. This goal was rather clearly indicated by Colonel Bushnell's discussion of implantation—slight concern with mode of infection and large concern with the establishment of immunity. The analysis of the Richmond department has shown it dealing with two definite divisions of the whole problem—inspection and correction of physical defects; and treatment of the physically subnormal and sick child. The department recognizes, therefore, that the finding and correction of physical defects is an essential factor in the establishment of sufficient "resistance" to aid in building up a mature immunity. It recognizes, further, that the care of the physically subnormal and tuberculous school child is essential to any type of immunity—and thus, to the actual preservation of life.

Since the West law is entitled "An act to provide for public health nursing, health examination and physical education of school children," it was to be expected that both these phases of the medical problem of the schools should be foreshadowed in it. This act was approved in March, 1918, and amended in 1920. It has, therefore, been effective during two school terms. The two boards responsible for its enforcement—health and education—are to be congratulated on their results.

Since no nurses are yet available in fifty-two counties, the burden of the work has fallen on the teachers through the physical inspection clause of the law. Every effort has been made to fit them for this new responsibility. In forty-eight counties, their findings are checked by nurses in all doubtful cases, and the follow-up and correctional work is effected by the nurse. In eight counties, full-time health officers organize the entire campaign. Under this law 127,187 physical inspections were made in the session of 1920-1921, in an enrollment of 400,769 pupils. The record of defects is incomplete, owing to the late filing of reports. It shows, however, 16,039 defective vision; 4,042 defective hearing; 40,306 defective teeth; 6,470 malnutrition; 3,598 defective tonsils. The latter record is low, as the teachers were not required to report on this finding, since the question of defective or enlarged tonsils is a medical one.

No data regarding corrections can be secured except in those counties where nurses are employed. The teacher notifies the parents of defects. Corrections are not reported. No definite figures can be secured for the end results of this work, therefore, until such time as the 100 counties of the State have public health nurses.

In the judgment of your committee, the State has, in its administration of the West law, made good headway in the medical problem of the schools from the angle of physical defects and physical education. Thousands of teachers have been brought to regard the physical inspection of their charges as a part of their function; a correspondence course in hygiene is conducted by the State Board of Health for the assistance of the teachers; 70,455 physical defects have been found among rural school children; forty-eight county nurses are employed in follow-up and correctional work.

The second department of the medical problem of the school—the physically subnormal and sick child—remains largely undeveloped in rural districts.

A few nurses have secured funds to provide hot lunches. No systematic method of procedure has been put in operation for the hundred counties of the State. There is still much doubt as to the economic method of administration and organization. In Richmond and in other cities, the care of the physically subnormal and sick child of school age has received much attention. In the opinion of your committee, Virginia should prepare for this work in rural communities. Any attempt to do State-wide work immediately in this field would be out of the question, both from a financial and administrative angle.

It is the belief of your committee and of school authorities, however, that a demonstration of the economical method of attacking this problem should be made in one or more counties. This could be effected by a further development of the existing co-operation between the boards of health and education in the administration of the West law. To be efficient the demonstration should be placed in counties where there is already a full health organization. It should be located where lack of clinical facilities would not afford a constant obstacle. It should be given the services of the medical member of the staff of the Bureau of Tuberculosis Education. It should have the continuous supervision of a specially trained worker. The children should be selected under competent medical advice. The assistance of the parents of the children should be secured, and they should be present at all times when the group of children is collected for weighing and examination. All physical defects found among the group should be promptly corrected. The causes of underweight, malnutrition, anemia, etc., should be discovered and treated. Careful records should be kept of the group indicating the results secured and the cost. A definite program for establishing this type of work in the rural schools should be developed in co-operation with the two boards most intimately concerned.

Elsewhere in this report, the committee has recommended a definite appropriation to be added for this purpose to the tuberculosis educational fund. In the belief of your committee this is one of the essential next steps of the campaign for tuberculosis control. Your committee has reached this belief through no sentimental regard for the welfare of the child deep rooted as is this sentiment in the breasts of all civilized people. It has rather reached this belief after the scientific analysis of the disease, tuberculosis, was presented to it by the medical directors of the State sanatoria. The committee is forced to the belief that adult tuberculosis is in most instances an infection from inside the individual organism due to the earlier implantation of the tubercle bacilli, and that disease is precipitated by a lowered resistance. It is forced to the further belief, that the school period is the time for the establishment of a mature immunity.

Proper medical care and health education of the tuberculous and physically subnormal children during the school session will play a great part in the final reduction of sickness and death from tuberculosis, a disease which has cost our State approximately two hundred millions of dollars during the past eight years. Proper medical care of physically subnormal children during the school session has been found to prevent repeaters in the schools. While probably this saving has not fully paid for the medical care it surely has paid a part of the additional cost of this care. Realizing that the heart of every man is ready to make appeal for the sick child, your committee dismisses this aspect of the problem, and makes its recommendations upon the scientific basis of economy and efficiency.

APPENDIX IV.

The Problem Presented by the Tuberculous Negro in Virginia

It is misleading to discuss the "negro tuberculosis problem." There is no such problem. There could never be such a problem without complete segregation of the race. So long as the interrelation of the races continues and tuberculosis exists, there will be one tuberculosis problem, an angle of which must deal more peculiarly with the disease as related to the negro.

The fundamentals of the social order in which we live excludes any other conclusion. The negro continues in the vast majority of cases to act as the domestic servant for the white race. As butler, as maid, as cook, the race lives in intimate daily contact with the white. In these capacities, they handle our raw foods, as well as the cooked; they wash our china and silver and set our tables; they wash our clothes, make our beds and smooth our pillows. In a thousand commonplace daily services they have countless opportunities for handing on to us their disease germs.

To these services Virginia adds the relationship of "Mammy" and takes a well placed pride in the result. There are few Virginians who do not look back with joy and gratitude to the love and care of some negro nurse. And so genuine is the affection usually engendered in this relationship, and so profound is the loyalty and devotion of the fine type of negro, that it is not uncommon to find the tenderness and devotion continuing unto the second and third generation. Under such social conditions any independence of problems is impossible, particularly when these problems assume such a nature as that of a communicable disease.

There is abundant evidence, quite outside of any knowledge of the existing social order, to show that this high negro rate must directly affect the white race. The occupational tables point to it in that among the death certificates recorded in three years 1,100 give the occupation as "domestic servant." The clinic histories give pitiful stories of domestic service throughout the period of illness and Piedmont furnishes additional histories.

It is fortunately unnecessary for your committee to present any extended argument for the campaign against tuberculosis in the negro race. That plea was presented by the first commission of 1915, to whose recommendations are due the negro sanatorium known as Piedmont, and the continuance of the educational propaganda for the negro equally with the white race. Your committee has found, however, pregnant facts in the statistical tables which are worth serious consideration.

The death rate is two and one-half times as high from tuberculosis of the lungs in the colored race as in the white—in some years even more than this. In 1920, with the negro population only 29.9 per cent of the total, the colored race bore the weight of 53.7 per cent of the deaths from tuberculosis of all forms. In 1915, the colored population was only 31.2 per cent of the total, but there were actually 473 more deaths among negroes; in 1920 the numerical difference was 246 in favor of the white.

Although the white population has represented 68.3 per cent of the total at its lowest point in the eight-year period and reaches 70.2 per cent of the total in 1920, in not one year of the period did the white deaths equal the colored. With the death rate in the negro race from tuberculosis two and one-half times that of the white, the death rate from all causes in the negro race was one and two-thirds times that of the white rate—an indication that tuberculosis is still playing havoc with the negro.

There has been much discussion of the cause of the high negro tuberculosis death rate. Various theories have been advanced—lack of established immunity, racial susceptibility, etc. It is probable that Dr. H. G. Carter, medical superintendent at Piedmont from its opening in April, 1918, has expressed the latest ideas regarding the subject in a paper recently read by him before the National Tuberculosis Association.

He says: "Statistics show that the high water mark has been reached and passed in mortality from tuberculosis in the United States as a whole. This decrease is generally to be attributed to the education of the public in matters pertaining to health, and as a matter of fact is the result of society adjusting itself to the cramped quarters of civilization. The general health worker in his efforts to eradicate all diseases which sap the vitality of the race, the social worker in his efforts to adjust living conditions, and the specialized tuberculosis worker are all the natural products of civilization in its attempt to adjust itself to a living basis, and this development plus the inherited immunity of the white race is responsible for the lowered death rate from tuberculosis.

"Any given community or race is infected with tuberculosis just in proportion as it departs from the highest standards of living. And the standards of living are learned by experience through congregation. * * * * *

"Tuberculosis begins when people begin to congregate and increases until by inherited immunity and experience they adjust themselves. The negroes represent a good example of this statement. In Africa it is generally conceded that tuberculosis is practically unknown and when introduced by the white man, it is present in the native as an acute disease, a fact brought out by Bushnell and others. During slavery in this country tuberculosis was rare among the negroes, a statement not to be substantiated by figures, it is true, but too recent in the minds of many to be disputed. At the end of slavery, the negro suddenly changed from a regulated open-air life to the life of the white man in even more crowded and unsanitary quarters necessitated by circumstances or shiftless habits. He immediately became the prey of tuberculosis. This is especially true of those who congregated in the cities. In taking family histories of negro consumptives it is quite common to find one who has lost five or more in his immediate family, showing it to be almost or quite a primary infection. Statistics in Virginia in 1917 show that 2.21 per cent more negroes died of tuberculosis than whites. This condition will continue until by precept and example, by the 'survival of the fittest,' and by inherited immunity, the negro adjusts himself to the changed conditions of life, and I am of the opinion that mental development and responsibility will play the most important part. Mental development and the reduction of the death rate from tuberculosis in the negro, as in the other races, will be accomplished by the betterment of the environmental conditions and a gradual change in detrimental racial habits more than through inherited immunity."

If Dr. Carter is right in his reasoning, then education is the answer to the negro tuberculosis problem. In this connection it is interesting to note that the State made its first appropriation for tuberculosis education in 1916, and that the colored, as well as the white, rate is actually dropping in Virginia. In 1915 the white rate from tuberculosis of the lungs was 102.9 per 100,000 living; the colored rate was 302.8. In 1917 the white rate was 95.1 per hundred thousand and the colored was 279.0. Two years later, in 1919, we find the white rate 88.5 per 100,000 and the colored rate 249.7. While in 1920 the rates were respectively 82.8 and 232.1. This lowering of the rate is distinctly encouraging. The tuberculosis rate for the population as a whole remains higher than that of the registration area as a whole. Plot the separate rates by any one of the usual methods and it is evident at a glance that the negro rate is responsible for this high combined rate and that the curve of the combined rate begins to respond to the lowered rate in the two races. The combined death rate per hundred thousand of population from tuberculosis of the lungs was 165.4 in 1915, and the rate for the same cause was 127.5 in 1920.

During the five-year period since the first commission the educational campaign has been intensified. In connection with the clinics as outlined elsewhere in the report, lectures have been given in hundreds of churches. The reports of the ignorance regarding tuberculosis among the rural negroes are pitiful. They hold the doctrines of the days before Pasteur. They believe it is hereditary and incurable, refuse to go to bed until death is imminent, finally make the room as nearly air-tight as possible, shut themselves in and prepare to die. This is, of course, the picture of the rural negro. In some instances deacons have arisen after the lecture, said they had never heard a "rumor" that the disease which "kills so many of my people" could be cured, and in an affecting manner thanked God for sending the tidings. While the city negro and the educated man know theoretically the facts regarding the infection and the cure, it is doubtful as to how much they can translate their knowledge into practice. Certainly, one of the great discouragements of the field force is to attempt to teach the patients to translate their instructions into living on the "cure."

The responsiveness of the negro is particularly apparent in this work. To them tuberculosis must seem a deadly and imminent danger, already at work among their friends or family. Following the customs of the negro churches, the lecturers have asked them to show their agreement or disagreement throughout the lecture. When the old doctrines or the extent and deadliness of the plague are discussed a subdued chorus of assent will go through the congregation like a wave of woe. When the new knowledge, the possibility of cure and actual conquest of the disease are touched upon, a silence will fall and grow in intensity, as though such hope was breath-taking.

There is, of course, incredulity. It has been fortunate that among the lecturers two or three are either from families with a seriously bad history or are, themselves, cures. The demonstration of a cure has proved invaluable. The negro is willing to take the lecturer's word for this new doctrine, but he likes to be shown.

The educated negro has proved a great help in this campaign. The relations of the rural negro are strangely tribal. The teacher must be armed with authority and this authority is best found within the negro race. This is true, although the negro still looks to his "own" white man for guidance. The Negro Organization Society gave its first aid by raising $5,000 for Piedmont. Since then it has given continuous assistance. Armed with the backing of this organization, the field health workers have been welcomed in many places heretofore closed to everyone except ministers.

The majority of the educational work has been done through the church. The community assembles there. The influence of the church is dominating. The tribal idea is expressed through this organization and one word from the leader and the attendance at clinic is assured. Sometimes the clinic attendance has been embarrassingly large. When this has been true lectures have been given, consultations held with groups and individuals, and as many examinations made as possible.

It has been impossible to tabulate the clinic findings. The larger percentage of cases has been found in the negro race, but the actual percentage cannot be given. The nurse has been uncomfortably aware of the number of cases, since in so many instances funds must be secured from outside sources for their care at Piedmont.

The inception of the clinic idea was due to the building of Piedmont and the necessity of filling its beds. Many persons who knew that there was no solution to Virginia's tuberculosis problem without sanatorial care for the negro, nevertheless feared the experiment. If the place failed, the attempt would do harm which would endure for years. The committee of the State Board and the medical superintendent at Piedmont are to be congratulated on the fact that Piedmont has been so far from a failure that it is in reality a shining example of success.

There were three major doubts in the minds of the friends of the movement. First, that the negro would go to a sanatorium; second, that he would stay there for treatment; third, that he could be sufficiently educated and trained to serve any useful purpose after his discharge. The settlement of these doubts are to be found in Dr. Carter's reports and in the experiences of the field workers.

Piedmont was opened on April 22, 1918, with a capacity of forty beds and two patients. On July 15, less than three months later, the forty beds were filled and there was a waiting list of thirty-five. On September 23, 1918, the second forty bed pavilion was opened, and at the end of the week, the date of the first annual report, fifty-four patients were in bed. The end of an eighteen-month period showed the eighty beds filled and forty-eight on the waiting list. There has been one period during which there have been vacancies. There have been several periods during which the waiting list was longer than the capacity of the sanatorium. During these discouraging periods patients have passed from the early stage of the disease, through the moderately advanced and on, even to death itself, before admission.

The institution now has a capacity of 100 beds. It is Dr. Carter's policy to keep the waiting list as small as is reasonable. This is only done by curtailing the propaganda and discouraging doctors from sending in applications. Too long a waiting list is more discouraging even to the educated among this temperamental, impetuous race, than among the steadier Anglo-Saxon.

How Dr. Carter has managed to overcome the problem of keeping the patient at the sanatorium is best told in his own words: "Love of ease and a care free disposition are assets to one compelled to lie in bed for a long period of time, but when a care free disposition amounts to irresponsibility and a total grasp of a serious situation until too late, it becomes most decidedly a handicap. This is particularly true in our discharged patients. Those who continue well are those who showed mental responsibility while "on the cure" and these were mainly of the educated class.

"Experience in our work among the negroes shows that it is all important to get the confidence of this ease loving, care free patient, and impress him with the fact that he is a sick man and needs treatment and that this treatment will be absolute rest in bed in the open air for a long time. All of his former convictions have to be shattered and replaced with new ones. He believes, first, that to get into bed with "consumption" means certain death; second, that strong medicine is a specific for all ailments and when this has failed all has failed; third, that a closed room with all 'cracks chinked' is the treatment for a 'cold.'

"So new is our field and so deep-grounded is the conviction that consumption is incurable that great difficulty was experienced during the first year in getting cases to enter the sanatorium and to remain long enough to effect a cure. Less difficulty is experienced now on account of the fact that practically all of our employees are discharged patients and they serve as a concrete illustration of the fact that tuberculosis is curable. Conversations between the incoming patient and the arrested case in the person of the employee are often amusing and instructive to the interested listener and show with what effort he discards his former ideas and his incredulity in the new. Concrete examples of the curability of the disease are helpful to all afflicted with tuberculosis, but with the negro they are almost essential."

The results in cure at Piedmont should not be compare to those at the other sanatoria. Forty per cent of Dr. Carter's cases in the first year were taken for segregation purposes solely, i. e., to take care of the patient who had literally no one to care for him in his dying condition, or to take an ignorant advanced case out of a home in which there were young children, thus saving the State eight or ten new cases of the disease. It is remarkable that with the ignorance regarding the disease sixty per cent of Dr. Carter's first cases were "treatable." In a total of 694 cases, 210 of whom were admitted solely for segregation and are excluded in the percentage, Dr. Carter shows 61 per cent improved. Of 55 cases admitted as incipient 54 were discharged improved, of 229 cases admitted as moderately advanced 125 were discharged as improved, while of 410 cases admitted as far advanced 114 were discharged as improved. The percentage of improvements in the first and second stages compare very favorably with other sanatoria. The percentage of improvements in the third stage is much less. In follow-up work by the sanatorium a report on cases discharged in the first two and a half years of operation shows one dead in 38 cases admitted as "incipient," or 3 per cent; sixteen dead in 95 cases admitted as "Moderately Advanced," or 17 per cent; 180 dead of 248 admitted as "Far Advanced," or 73 per cent. These results show the importance of early diagnosis.

The problem of segregation and also of providing treatment is a serious one. The ignorant negro consumptive is a menace to his entire household. He should be segregated, even though it be necessary to invoke the law to effect it. The charge at Piedmont is now $14.00 a month and hundreds of the patients found through clinic work cannot pay even this nominal sum. A field nurse recently reported an advanced case found through a clinic, living in a household with two families and a total of nine children. To leave him there is to court the infection of the children at least, thus giving nine new cases of illness and probable death, with their train of infections. This patient had no money and Piedmont no free beds. At the same set of clinics a similar home condition was found with a white patient, although in the latter instance the disease had already spread to two young children. The State must in the near future give further aid to this type of case.

It is apparent from the reports of the field staff that Piedmont's influence is not bounded by the confines of the property. Its ex-patients are, in many cases, as devoted to the cause as patients from any sanatorium in the Union. On various occasions they have shared the platform with the State speakers and have expressed such touching faith, gratitude and thankfulness as to deeply move their hearers. They seek opportunities to bear testimony and in several known instances have been persistent in their efforts to induce other patients to follow their example. Their influence for good is boundless and they frequently place themselves unreservedly at the call of the field force.

Your committee wishes to congratulate the State on the success of this work. In the Union there are only four sanatoria exclusively for negroes, having a total bed capacity of 154. The entire South has only 247 beds for negro consumptives. Of this total Virginia has 100. The Commonwealth is doing a piece of pioneer work of vital moment to the welfare of the country. That the work has been well done is apparent from all the evidence which could be secured. Your committee admits that it is only the beginning of a much larger work. It has elsewhere in this report asked that it be immediately increased. It is no longer simply an experiment. It has amply justified itself. Its results are probably reflected in the declining death rate for both races. Its more intimate results are reflected in the testimony of praise and thanksgiving made by the recipients of its benefits.

APPENDIX V.

Tuberculosis, An Economic Problem.

By COLONEL C. R. KEILEY.

The people of Virginia have guaranteed to them by the Constitution of the State certain rights, "namely the enjoyment of life and liberty, with the means of acquiring and possessing property and pursuing and obtaining happiness and safety."

These are rights which are tremendously consequential to the Commonwealth. Upon the individual possession of such rights, the prosperity, the prestige, the power of a democracy must depend; and, explaining these guarantees, the courts have held that even the private conduct or private business of any citizen may be regulated in the interest of "public health, safety and morals," and for no other reason.

If the personal affairs of a private citizen may be subjected to public control for the benefit of public health, it must obviously follow that it is a natural and proper function of the State to do all within its power to create and maintain conditions that ensure reasonable opportunity for healthful living.

The expression, "Health is a purchasable commodity," is now accepted as a truism. We know that the vast preponderance of diseases that afflict the race are communicable and preventable. Some are not communicable but are preventable. There are comparatively few that cannot be controlled by the regulation of living conditions, neighborhood surroundings and personal habits.

For the State to decide just what it should do for any particular phase of health work is for it to determine just what proportion of the means at its disposal should be expended for that specific endeavor; and to arrive at a conclusion based on economic findings rather than sentiment would seem to be the wiser method for a legislature to pursue.

Consequently it would appear logical to study the costs of tuberculosis, its wastage, its dead loss, then to appraise the expenditures already made, balancing the costs and the results, and then to calculate the probable gains from future work adequately financed and intelligently directed.

It is not the purpose of this paper to analyze the methods that have been employed in the campaign against tuberculosis or to deal with theories of care and cure; but no economic study could be wholly valuable which ignores two established findings.

Raymond Pearl, Ph. D., the eminent biologist, says: "Very few, if any, persons escape infection with tubercle bacilli at some time in their lives, especially if they live in large industrial cities. Fishberg, after reviewing the literature on the subject, says: 'No matter what the cause of death may have been, whether the persons knew they had been tuberculous or not, between fifty and one hundred per cent of people living in large cities show active, quiescent or healed tuberculous lesions in some organs of their bodies.'"

This very definite statement is quoted to indicate that whatever efforts may be directed toward the alleviation or eradication of tuberculosis are really efforts in behalf of all the people. Consequently a specific endeavor to help the clinically tuberculous could not properly be called a class effort, since there are few, if any, whose cases might not become clinical.

We have the duty of the State to guard the public health; we have authorities to testify to the pandemic character of tuberculous infection; we have the history of consistently developing public health efforts along general lines; it is for us here to study the economic call of tuberculosis, to appraise its drain upon the State.

If we should accept without further analysis the economic theories of Smith or Mill and calculate the wealth of a State by its total of investments and volume of business, the loss caused by tuberculosis would be difficult to determine with even a relative degree of accuracy. If we were to agree with Ruskin that the State is wealthiest that has the greatest number of happy, noble people we would have difficulty in setting forth the loss in figures. But if we take the more modern view, and the more logical, that the wealth of a State is best reckoned by the earning power of its constituent parts, whether capital or labor, we can arrive at an approximation that will yield a sane working hypothesis.

Ten years ago, Dr. Irving Fisher, of Yale University, estimated that each death from tuberculosis represented a money loss of eight thousand dollars. This estimate took into account the lost wages, the costs of care and the capitalized future earnings of the victim. During the last ten years, keeping pace with the higher living costs, the value of the individual has increased; but if we accept those figures of ten years ago as fair for today, Virginia's death loss from tuberculosis in 1920 exceeded $25,000,000.00, and in that year tuberculosis claimed its smallest annual toll of life.

This generalization is given for what it is worth, and it may have no value for the present study; but the factors employed by Dr. Fisher in estimating his tabulation have been used and extended for this paper. It has not been deemed necessary or expedient to make a microscopic survey of Virginia's tuberculosis history, but the definitely ascertainable local facts have been correlated with the scientific deductions from experiments elsewhere, so this paper may be taken as a rational compilation and digest.

It is a generally accepted doctrine that not less than one per cent of the population in any part of this country will have tuberculosis in an active form. This does not mean that all those who have active tuberculosis must accept a fatal ending to their trouble; but on the other hand, mortality figures give small encouragement to those who would under-rate the proportion of fatalities. Never yet has the death rate from tuberculosis in Virginia fallen as low as ten per cent of the total death rate, and this very palpably demonstrates the conservative character of the one per cent estimate.

It is notorious that the colored races, particularly the negro, are more susceptible to tuberculosis than are the whites; and, taking into account the percentage of negroes in Virginia with its population exceeding two million, three hundred thousand, it is safe to say that there are at all times in this State not less than 24,000 persons with active tuberculosis.

The Locke and Floyd study of five hundred cases is one of the accepted studies in disability periods. The authors of this paper investigated the cases of 244 persons who had died and 256 who were living at the time. The average duration of the disease for those who died was two years and one month, for those who were living it was two years and ten months.

These authors note that the period of partial disability is difficult to determine because the pressure of economic necessity keeps so many sick people at work, frequently forcing labor until total incapacity renders further attempts impossible.

Dr. Price, upon whose findings the Maryland commission on tuberculosis based its findings of a death loss for each individual victim of tuberculosis at $8,512.52, divides disability periods into partial and total; and this would seem to be the more scientific method of determining wastage. For the purpose of this study, we shall assume that the period of partial loss of earning power is too clearly demonstrable to be contradicted.

Actual investigations have led to the conclusion that advanced tuberculosis will show an average period of approximately one and a half years during which the victim, either before death or before his disease is satisfactorily arrested, will have virtually no earning power and is either a charge upon the State or a drain upon the resources of his family.

If we take 24,000 as the possible total of active cases in Virginia, we may safely assume that one-fourth of these, or 6,000, have this year and a half of total disability; and the following calculations are based upon that number.

The period of partial disability is not so easy to determine or even to estimate. If, however, we accept the Locke and Floyd study, it will be seen that the basis adopted in this paper can but be regarded as extremely conservative.

We have assumed that of the 18,000 remaining active cases, there are about 6,000 which will have a year of fifty per cent disability and 12,000 with a year of ten per cent disability. That such assumptions are conservative and defensible may be taken as shown when we consider that under this plan of procedure the year of highest living costs and greatest losses in wages, 1920, gives the Virginia table a lower total for death losses than is given for any similar number of deaths in any of the studies that are accepted as guides; and yet the costs of tuberculosis in this State for ten years, if capitalized, would yield at five per cent more than enough to pay the entire running costs of the Commonwealth.

In each of the years studied, 1914 to 1920, inclusive, the death list has been divided into wage-earners and non-earners, into white and black, into male and female; and these classifications have been used to determine the percentages for lost wages, average earnings for white males and white females, for black males and black females, have been taken.

Thus in 1914, the mortality table showed that 90 per cent of those who died from tuberculosis were wage-earners, 19 per cent were white men, 23 per cent were white women, 22 per cent were colored men, 26 per cent were colored women. The average wage of the white man was placed at $1.50 a day, for the white women and for the colored men at $1.00 a day and for the colored women at 60 cents a day. For that year the loss in wages amounted to $4,617,180.00.

In 1915, the mortality table showed thirteen per cent non-productive children; so that percentage was deducted before a classification was attempted. In that year the percentage of colored women who died was the same as for the preceding year, but each of the other three classes showed a one per cent decline. The wage losses for 1915 totaled $4,547,205.00.

In 1916, the mortality tables showed the exact percentages of the preceding year; but the losses were greater. Wages had risen. White men were earning $1.75 a day; white women and colored men were earning $1.25 a day; and colored women, 85 cents—an increase of 25 cents a day for each class. In that year, the wage-lost column showed $5,643,201.

The same rate of wages is taken for 1917 and the percentages of the classes is the same. The total wage loss was $5,600,429.00.

Nineteen hundred and eighteen witnessed a considerable increase in wages. White men were earning $2.25, white women and colored men, $1.75 a day; colored women were getting $1.25. Again the wage-earning percentages by classes were the same. The total loss was $7,934,287.00.

The percentages of the wage-earning groups were again identical and the wage tables showed no change. The total losses for 1919 were $7,501,612.00.

The 1920 table showed an increase in the death list of non-producers. The percentages of white men and women and of colored men each declined one point, but the percentage of colored women advanced a point. The same rate of wages prevailed; and the total wage loss was $7,204,948.00.

During these seven years, the lost wages of tuberculosis victims made the imposing total of $43,048,862.00.

It will be noted that the wage scale used is one that can only apply to the least skilled workers. Anyone who had anything to do with the employment of labor in any of the years from 1917 to 1920, inclusive, will recall that he had great difficulty in employing a laborer for any of the figures indicated here as having been current for that time. Furthermore such a study as this must naturally be general rather than specific; but it is impossible to overlook the losses of the highly skilled in trades and professions, for tuberculosis is no respecter of classes or conditions.

The second item in the debit against tuberculosis is the cost of care for the patient. Dr. Irving Fisher concludes, after an exhaustive analysis of other studies and a rather careful survey made by himself, that the period of active tuberculosis is from five to six years, and that from a year to three years before impairment noticeably reduces the daily wage, there is an occasional wage loss and an occasional employment of a physician.

Some years ago, Dr. Biggs estimated that the cost of the support and care of a disabled consumptive averaged $1.50 a day. This figure is accepted by Fisher and is certainly conservative. In some of the poorer households it may be that these costs would not be reached, certainly not until the later stages come; but the lower costs in such households would very probably be overbalanced by the moderately well-to-do and the still more fortunate who would at the first intimation of the disease seek a sanatorium. In this paper the cost of support and care is taken at $1.00 per diem for the years, 1914, 1915 and 1916; after that the $1.50 basis is employed.

No consideration is here given to the incidental care of the partially disabled, the outgo for the totally disabled is estimated for one-half the period of their total disability; yet the sum expended in this line of effort during the last seven years exceeds thirty-two million dollars, to be exact, $32,699,686.00. This includes the sums for the care of those who subsequently died.

Dr. Fisher figures the average earnings for workers at $700 per annum, this average including the wages of children in gainful occupations as well as adults. The tables of the Yale economist were prepared several years ago and they are now too low for existing conditions; but since they have served as the basis for several other studies they may as well be utilized for this one.

Nineteen hundred and fourteen was the first year of Virginia's mortality record. The 1914 tuberculosis figures were woefully incomplete. It is probable that all death records were more or less inaccurate since the vital statistics law was new and was not working smoothly. In 1914 only 3,727 deaths from tuberculosis were recorded at the bureau of vital statistics. The 1915 total was 4,003; and this was probably approximately accurate.

Since 1914, the death total has steadily lowered, except for 1918, the year of the influenza epidemic, when many mild cases became serious and many advanced cases fatal. The educational work of the State has been showing results; and last year the death list stood at 3,286.

Accepting $700 as an average earning power and capitalizing it on a basis of five per cent as actuaries do in estimating a life policy based on a single payment, Dr. Fisher assumed the average age at death as thirty-five years and figured the life value of a worker at $7,900. It is difficult, if not impossible, to estimate the value of the non-producing members of a family. Who can say whether the death of a mother is not a greater loss to the State than the death of a father or as great a loss?

In this study, life values as computed by the Virginia Insurance Bureau are taken. They are average figures for wage-earners and non-earners. They include the years within which the individual is a pecuniary deficit as well as the productive years. They are by five-year periods for 1914, 1915 and 1920; for ten-year periods for 1916, 1917, 1918, 1919.

These tables will be appended, but their totals are:

1915 .....	18,620,600
1916 .....	17,245,600
1917 .....	16,985,300
1918 .....	18,716,900
1919 .....	15,639,400
1920 .....	15,465,700
	$119,816,500

So we have these three elements of appraisable loss:

Life values .....	$119,816,500
Wage loss .....	43,048,862
Care and treatment.....	32,689,686
Total for seven years.....	$195,555,048

There are other items of loss which are not so easily appraisable, but are no less obvious. Professor Glover says: "The higher ages of the table show that the elimination of tuberculosis would have a decided effect on the longevity of the race." He says that if tuberculosis were not present the expectancy of life at twenty is forty-six additional years; but that under prevailing conditions a young man of twenty has this expectation reduced two years and 158 days owing to the presence of tuberculosis in his community.

In every Virginia community there is tuberculosis; so in every Virginian the life expectancy at twenty years is two and a half less than it should be and would be if tuberculosis were banished. The value of that life extension can be best gauged by appreciating that this added life all falls within the productive period.

According to Abbott's Life Tables for Massachusetts, based on mortality records of that State for the years 1893 to 1897, inclusive, the mean after life of the average person living at the age at which the average tuberculosis death occurs is thirty-two years. According to Dr. Lawrason Brown, of Trudeau, the mean after life of patients discharged from his sanatorium was sixteen years, just half the normal expectancy. Dr. Fisher regards that loss as excessive, but says that the life of the apparently cured consumptive will not be more than two-thirds of normal—twenty-four years instead of thirty-two.

So we have to add to our palpable losses these obvious but indeterminable losses, the lessened expectancy of the well man who lives in a community where there is tuberculosis and the still further decreased expectancy of the apparently cured tubercular patient. The former loss effects ninety-nine per cent of the entire adult population and may virtually be regarded as a general lowering of the age limit by approximately two and a half years; the latter loss is more wholesale as to the individual but infinitesimal so far as the community is concerned, eight for about one per cent or one month for the entire population.

There is, however, in the consideration of discharged patients or the apparently cured consumptives a fact of vital consequence. Incipient cases that have been cured show greater earnings and more working days than the moderately advanced, and these in turn show proportionately better than the advanced cases. This is admirably shown in Dr. Lyman's paper on the Gaylord Farm Sanatorium. He writes:

"The Gaylord Farm Sanatorium was opened September 30, 1904; and on May 1, 1911, the time at which our yearly reports are made, we had 676 discharged cases who had been away from the sanatorium six months and over. Of these only nine were reported lost, so that we can safely claim a high percentage of accuracy for our records. Thirty-four were school children and, having no earning capacity as yet, were omitted. This left 633 cases on the records on which these studies are based."

The report covers "140 incipient cases, 373 moderately advanced and 120 far advanced." The incipient cases showed an average working capacity amounting to seventy per cent of full time, the moderately advanced showed fifty-nine per cent capacity and the far advanced only twenty-three per cent. Furthermore the wage-earnings were approximately proportionate. The incipient cases reporting average earnings per annum of $1,020.60; the moderately advanced, $842.22; the far advanced, $192.10.

These figures are indicative of the after-life of the apparently cured consumptive. Even incipient cases, if they had proceeded far enough to require sanatorial care, subsequently averaged only seventy per cent of their normal earning capacity; while cases farther advanced showed proportionately lessened productivity.

Just how these deductions in capacity would show in those arrested cases which had never been in sanatoria is a hazard. What, if any, diminution of energy or earning power might be noted in border-line cases is the vainest speculation. But tuberculosis, once it becomes clinical, will almost inevitably lead to death or decreased values. Aside from the costs of care, its drain upon the community in dollars and cents is a matter of simple demonstration.

Now, how to cope with this enemy is something for the trained specialist and not for economic opinion. If our sanatoria were merely curative institutions it is questionable whether they would justify themselves or be a proper subject for general tax expenditure. Still the curative aspect cannot be ignored in an economic paper; because the earnings of discharged patients are increments to the wealth of the State.

The Massachusetts study, to which we have alluded and from which quotations have been made, shows that for every dollar invested at Gaylord farm there was a return of nine dollars in past and future earning, of which four dollars for one had been the result of only six years. This showing goes far toward justifying the sanatorium even as a curative establishment.

Figures for Catawba Sanatorium are less specific and are not in such detail as would warrant a venture at capitalization; but it is significant that the known earnings of Catawba's discharged patients for the six years, 1915 to 1920, inclusive, the last two years being incomplete, have totaled $2,517,698.28, considerably more than twice the cost of construction and maintenance for the institution.

It is too early to formulate a table for Blue Ridge, and Piedmont is naturally more difficult for the statistician. Still twenty-eight discharged Piedmont patients showed last year earnings of $15,959.10.

From the viewpoint of the taxpayer and the economist, sanatoria can justify their costs by showing that they are maintained for the general good and not for the specific benefit of the tuberculous patients. This can be demonstrated only by providing that they are educational institutions whose discharged patients are health propagandists, teachers of those who otherwise might become public charges. To what extent the sanatoria have met this theoretical requirement is a speculation which the writer would not care to make.

But it is safe to say that they are to an extent meeting that requirement; and certainly the educational work directly emanating from the tuberculosis division of the State Board of Health, together with its localized clinical work, can be made to have a vast and demonstrable money value. Determination and segregation can probably eliminate tuberculosis; but it is doubtful whether segregation could be effected; therefore, education must take the place of segregation; and the non-transference of the tubercle bacillus at the well conducted sanatorium is proof that education is not altogether an undesirable substitute.

Now since we know how the disease is transmitted, education will show how to prevent transmission. Since we know how incipient cases may be cured and sub-clinical cases kept below clinical manifestation, it is necessary only to educate in personal habits. A well rounded plan for tuberculosis work in any State having sanatoria should be not unlike the scheme of a State university with its extension departments going to the people who cannot come to it.

It would seem that eliminating hysteria and viewing the subject in a cool economic light the State might reasonably afford to spend on approved plans for combatting tuberculosis a reasonable percentage of the total cost of the disease; and it should so divide that percentage that the strictly educative work, aside from the specialized sanatorial care, should not suffer.

Malnutrition in children does not necessarily mean an inadequate food supply but it does mean that some necessary elements are lacking in the fare of the child. There are certain habits of living that may be desirable for all classes of people but not essential, while for the tuberculous they mean the difference between life and death. There are in every community border-line cases, difficult to locate as clinical or sub-clinical, yet which may be determined by clinical examinations properly conducted.

Education to be effective must be so financed that it can reach all the people through general publicity, the children through school examinations, the factory operatives and country districts through visiting lecturers and clinicians. No one has ever attempted a study that gives even the merest hint of the appraisable value of such a campaign; but it is significant of the difficulty of reaching specific cases of tuberculosis only to know that the morbidity statistics on tuberculosis rarely in any State show as great a volume as the mortality tables—apparently more people die of tuberculosis than have it.

Records of sanatoria show that more than eighty-five per cent of incipient cases of tuberculosis can be cured. All of those whose deaths total the alarming number of 26,229 in Virginia for the last seven years were at one time incipient cases that might most probably have been saved for future productivity.

The work in Virginia, moderately financed, has demonstrated what can be accomplished and gives promise of what might be done with adequate resources. As was noted in the first part of this paper, the first accurate statistical year was 1915, in which 4,003 died from tuberculosis. If this record had been maintained for the succeeding five years, 20,015 more people would have died; but, as a matter of fact, only 18,499 did die, or 1,516 less than might have been anticipated. If this fortunate result had been caused by one abnormally low year, it might fairly have been regarded as accidental; but with the exception of the "flu" year, 1918, the records show a consistently declining total.

If we take $8,000 as the average value of a life, we have here a saving of more than twelve million of dollars; and Virginia has expended from all sources for tuberculosis work during the last eight years only $1,478,091.73. This life saving alone has paid the State more than eight times the value of the total investment; and that investment includes three sanatoria which are permanent assets to the State.

There is, naturally, always one economic question that demands an answer when an outlay is contemplated. However necessary the expenditure, however able the spender is to raise the sum demanded, it is always needful to study the situation in order to determine what amount can be expended advantageously.

It is not for the writer of this paper to answer that question. Those who have specialized in this work are far abler, far better qualified to give an opinion; but it is elemental in economics that any investment that promises a return vastly beyond normal and gives good reasons for the certainty of that return is a wise investment to make. Money in commercial pursuits can hardly give with safety a promise of more than eight per cent; if money spent for tuberculosis yields eight for one, the question resolves itself apparently down to the measure of the amount that students of the subject believe can be spent intelligently to produce results.

APPENDIX IV.

Notes for the Legislative Committee on Tuberculosis

By C. H. MORRISSETT

The joint resolution adopted by the General Assembly in 1920 directs the committee created thereby "to investigate the laws of other jurisdictions" relating to tuberculosis "and to report to the next session of the General Assembly a plan for the eradication of tuberculosis from this Commonwealth." The committee is further directed to accompany its plan with the necessary bill or bills to carry the same into effect. (S. J., 1920, p. 380.)

The eradication of tuberculosis from this Commonwealth is "a consummation devoutly to be wished," but it is manifest that any hope that such result can be obtained in a short time is vain. It will take years of constant work and hundreds of thousands of dollars. The problem has two branches: (1) The prevention of infection to such an extent as may be practicable; and (2) the cure of persons who have become infected. Both branches are equally important and demand the services of all the agencies available.

The examination of the laws of other States, representative in character, convinces us that the laws of Virginia compare very favorably with the laws of other States. While laws are important, their aggressive administration, made possible by adequate funds, is equally, if not more, important. Our State Board of Health is given extensive powers to adopt and enforce rules and regulations to promote and preserve the public health.

The board has power to provide for the care, segregation, and isolation of persons having, or suspected of having, any communicable, contagious, or infectious disease (Code, section 1487). The board is required to erect and maintain temporary or permanent buildings or camps for the treatment of tuberculosis in such localities as may seem proper. At such sanatoria the board must provide for the treatment, by the most advanced methods, of the tuberculosis patients in the State at a minimum expense to the patient (Code, section 1491). The board is given ample authority to carry on educational work by publishing and distributing such information as may contribute to the preservation of the public health, and the prevention of disease (Code, section 1487). Our law also contemplates that there shall be a live local board of health in every county and city in this State. The statute provides that the State Board of Health shall annually appoint three regularly licensed physicians of each county or corporation, who shall, with the county clerk and chairman of the board of supervisors, or the mayor of the corporation, as the case may be, constitute a county, town, or city board of health (Code, section 1492). The powers and duties of the local boards seem to be adequately prescribed. It is absolutely necessary to have a live local board of health in every county and city. This is the sine qua non of health administration, particularly with reference to tuberculosis.

Under our law, in addition to sanatoria established by the State Board of Health, the localities are given authority to establish tuberculosis sanatoriums, but an election is provided for. This is hardly desirable because too cumbersome.

Nevertheless, the writer is not prepared to say that the provision for an election should be eliminated (Code, section 1507). The Code also authorizes the board of supervisors of any county, or the council or other governing body of any city or town, on the advice of the State Board or its local board of health, to appropriate money to convey to and help maintain at any of the State sanatoria any indigent person known to be suffering from tuberculosis, who shall have been a resident and citizen of such county, city or town for at least twelve months (Code, section 1506).

It is important to examine the Virginia law on the subject of the control of communicable diseases, especially tuberculosis—that is to say, to point out how our laws seek to establish safe-guards against infection.

Every physician practicing in this Commonwealth who knows or suspects that any person whom he is called upon to visit, or who comes to him, suffering from tuberculosis must make report in writing, on blanks to be furnished for that purpose by the State Board of Health, to the executive officer of the board of health of the county, town or city in which such person may be located, over his own signature, and giving the particulars of the case. For failure to report a penalty is prescribed (Code, section 1515). There is also an adequate provision relating to persons suffering from tuberculosis who violate the laws prohibiting expectoration in public places and vehicles, or who deliberately and continuously place the health of any other person in danger of infection with such disease (Code, section 1516). It is to be observed, however, that this section applies only to the most careless and reckless class of patients. Public drinking cups are prohibited—a most excellent provision and one which should be rigidly enforced (Acts 1918, page 486). Towels for common use are prohibited (Code, section 1517). Persons suffering from contagious diseases must be excluded from the public free schools while in that condition (Code, section 1529). But tuberculosis is not a contagious disease. It will be hereinafter seen that other States very wisely exclude from schools pupils or other persons who are suffering from open cases, and it would seem to be a hopeless task to try to eradicate tuberculosis without adequate laws to exclude from all public gatherings in buildings all persons, infant or adult, who are suffering from open pulmonary tuberculosis.

For sometime there has been in force a section which is so comprehensive in its scope that it is questionable if it was intended to apply to tuberculosis, although this is an infectious disease. This section is now section 1503 of the Code, and read as follows:

“It shall be unlawful for any person who knows himself to be infected with any dangerous, contagious, or infectious disease, or who has recently had such disease, and has not cleansed his person and clothes so as to be free from the infection, to go into the company of any one who is liable to take the infection without warning such person of his being so infected, or to go into any church or other house used for public worship or for school purposes, or to go into any mine, mill, factory, shop, store, warehouse, depot, train, ship, hotel, restaurant, or dwelling belonging to any other person, or to go into any courthouse, jail, asylum, or almshouse, or to go into any like house, place, or building.

“Any person violating the provisions of this section shall, upon conviction, be fined not less than ten nor more than two hundred dollars, or confined in jail not more than three months, or both.”

As applied to tuberculosis patients, the section is unreasonable in some respects, and cannot be enforced. However, it should be retained, and such other laws as may be made applicable especially to tuberculosis can be in aid of the section quoted.

Certain occupations should be closed to persons suffering from open pulmonary tuberculosis. Under the law now in force no person is permitted to work in a slaughter house or like place who is known to be suffering with any contagious or infectious disease (Code, section 1221). This provision is very good so far as it goes, but there should be a general law prohibiting persons who have open cases from engaging in all occupations the nature of which is such that innumerable opportunities are thereby presented for the spread of the disease. This principle is further recognized by section 1545 of the Code, which requires local boards of health to prohibit the employment in any laundry or public washhouse of any person having an infectious or contagious disease. The principle being of primary importance, it should, as stated, and as is done in other States, be further extended. For instance, it should be extended to teachers and other employees in public or private schools, janitors of schools, nurses, employees in restaurants, public eating houses, soda water places, barber shops, hotels, commercial canneries and all establishments having to do with the handling of food intended for sale and human consumption.

Virginia, along with other States, has statutes governing the disinfection of apartments after they have been vacated by consumptive patients (Code, section 1548, 1549). Expectorating in public places, buildings and conveyances is punishable (Code, section 1550). The necessity for segregating persons suffering from tuberculosis, who are in public institutions, such as prisons, almshouses, and hospitals, is also recognized by the Virginia law (Code, sections 1543, 1546, 1547).

The other States whose health laws have been examined include Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin, New York, Pennsylvania, California, New Jersey, North Carolina and Alabama. The following notes are mainly confined to such laws as it is believed the committee should consider in order to perfect our laws.

OHIO

Under the laws of Ohio persons afflicted with tuberculosis, or any other communicable or infectious disease, are prohibited from being employed in or about any commercial cannery (Ohio Public Health Manual, 1920, page 141). It is also provided that no person suffering from or afflicted with tuberculosis or a contagious disease shall be employed in or about any part of a restaurant or its kitchen, or handle foodstuffs or products used therein. The State Fire Marshal and his deputies are given power to compel a person handling foodstuffs in any restaurant or hotel to present a certificate from a reputable physician showing him or her to be free from any infectious or contagious disease (Id., page 159). In Ohio, also, particular attention is given to the examination of school children, teachers and school janitors, and whenever the school physician finds that a school child, teacher or janitor is suffering from positive "open" pulmonary tuberculosis, or a contagious disease, the school physician is required promptly to send such child, teacher, or janitor home, with a note, in the case of the child, to its parents or guardian, briefly stating the discovered facts, and advising that the family physician be consulted. If any teacher or janitor is found to have positive "open" pulmonary tuberculosis, or other communicable disease, his or her employment must be discontinued upon the expiration of the contract therefor, or, at the option of the board of education, suspended upon such terms as to salary as the board may deem just until the school physician shall have certified to a recovery from such disease. The importance of segregating school children who are suffering with tuberculosis is also recognized by law and the board of education in any city school district is authorized to establish such special elementary schools as it deems necessary for persons of school age who are afflicted with tuberculosis, and in such case the board may cause all persons within such district, so afflicted, to be excluded from the regular elementary schools (Id., pages 353, 355).

ILLINOIS

Most of the laws of Illinois relating to tuberculosis are on the subject of sanatoria. In Virginia the question of sanatoria is of course simply a financial problem as there is plenty of law on the subject.

When we turn to the rules and regulations for the control of tuberculosis issued by the Illinois department of public health, we find several important regulations. For instance, Rule 10 excludes from schools children suffering from "open" pulmonary tuberculosis and also prohibits any person suffering from an open case from being employed as a teacher in any school or in any other capacity in or about a school building; Rule 11 excludes from occupations involving the handling of foods all persons suffering from open cases, and Rule 12 prohibits persons suffering from open cases from engaging in the nursing, attendance or care of young children or of sick persons.

WISCONSIN

In this State parents, guardians or other persons having custody of children are prohibited from allowing children afflicted with a dangerous communicable disease to attend school (see Powers and Duties of Board of Health, Wisconsin, Eighth Edition, 1918, page 20).

NEW YORK

The New York State Department of Health issues a commendable pamphlet on "What You Should Know About Tuberculosis," and it is recommended that our State Department of Health, unless it already does so, should publish and distribute broadcast a similar pamphlet.

The New York law, in so far as it relates to the protection of the general public from infected persons, is not, perhaps, superior to our own. As in Virginia, officers and others must report cases of tuberculosis. Health officers are required to examine sputum on request. Very adequate provision is made for the disinfection of premises after the vacation thereof by an infected person. There is also a section of the New York law which prohibits carelessness of a person having tuberculosis, but our law on this particular subject would seem to be sufficient (see Code, section 1516). The New York law relating to the control of dangerous and careless patients is also good, but the situation is taken care of in Virginia. New York has no other laws that would seem to call for particular mention.

PENNSYLVANIA

This State recognizes the importance of excluding from certain occupations persons suffering from tuberculosis. The section, in so far as it relates to tuberculosis, reads as follows:

"That no person or persons, firms, corporations or common carrier, operating or conducting any hotel, restaurant, dining car, or other public eating place in this Commonwealth, shall hereafter employ or keep in their employ, in the capacity of cook, waiter, chambermaid, kitchen help, or other house servant, any person or persons who is or are suffering from * * * active tuberculosis of the lungs * * *; and all persons, so employed, who, at the time of the passage of this act, are suffering from any of the said diseases, shall at once be excluded from such employment in such hotel, restaurant, dining car or other public eating place." (Digest of Laws of Pennsylvania Relating to Public Health, published by the State Department of Health, 1916, page 80.)

The importance of adequate disinfection of premises vacated by patients is also recognized (Id., page 89). No person having tuberculosis of the lungs can be a pupil, teacher, janitor or other employee in any public school, unless it be a special school carried on under the regulations made for such schools by the Commissioner of Health (Id., page 95). The laws of this State offer no further suggestions.

CALIFORNIA

The State of California has very little legislation on the subject of tuberculosis, and a reading of the laws furnishes no suggestions of value. The State Board of Health is required by the law to maintain a bureau of tuberculosis, but there is no necessity for any legal sanction of the bureau of tuberculosis established by the Virginia Health Department.

NEW JERSEY

New Jersey has only a few laws on the subject of tuberculosis and no suggestions can be obtained from them that have not already been mentioned.

NORTH CAROLINA

The laws of North Carolina on the subject of tuberculosis are not superior to our own.

ALABAMA

The health laws of Alabama do not furnish any suggestion concerning tuberculosis legislation that are not mentioned in connection with preceding statements concerning the laws of other States. In Alabama they have a State tuberculosis commission, but in Virginia all tuberculosis work should be directed by the State Health Department. The creation of additional boards and commissions not absolutely necessary should be discountenanced.

CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

The study made of the laws of these representative States convinces us that the laws of Virginia are very good and progressive. It is recommended, however, that bills be drawn to exclude from the occupations indicated above all persons who have open cases, and to require any person engaged in any such occupation to furnish the local health officer or his representative, on reasonable notice, a certificate from a reputable physician of freedom from open pulmonary tuberculosis. It is further recommended that children having open cases be excluded from the public schools and that suitable provision be made to discover all such cases: Acts 1920, page 495, should be made compulsory.

SUPPLEMENTARY NOTE.

The writer is not informed to what extent State sanatoria make provision for the negro population. It is manifest that negroes are just as proficient in spreading tuberculosis as are white people—indeed more so, because more of them have it in proportion to the population and their powers of resistance to the disease are far less. Adequate treatment of negroes, therefore, who, as a rule, have no money, would be necessary in any plan adopted for the eradication of this disease. People with money need little or nothing from the State in the way of tuberculosis activities. It is only those who are without money, or are in only moderate circumstances. Of course, these classes constitute the great majority of the population, both white and black.

2. The appropriations provided for in this act for making loans to students at the several State institutions shall be expended, upon such terms, and according to such rules, as may be prescribed by the respective governing boards of the institutions for which the appropriations are made, in making loans to needy and deserving students of talent and character from Virginia in said institutions for the purpose of aiding these to obtain an education at such institutions, who might not be able otherwise to do so. 5. No State department, institution or other agency receiving appropriations under the provisions of this act shall exceed the amount of its appropriations, except in an emergency, and then only with the consent and approval of the Governor in writing, first obtained; and if any such State department, institution or other agency shall exceed the amount of its appropriation without such consent and approval of the Governor, there shall be no reimbursement of said excess, nor shall there be any liability or obligation upon the State to make any appropriation hereafter to meet such deficit, and the members of any governing board of any State department, institution or other agency, or, if there be no governing board, the head of any State department, institution or other agency, making any such excessive expenditures—in the case of members of governing boards, who shall have voted therefor—shall, in the discretion of the Governor, be deemed guilty of neglect of official duty, and be subject to removal therefor.

It shall not be lawful for the Auditor of Public Accounts to pay any State department, institution or other agency, including the State hospitals for the insane and the State Colony for Epileptics and the Feeble-Minded at Colony, any money except as is provided for in this act, or in pursuance of some act of the General Assembly making special appropriation therefor.

7. None of the monies mentioned in this act shall be expended for any other purposes than those for which they are specifically appropriated, and it shall be the duty of the Governor, as chief budget officer of the State, or his deputy, to see that this provision is strictly observed; and, should he find that the said monies are not being expended in accordance with the provisions of this act, he is hereby given the power to restrain the Auditor of Public Accounts from making further disbursements, in whole or in part, out of said appropriations, to the offending State department, institution, officer or other agency receiving appropriations under the provisions of this act; provided, however, that the several appropriations made by this act out of the general fund of the State treasury may not only be used for the purposes specified in this act, but authority is hereby given to the governing board of any State department, institution or other agency, or, if there be no governing board, to the head of such department, institution or other agency named in this act, to transfer, within the respective department, institution or other agency, any such appropriations from the object for which specifically appropriated or set aside to some other object deemed more necessary in view of later developments, subject, however, in every case, to the consent and approval of the Governor, in writing, first obtained; and provided that the total amount appropriated to the respective department, institution or other agency shall in no case be exceeded; and, further provided, that should appropriations be withheld by the Governor from any State department, institution, officer, or other agency, named in this act, as herein provided, or should transfers be authorized by the Governor, as herein provided, he shall set forth fully, in each case, the reasons for withholding

Commission on Development of Hampton Roads, Virginia

To the General Assembly of Virginia:

The undersigned members of the Commission on the Development of Hampton Roads, created by an act of the General Assembly of March 16, 1920, and appointed by the Governor, the President of the Senate, and Speaker of the House of Delegates, beg to submit the following report of their work:

MEETINGS.

Beside the meeting for organization, your Commission has held meetings, as follows:

Norfolk.....	March 9, 1921
Newport News.....	April 19, 1921
Roanoke.....	May 17, 1921
Richmond.....	June 13, 1921
Portsmouth.....	July 22, 1921
Norton.....	September 13, 1921
Bristol.....	September 14, 1921
Roanoke.....	December 22, 1921

These meetings were held under the auspices of the chambers of commerce and boards of trade in the respective cities designated.

INVESTIGATION.

This Commission was created and its investigations conducted on the theory that the Port of Hampton Roads is a State asset of tremendous value to all the people of the Commonwealth. The Commission's investigation was directed toward present conditions of the port and its future needs.

THE PORT OF HAMPTON ROADS.

The Port of Hampton Roads is centrally located on the Atlantic coast and is ideally situated from the standpoint of climate, accessibility to the interior and proximity to the old established world trade routes. Surrounding Hampton Roads are four cities—Norfolk, Portsmouth, Newport News and Hampton. These cities constitute a live progressive community, some indication of which is given by the following table, showing their growth since 1850:

Year.	Norfolk.	Portsmouth.	Newport News.	Hampton.	Total.	Increase.
1850.....	14,326	8,122	.....	787	23,235	.....
1860.....	14,620	9,496	.....	1,848	25,964	2,729
1870.....	19,229	10,492	733	2,300	32,754	6,790
1880.....	21,966	11,390	948	2,684	36,988	4,234
1890.....	34,871	13,268	4,449	2,513	55,101	18,113
1900.....	46,624	17,427	19,635	2,764	86,450	31,349
1910.....	67,452	33,190	20,205	5,505	126,352	39,902
1920.....	115,777	54,387	35,596	6,138	211,898	85,546

A more definite idea of the importance of Hampton Roads to the State of Virginia can be had when it is considered that the cities and counties surrounding this port pay a total of eleven million seven hundred and two thousand seven hundred and twenty-four ($11,702,724) dollars in taxes into the State treasury annually. This total represents 18.7 per cent of the aggregate revenue derived by the State from taxable improved property.

The depth at the entrance to the harbor of Norfolk and Portsmouth was originally 21 feet. The first project for improvement, adopted in 1876, called for a main channel 10 miles long, 500 feet wide and 25 feet deep. A depth of 28 feet was authorized in 1898, of 30 feet in 1907, of 35 feet in 1910, and a channel of 40 feet deep and 750 feet wide in 1917. Other work of great importance has been done on channels in the eastern, southern and western branches of the Elizabeth river, in enlarging the anchorage grounds, etc.

The original depth of the channel to Newport News was 25 feet. A depth of 30 feet was authorized in 1902, a depth of 35 feet, by a new and shorter route, in 1910, and an increase from 400 to 600 feet in the width of the channel in 1917.

The minimum usable depth over Thimble Shoal, which lies between Hampton Roads and the ocean, was originally 30 feet. A channel through this shoal 35 feet deep and 500 feet wide was authorized in 1910 and an increase to 40 feet in depth and 750 feet in width in 1917.

Up to June 30, 1920, the expenditures made by the Federal government have been as follows:

Norfolk-Portsmouth harbor .....	$5,274,500 00
Channels to Newport News.....	967,802 00
Thimble Shoal channel.....	1,094,290 00
Total .....	$7,336,592 00

These figures are particularly interesting when considered in connection with a comparative statement of waterborne tonnage, passing through the principal Atlantic and Gulf ports. The following table is given for such comparison:

	1919 Tonnage.	1919 Valuation.	Total to 1920 Appropriation.
Boston .....	8,680,243	$752,276,008	$12,675,827 50
New York and Newark, including waterways but not Harlem river .....	85,010,249	8,131,879,524	51,766,991 84
Philadelphia and waterways..	34,394,293	2,727,137,047	33,327,141 66
Baltimore .....	14,055,906	873,891,200	9,963,180 00
Norfolk and Newport News....	33,628,245	4,232,428,294	7,336,592 00
Charleston .....	863,987	127,094,176	6,991,966 00
Savannah .....	1,736,327	597,327,280	13,194,363 58
New Orleans .....	9,202,773	836,343,376	26,941,730 54
Galveston, harbor and channel, and Texas city.....	7,507,987	1,464,997,641	16,616,000 00

From this table it will be noted that for 1919 Hampton Roads was the third port on the Atlantic coast in tonnage handled. Despite this fact, however, Hampton Roads has received a smaller total of Federal appropriations than any port on the Atlantic coast except Charleston, which handled only a little over two per cent as much tonnage as this port.

FOREIGN COMMERCE.

In 1870, the value of imports and exports of Hampton Roads was $1,321,891. In 1910, Hampton Roads ranked thirteenth among the ports of the United States with a foreign commerce valued at $16,486,833. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921, Hampton Roads was the first American port in the total tonnage of exports and was the second American port in the total of export and import tonnage, New York being first. In valuation of export and import tonnage, Hampton Roads was seventh for this same period. The following table gives the movement of export and import tonnage through the principal ports of the United States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921:

Ports.	Total Trade Tons.	Export Tons.	Import Tons.
New York .....	21,140,122	11,542,143	9,597,979
Hampton Roads .....	12,508,360	12,232,458	275,902
Norfolk .....	8,024,271	7,805,622	218,649
Newport News .....	4,484,089	4,426,836	57,253
New Orleans .....	9,083,851	5,481,993	3,601,858
Baltimore .....	8,866,212	5,946,733	2,919,479
Philadelphia .....	7,606,345	4,461,577	3,144,768
Galveston .....	5,759,446	3,501,416	2,258,030
Port Arthur .....	3,775,333	1,564,052	2,211,281
Boston .....	3,061,071	711,708	2,349,363
San Francisco .....	2,993,144	1,626,803	1,368,341
Baton Rouge .....	1,553,901	335,472	1,018,429
Seattle .....	1,213,433	720,284	493,110

For the calendar year 1920, Hampton Roads was the second American port in total net registered tonnage in vessels entering and clearing in foreign trade. The foregoing figures emphasize the importance of building up the import trade of Hampton Roads.

Particularly interesting is the remarkable growth in foreign trade the port has experienced since just prior to the World War. The following table is all the evidence that is needed to show that the wartime acceleration to commerce through Virginia's port was not merely a temporary spurt, which was soon to pass:

Calendar Year.	Total Valuation.
1914 .....	33,251,758
1915 .....	131,798,308
1916 .....	139,512,147
1917 .....	171,359,249
1918 .....	135,109,524
1919 .....	179,053,678
1920 .....	329,704,915

THE PORT AS A STATE ASSET.

The foregoing detailed figures are given for the purpose of showing the remarkable growth of Hampton Roads up to date, which growth has been, notwithstanding the very small part that the communities, the State and the Federal government have done, compared with what has been accomplished by similar agencies at other ports.

Outside of developments created by the United States government, as a necessary adjunct to war operations, and a very few private developments, the Hampton Roads port facilities have been constructed by the railroads. Most conspicuous among such developments are the coal and merchandise piers of the Chesapeake and Ohio and Norfolk and Western Railways, the coal pier of the Virginian Railway, and the merchandise piers of the Southern, Seaboard Air Line and Atlantic Coast Line Railways.

Hampton Roads has a tremendous advantage in its Belt Line Railroad, owned jointly by the railroads entering the port, and making it possible for them to co-ordinate as a unit for purposes of shipside delivery of cargo, or for shipment of imports into the interior. This belt line now completely encircles the cities of Norfolk and Portsmouth, one terminus being at Port Norfolk, on the Portsmouth side of the Elizabeth river, and the other at Sewall's Point, on the Norfolk side. It forms a physical connection with the eight roads whose lines enter Hampton Roads connecting with the Chesapeake and Ohio and the Pennsylvania (N. Y. P. & N.), by floatbridge at Sewall's Point for the handling of cars from barges. Such a belt line alone gives Hampton Roads a tremendous advantage over other ports having less satisfactory and complete railroad co-ordination. This service will be greatly improved by the establishment of a new belt line floatbridge on property of the city of Norfolk, near Sewall's Point. Another advantage of the belt line is the fact that it affords facilities attractive to industries that may be located thereon.

The value of the Port of Hampton Roads to the State of Virginia is unquestioned. The effect the port of New York has had on the growth of New York State is ample evidence of what an asset to the Commonwealth a great port can be. In Hampton Roads Virginia has a port which is not only easy of development to the highest point by reason of its splendid, ice-free harbor, but which can command a tremendous share of the country's foreign trade on account of its strategic commercial location.

It is fully appreciated by the shippers of the United States and by the Federal government that dependence on one or two great ports as eastern gateways for foreign trade has in the past resulted in costly delays and disastrous port congestion. Foreign traders are looking for new gateways where, by reason of port facilities and conditions, tie-ups cannot so easily occur. New York is learning a costly lesson, and many shippers who have been using the metropolis and other Atlantic, as well as gulf ports, are now looking toward Hampton Roads as a possible avenue for relief. Hampton Roads can be made a great national asset by the creation of proper conditions and facilities, since the foundation on which to build has been so substantially laid, both by the hand of Providence and the hand of man. Virginia's port today has an opportunity which can be grasped in full measure by prompt action. The concrete benefits will be an enormously increased flow of money through the State as a direct result of increased commerce, and the attraction to the State of great business and industrial enterprises, the resulting prosperity being felt in a tangible way in every corner of the Commonwealth.

PUBLIC EXPENDITURES.

Public aid for port development has long since passed out of the field of experiment, and has become a recognized, profitable business, both from the standpoint of actual earnings on the investment and the indirect benefits secured thereby. Public aid has sometimes taken the form of encouraging legislation, but more often has resulted in large expenditures by either the city or the State.

In Virginia the city of Norfolk is now operating about half of the Army Supply Base on a basis that has proven the practicability of public terminals at Hampton Roads, and the Norfolk Port Commission is planning to expend $5,000,000 to construct additional terminal facilities to be operated by the municipality on half a mile of waterfront now owned by the city.

The city of Newport News is also fully alive to the importance of additional facilities. Newport News already has a splendid small boat harbor which was constructed by the city.

The Hampton Roads communities are cognizant of the possibilities of the port, and are working together in the greatest harmony, realizing that their interests are identical. Progressive steps already taken by the cities exemplify their confidence in the port's future.

WHAT IS BEING DONE TO DEVELOP PORTS IN OTHER STATES.

In this connection, the progressive steps being taken by either the State or city governments at practically all the important ports of America, and many of the smaller ones, is significant. With few exceptions, the development of port facilities at ports of the United States is being done by either the States or the cities, or both. A few instances of what is occurring at American ports will give some idea of how firmly this idea is taking hold.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Boston, Mass.—Directors of the Port of Boston, created by the city and State, control two modern piers owned by the State, four ferry docks and a large tract of undeveloped waterfront, about 1,250 acres, this land being valued at several millions. Directors have built a drydock which is next to the largest on the Atlantic coast, the largest being located at the Norfolk Navy Yard. State's expenditures have exceeded $15,000,000, and additional developments are planned. The State commissioner of public works of Massachusetts has just outlined plans for the establishment at Boston of a terminal for the receipt and storage of Pacific coast lumber, the terminal to be the focal point for the distribution of this commodity throughout New England.

New Bedford, Mass.—This city spent $100,000 for the purchase of four piers and deeded two of them to the State upon the State's undertaking to spend $350,000 for one modern pier with steel and concrete shed. The city owns more than half a mile of water frontage.

RHODE ISLAND.

Providence, R. I.—In the last few years the State of Rhode Island, in connection with the city of Providence, has spent about $4,000,000 in the building of piers, warehouses, etc. The Port of Providence has been developed by the State and city, a large frontage being owned by both the city and the State.

CONNECTICUT.

New London, Conn.—The State of Connecticut owns a considerable frontage on the main harbor in New London and controls additional frontage, with privilege of purchase. Total expenditures by the State have exceeded $3,500,000.

From the preceding statements it will be noted that the New England States are engaging extensively in the improvement of certain harbors. In other words, the support of the States has been given to the development of their harbors.

NEW YORK.

New York, N. Y.—Port terminal holdings of the city are valued at about $150,000,000, while the State's holdings are valued at approximately $15,000,000. The States of New York and New Jersey have recently joined in legislation, creating the Port of New York Authority, which body is working out a comprehensive plan for the development of both the New York and New Jersey portions of the harbor. It is proposed to spend about $200,000,000 in this development, part of which is now under way.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The Port of Philadelphia is controlled by a port commission, under authority granted by the State. About $50,000,000 has been spent by this commission in the development of Philadelphia's waterfront, the State assisting.

MARYLAND.

Baltimore, Md.—The Port of Baltimore is being developed by a board of harbor commissioners, created by authorization of the legislature. Holdings of the city of Baltimore are valued at about $20,000,000. The last legislature approved the expenditure of an additional $50,000,000 for the creation of additional port facilities.

GEORGIA.

Georgia Ports.—The Georgia legislature has just created the port and harbor terminal commission, which commission is making investigations preparatory to the development underwritten by the State of one or more of the State's ports.

FLORIDA.

Jacksonville, Fla.—In addition to developments created by the city in the past few years, this port is now planning an expenditure of $2,000,000. About half of the recent bond issue of this amount is to be used for dock improvements and development.

LOUISIANA.

New Orleans, La.—The State of Louisiana controls nearly all the waterfront at this port, and bonds to the extent of about $30,000,000 have been issued by the State. The total State development is now valued at about $140,000,000, which development has never cost the taxpayers one cent. The facilities have been so highly successful that the properties have paid all interest and sinking fund charges for the retirement of bonds, and in addition have earned astonishing net profits. For instance, for the year 1920 the net profits accrued to the State was $654,167.21. Other States have been similarly successful.

In addition to the State development, the city of New Orleans is now completing an inland industrial canal at a cost of about $23,000,000. The State's properties are administered by the New Orleans Port Commission, created by the legislature about twenty years ago.

CALIFORNIA.

Los Angeles, Calif.—The city of Los Angeles has spent, or is spending, several million dollars in port development.

San Francisco, Calif.—The State of California owns most of the frontage on San Francisco bay, and the State now has an investment of more than $12,000,000 at this port. Its extensive piers and terminal railway are controlled by the State harbor commission.

WASHINGTON.

Seattle, Wash.—The public terminals of Seattle are owned by the city and were constructed at a cost of $9,000,000. The present valuation of these properties is $18,000,000. The facilities consist of six piers and a grain elevator of 1,200,000 bushels capacity. The smallest part of net earnings of the Seattle terminals last year was that of the grain elevator, which has showed a net profit in the past two years of $24,474.52.

OREGON.

Portland, Ore.—Bonds to the amount of $9,910,200 have been issued for the construction of port terminal facilities at Portland, Ore., which expenditure has given the city of Portland terminal assets totaling $10,757,137. Last year the Portland grain elevator handled 11,590,000 bushels of grain with a resulting net profit to the city of $30,847.47. The surplus which has been created by the earnings of the entire Portland terminal today amounts to $552,574.09.

STATE ASSISTANCE.

There are a great many ways, your Commission believes, in which the State of Virginia, at this time, can assist in the development of Hampton Roads as a State asset. The assistance of the various trade organizations in different sections of the State can be made a material factor in this movement. Efforts on the part of the State can bring about a closer relationship between Virginia and the States tributary to her port. Good highways, favorable industrial taxation, carefully safeguarding the State's interest in the matter of export and import rates, and other activities of this kind should be pushed vigorously. Such State legislation as will further the State's interests should be considered.

PILOTAGE.

The pilotage question has been considered by your Commission in connection with other port development factors, and we find that the Virginia Pilot Association constitutes an experienced body of highly trained, efficient and responsible men; that they have been invaluable in keeping the Port of Hampton Roads open when marine strikes were on, both in peace and war; that the pilotage rates now in force were fixed by the General Assembly in 1908; that pilot apprentices are required to serve an apprenticeship of five years and can only become certified pilots after thorough examination. The system of apprenticeship appears to be that required in other trades.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

We recommend a permanent State port commission for the development and improvement of Hampton Roads, to be composed of three members—appointed by the Governor, with the advice and counsel of the State Senate; one to be a harbor development engineer, with full authority to investigate all matters pertaining to the port; this commission to take up and work out the following necessary suggestions pertaining directly to the port development, in suitable co-operation at all times with the State and National governments.

1. Keep in touch and obtain the assistance of, at all times, trade associations of all cities and sections throughout the State so as to emphasize and make continuous the interest in the development of Hampton Roads port.

2. Keep thoroughly advised as to the needs of the port, especially for appropriations from the Federal government, and to secure the earnest interest of the congressional delegations not only of Virginia, but of North Carolina, Tennessee, West Virginia and Ohio in these appropriations, and assist in having them approved by the rivers and harbors committee of both houses of Congress at such times as appropriations are sought. The Port of Hampton Roads is not only the principal port of Virginia, but also of large sections of the other above-named States.

3. Follow-up the question of a State highway system which will extend from the harbor cities to connect with other State roads already built, or under construction, in the various directions from which truck and other business can be brought to the port. In this connection they should keep in close touch with the State Highway Commission to see that the roads needed into the port cities are included in early budgets and estimates, and authority given for same.

4. Have provided by State and Federal authorities adequate immigration station facilities on Hampton Roads, and in connection therewith develop fully the quarantine facilities of the district. In this connection close contact should be had with the several railroad connections diverging from the port.

5. Give constant attention to having our representatives in Congress follow up the matter of suitable fortifications at Cape Henry and Cape Charles, particularly Cape Henry at this time.

6. Consider carefully and recommend to the General Assembly a system of taxation which will not be injurious to the industrial development of Hampton Roads.

7. Obtain suitable State legislation which will prevent the waters of Hampton Roads from being polluted by oil and other objectionable matter, which is now a menace to fish life and which establishes a fire risk to buildings, piers and warehouses bordering on the water.

8. Investigate all rates on export and import tonnage through the Port of Hampton Roads with a view to having all such rates so as not to be discriminatory to the port.

9. Obtain a permit from the Federal and State governments to construct a new modern hotel on the site of the Chamberlain hotel, Fortress Monroe, Virginia.

10. Make a study of development of inland waterways, including both rivers and canals, connected with the Port of Hampton Roads.

11. Make a thorough study of the unification of the railroad and steamship terminals serving the Hampton Roads district with a view to giving more economical and efficient service.

12. Take the necessary steps to have Hampton Roads made a free port zone.

13. Improve channels and re-establishment of port warden lines where required. This work to be done in conjunction with the United States Engineer.

14. It is recommended that the Board of Pilot Commissioners make an annual report to the Governor as to the general efficiency of the personnel of the Virginia Pilot Association, the maintenance of proper equipment, sufficiency of apprentices, and to the fairness of rates as compared with other ports, with a view to keeping this important service up to the present standard.

REPORT OF THE COMMISSION

To the General Assembly of Virginia:

That it might bear testimony to an ancient friendship, promote harmony and goodwill between the English-speaking nations, and worthily celebrate the conclusion of a hundred years of unbroken peace between England and America, the General Assembly of Virginia resolved in 1914 to present to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland a bronze copy of Houdon's famous statue of George Washington. The necessary enactments were passed, the gift accepted, the statue cast by the Gorham Company, and the Commission was making its preparations to sail when the tempest of the World War broke over Europe and made such errands of peace impracticable.

After the conclusion of peace the long-delayed arrangements were resumed and completed, and on June 30, 1921, in the presence of an immense concourse, with much pomp and ceremony, the statue was presented and unveiled in historic Trafalgar Square. The presentation address was made by the chairman of the commission, President Henry Louis Smith, of Washington and Lee University, representing the Governor of Virginia; it was received in behalf of His Majesty's government by the Right Honorable, the Marquis Curzon, of Kedleston, and the statue, amid the cheers of the vast multitude which filled the great square and St. Martin's Lane, was unveiled by Miss Judith Brewer, daughter of one of the commissioners.

The act authorizing the presentation provided that the Commission should be composed of the Governor, who was authorized in case he could not act to appoint a personal representative, the Lieutenant-Governor, the Speaker of the House of Delegates, and the Clerk of the House of Delegates. These, at the time of the presentation, were as follows:

DR. HENRY LOUIS SMITH, President of Washington and Lee University, representing Hon. Westmoreland Davis, Governor, Chairman of the Commission.

B. F. BUCHANAN, Lieutenant-Governor.

RICHARD L. BREWER, JR., Speaker of the House of Delegates.

JOHN W. WILLIAMS, Clerk of the House of Delegates and Keeper of the Rolls of Virginia.

Accompanying the commissioners were Mrs. Henry Louis Smith, Mrs. R. L. Brewer, Miss Judith Brewer, Mrs. John W. Williams, and John W. Williams, Jr. The whole party, accepting a formal invitation extended before their departure, were the official guests of the British government from June 25th to July 4th at the Carlton Hotel.

The Commission, sailing from New York on the Lapland, June 11th, reached Plymouth on Sunday, June 19th, where they were met by government officials and shown every possible courtesy, arriving in London that night. On Monday the delegation, as their first official act, called upon Ambassador Harvey, and extended to him a formal invitation to be present on June 30th, and take part in the presentation ceremonies. They did not, however, see him again during their entire stay in England.

On Tuesday, June 21st, the party were the guests of the Sulgrave Institution at the formal opening of Sulgrave Manor, the old Washington homestead, in Northamptonshire. It was an eventful day and a charming journey, and the Commission wishes to record its appreciation of the many courtesies shown by Mr.

John A. Stewart, president, Mr. A. B. Humphrey, secretary, and Mr. Perrin, the London representative of the Sulgrave Institution.

As the period of official entertainment did not begin till June 25th, the party visited Edinburgh and the Scotch Highlands, and returning to London on Saturday took possession of the sumptuous apartments reserved for them at the Carlton Hotel.

The appended programs of the daily entertainments between June 25th and July 4th will give some idea of the lavishness and zeal of our hosts, but no list of entertainments, however splendid, could reveal the universal friendliness, the unaffected democratic cordiality, the overflowing hospitality which made the events and experiences of the next ten days as unique as they were unforgettable.

Mr. J. Conway Davies, head of the Hospitality Division of the British government, was at once our expert guide, our charming companion, and our infallible encyclopedia of British etiquette.

At the Carlton our party had its special table, waiters, and menus, while every one connected with the great hotel seemed to take special pleasure in showing special attentions to the "Virginia Delegation."

A few of the more outstanding social events were as follows:

The special reception given to the delegation by the King and Queen at Buckingham Palace on June 27th. Here all feelings of awe and strangeness were at once removed by the democratic cordiality of their Majesties. King George's merry humor, his keen interest in and knowledge of American affairs, his enthusiastic praise of former Ambassador Davis, his ever-recurring expressions of friendliness toward America, and his cordial appreciation of Virginia's action, combined with a vivacity and intellectual alertness for which his pictures had not prepared us, not only turned a formal ceremony into a charming visit, but entirely transformed our conceptions of royalty in general and of King George in particular.

These impressions were deepened by the special reception given by H. R. H., the Prince of Wales, to the four commissioners at York House a day later. The charming modesty, simplicity, and unaffected democracy of the boy-prince made a deep impression on the party and explained the idolatrous enthusiasm of the people for their future king.

The Lord Mayor of London and his most gracious lady gave the party a formal luncheon in the great hall of the Mansion House with many distinguished guests.

The English-Speaking Union gave us an imposing luncheon with four or five hundred covers, at which Hon. Winston Churchill presided, and Lady Astor was among the speakers.

Dr. Peter Giles, Master of Immanuel College of the University of Cambridge, gave the Virginia party a formal luncheon in the historic dining-hall of the University.

At the conclusion of the presentation exercises of the 30th a government luncheon of exceptional magnificence was given at the Hotel Carlton, with a long array of England's most distinguished leaders as guests and Lord Lee, of Fareham, as presiding officer.

Teas, receptions, and garden parties were given by the Speaker of the House of Commons, Lady Darwin, Hon. and Mrs. Fortescue, the American University Union, and by Lady Astor at Cliveden. Two theater parties, with specially arranged visits to Hampton Court, Windsor Palace, Eton, Westminster Abbey, and other noted places, a marvelous trip up the Thames, an al fresco dinner at Maiden Head, and other courtesies innumerable filled every day of our stay with fresh evidences of British friendship and hospitality.

Especial mention, however, must be made of the formal dinners with fifty guests at each which were given by Lady Markham and Lady Astor at their wonderful London homes. Here was assembled a bewildering array of the greatest personages in England, the splendor of the function in each case only outdone by the charming friendliness of these two lovely examples of English and American womanhood. In fact of all the memories of our wonderful experience of British hospitality none lie nearer our hearts than that of these two charming women who seemed to adopt the "Virginia party" as near relatives.

The climax, of course, of the whole visit was reached in the stately presentation exercises in Trafalgar Square at 12 o'clock on Thursday, June 30th. The day was perfect and the vast square with its adjoining areas packed with countless thousands from every quarter.

The speech of presentation by the chairman of the Commission and the response by Marquis Curzon, of Kedleston, printed elsewhere in this pamphlet, were delivered in the National Gallery, in front of which, on its marble pedestal, the statue stood covered with English and American flags. It was a notable assembly of England's greatest men and women, with twenty Union and Confederate Veterans directly in front of the speakers, and the breathless attention and repeated applause bore testimony to their appreciation of Virginia's gift and her plea for Anglo-American friendship.

Immediately following the addresses the statue was unveiled amid thunders of applause, and the Virginia delegation, with a distinguished company of invited guests, adjourned to the Carlton for the magnificent government luncheon given in honor of the event.

On July 4th, after the close of the formal visit, the party made a short trip, at its own expense, to France and Switzerland, sailed from Havre on July 20th, reaching Montreal on the 30th, where again every possible courtesy was extended by the officials, and thence via New York dispersed to their respective homes.

In closing this brief and inadequate report your Commission wishes again to bear testimony to the amazing hospitality of the British government and their deep appreciation of Virginia's action; to the unaffected and democratic cordiality of the English nobility; to the warm friendship for America which was everywhere apparent, and to the universal and almost affectionate kindness of everybody from the King and Queen to the humblest railway porter.

We cannot but believe that our visit and Virginia's gift contributed something toward that Anglo-American friendship and co-operation upon which, more than upon any other one factor, the future peace and harmony of the world now depend.

Respectfully submitted,

HENRY LOUIS SMITH, Chairman,
B. F. BUCHANAN,
RICHARD L. BREWER, JR.,
JOHN W. WILLIAMS.

Presentation and Acceptance

Address of DR. HENRY LOUIS SMITH, President of Washington and Lee University and Chairman of the Virginia Commission:

Seven long and eventful years ago, that she might fittingly celebrate the close of a century of unbroken peace and give expression to her equally unbroken friendship, the Commonwealth of Virginia, by unanimous action of her legislature, resolved to present to the government and people of Great Britain this bronze statue of her most illustrious son.

Little did she realize in those days of deceptive tranquility, that the resistless forces of world development were even then preparing another and sublimer celebration—and culmination—of that century of peace.

Little did we dream that before our tribute of love could cross the seas our ancient friendship would be re-cemented and glorified by comradeship in suffering and partnership in noble deeds.

Those early days of 1914 seem already strange and mythical and far away. A world-wide and aggressive campaign of slander and detraction, re-enforced by the success of German competition and the results of the Boer war, had produced a world-wide feeling of uneasiness as to England's future. Even her friends had begun to wonder whether there might not be some truth in the confident German assertion that long years of ease and sloth and luxury had rotted out the old English heart of oak and disintegrated the bonds that held her vast and polyglot empire together.

Yet here, as often in similar times of crisis, the amazing and incredible happened, when the normal and expected would have bankrupted civilization.

The swift and marvelous awakening of the old English spirit at its best, eager for every imaginable sacrifice; the stubborn heroism and amazing unity of her whole population; the scientific skill and inconceivable speed with which all England was transformed into a vast military work shop; the revelation of inventive genius and scientific efficiency and resistless energy never dreamed of before; the splendid and passionate loyalty with which her far-flung colonies swarmed across the seas and threw themselves into the fires of hell to save their imperiled Motherland—this no human wisdom could have predicted, no mere logic can account for. It was a modern miracle wrought as of old by the will and purpose of almighty God, the affirmative answer of the human spirit to the call of the divine.

And as the true meaning and vast issues of the mighty conflict slowly revealed themselves to the American people a no less amazing drama was enacted on our side of the Atlantic.

A stubbornly isolated and peace-loving nation, her politics often dominated by English-hating hyphenates, her intellectuals kneeling with unanimous devotion at the shrine of German culture, her whole people fattening beyond imagination on the profits of other people's wars—this was the America transformed almost over-night into a nation of a hundred million war-crusaders, her domestic quarrels forgotten, her hyphens obliterated, her war-profits cast aside, her whole people from the lakes to the gulf on fire with a fury of battle-ardor and a unanimity of self-sacrifice never known before in American history—this was the long-delayed but glorious answer of American to the call of the world's need.

But of deeper significance to humanity than this spiritual rebirth of England and America has been their celebration of a hundred years of peace by the heartfelt renewal of their ancient and unforgotten kinship.

When German militarism, nurtured to giant strength and satanic ferocity, was hacking its bloody way thru France and Belgium, when the night of medieval tyranny seemed settling back upon the earth, when the hopes and institutions and blood-bought liberties of Anglo-Saxon civilization hung trembling in the balance, than these two great Anglo-Saxon empires, waked by the spirit of God as from an evil dream, realized their essential unity, the littleness of their past and present differences, the height and depth and strength of their old-time kinship. Fighting and dying side by side they learned, for all time we trust, that blood—warm, living, sacrificial, brothers' blood—is thicker far than water.

It was a kindly providence, therefore, that by delaying Virginia's gift has so glorified and hallowed it. And surely no commission was ever entrusted with a more precious token, a more urgent plea, or a more congenial message.

Its chairman is a most unworthy spokesman, yet there is a certain fitness in his selection, for he represents an institution of learning whose history is interwoven from the beginning with that of Washington and of the old colonial days when England and America were one.

Founded in 1749 under the British crown, it was deliberately chosen by George Washington to bear his name and utilize his wealth that learning might temper and uplift his country's newfound liberty.

After the wreck and ruin of the civil war it was refounded and rebuilt by Washington's great kinsman, the immortal leader of the Confederate armies, who, having no money, gave himself to the institution and endowed it forever with his matchless example, his sacred dust, and his incomparable name.

Across its velvet lawn the benignant figure of Washington looks down upon the chapel and tomb of Lee.

Within that sacred shrine, on the right of Virginia's holy of holies, is Peale's splendid portrait of George Washington in the scarlet uniform of a British officer as he fought with Braddock. On the left is the majestic figure of his fellow-rebel, Robert Edward Lee, in full Confederate grey. And over each regal head, their battle-fields forgotten in a common homage to the mighty dead, droops a cluster of glorious flags, all dear to Virginia's heart. The stars and bars of the vanished Confederacy, that hallowed flag of memory and tears, the stars and stripes of the re-United States, with not a rent remaining, and the meteor flag of England, the world's chief symbol and promoter of law and ordered liberty.

Outgrown antagonisms, forgotten enmities, temporary defeats, apparent disloyalties, transient and unimportant political alignments, all submerged in a higher allegiance, all bearing witness to the essential unity and magnanimity of the Anglo-Saxon race, its ability to forgive without forgetting, its innate reverence for the supremacy of the individual conscience over all lesser loyalties!

VIRGINIA'S GIFT

It is in the spirit of this hallowed shrine that Virginia has selected the gift that accompanies her message of love.

In this spirit as her messengers we hereby present to the government and people of Great Britain this bronze likeness of one who forsook her flag, rejected her sovereignty, and fought against her king. And with splendid and characteristic magnanimity she answers the challenge by placing this one-time rebel on a pedestal amid the mighty monuments and memories of Trafalgar Square.

Glory of English art*, the gathered treasures of a thousand years of culture; glory of English manhood, with stirring memories of Copenhagen and Trafalgar and the Nile; greater glory of English womanhood, gladly dying, in loneliness and obscurity, that her country's cause might live!

A tiny bit of bronze in this goodly company, yet it represents the best Virginia has to give, the flower and fruit of our western civilization, the embodiment of our Anglo-Saxon ideals of manhood and character, that immortal product of English ancestry and American rearing, George Washington, Father and Founder of our American republic.

In his matchless character were combined and concentrated the qualities and characteristics of both England and America at their best.

In habitual reserve, assured authority, and quick resentment of personal indignities, he was an English aristocrat of the highest type. Yet among naked savages and wilderness pioneers his ready fellowship and cordial American democracy made him a universal favorite. His English love of home was only equaled by his American devotion to little children.

A knightly cavalier and polished courtier in social circles, he was from his very boyhood a most rigid Puritan in sobriety, chastity, and uncompromising fidelity to duty.

His Anglo-Virginian hospitality, free and open-handed to the verge of extravagance, was made possible by his energy in business affairs and his executive ability as a money-maker.

A soldier from his youth, lifted to the heights of military glory, he ever hated war and subordinated the military to the civil power.

To the dogged courage and grim determination of his fighting English forbears he added the impetuous daring and quick resourcefulness of the American pioneer.

The splendid leadership with which he won his country's independence was, if possible, surpassed by the patience and diplomatic skill and far-seeing statesmanship with which, through toilsome and trying years, he solved the problems and laid the foundations of the new republic.

And when to these is added his purity of motive, his entire freedom from selfishness and personal ambition, his lofty serenity in times of defeat and disaster, and his sublime and unwavering trust in a higher power, no wonder that he seems set apart as a superior being, hardly formed of human clay.

As such a character enriches and ennobles the whole world, so does such a memorial add lustre and distinction even to Trafalgar Square.

And as these restless tides of cosmopolitan humanity ebb and flow through this throbbing heart of England's empire, may these Anglo-Saxon monuments, now and forever, teach to a groping and bewildered world these uplifting Anglo-Saxon lessons:

That all true greatness, whether of an individual or of a nation, is always and forever moral, never merely material; that the ultimate test and unerring measure of human civilization is not its wealth or commerce, but the characters it produces; that the most momentous question confronting Britain and America today is not what we have nor what we will get, but what we are and what our children will become.

VIRGINIA'S MESSAGE

This is Virginia's glorious gift to Great Britain, and with Virginia's gift goes her whole heart. Her messengers are but a tiny group, lost amid the swarming thousands hurrying across the Atlantic, and she speaks through a single insignificant human voice, scarce heard among the devilish cries of hate that fill the world today, but they are the messengers and messages of love, the only builder of our wrecked and prostrate world.

And love, in spite of its temporary eclipse, is still omnipotent and eternal, the sweetest thing in the world, the most contagious thing in the world, the mightiest thing in the world; and as earth's restless oceans swing to and fro to the changing moon, so shall earth's restless millions yet ebb and flow responsive to her divine control.

It is in fulfilment of this high mission that we bring to the government and people of Great Britain assurance of the undivided fellowship and ever-increasing friendship not only of our beloved Virginia, mother of states and statesmen, but of the equally undivided South, and of the great body of our American citizens from the Atlantic to the Pacific. We confidently assure you that the shrill cries of hate you sometimes hear are but the clamor of a narrow and turbulent shore-line, not the voice of the great deep that lies beyond.

We rejoice that a thousand ties are every day binding more closely together our gigantic and peace-loving democracies.

With our unmatched English tongue now clearly destined to become the chief treasury and vehicle of the world's civilization; with our wealth of English literature, centering in and radiating from our blessed English Bible; with our common reverence for the purity of womanhood, the sanctity of the home, and the rights of the weak; without common admiration for unselfishness and the spirit of service, our universal Anglo-Saxon instinct for justice and passion for liberty, our common recognition of the imperative of conscience, the rights of the individual, the fatherhood of God, and the essential brotherhood of man—with these multiplied and mighty bonds, so recently softened in the furnace of a common suffering and welded anew on the hard anvil of war, this is a world friendship that has come to stay, and may the God of England and America doom to speedy destruction every effort and agency that attempts to weaken or undermine it.

To this assurance of abiding friendship, in which all America joins, Virginia would add, to her sorrowing and heavy-laden motherland, a message of sympathy and hope peculiarly her own.

She too has known the hellish aftermath of war, its shattered industries, its new-made graves, its appalling problems of social and economic reconstruction.

Her present happiness and prosperity confirm these inspiring truths, which she learned amid the chaos and sorrows of 1865 and would share with the sorely stricken England of 1921.

That the money and ships and machinery destroyed by war are not the essentials or permanent treasures of human civilization but only its tools and trappings, already on their way to the scrapheap. That a nation's richest assets are the faith and courage and constancy of its citizens. That while vegetables grow best in sunshine and balmy air, these finer growths of manhood and womanhood are blighted by too much sun and multiply without limit in times of storm and darkness.

In these invisible but priceless assets, piled high in the bank of heaven, England is today immeasurably rich, in spite of her huge debts and tragic losses; and they will yet, as in Virginia's case, bear ample dividends of future peace and wealth and happiness to heal the wounds of war.

VIRGINIA'S PLEA

But friendly messages, however sincere, cannot salvage the wreckage of world-wide war, not can memorials to the dead, however imposing, heal the wounds and solve the problems of the living. For love is barren and friendship but an empty word if they are not translated into practical helpfulness.

Let me, therefore, representing not only my own beloved State and the thinking millions of America, but the heart and hope of a troubled world, add to our words of love this urgent plea—That the English-Speaking nations of the world, so recently united in war, unite again for the more complex tasks of peace, and in closest and most unselfish co-operation, enter at once upon a joint program of world leadership and reconstruction.

Never has the world been so full of human misery. Never have the cries of the suffering risen from so many lands in so many languages in such a chorus of universal pain. Never have so many nations groaned and staggered under such intolerable burdens of poverty and debt and famine and disease.

And never have war's hellish cruelties bred such a world-wide harvest of devilish hatreds. From the lofty heroisms and self-sacrifice of three years ago, the nations have slidden back into the old foul mire of isolation and jealousy and savage greed, while the rampant nationalism of today seems rather aggressive hatred of another's land than love and self-sacrifice for one's own.

Never has the complex machinery of civilization been so completely broken down, its governments shattered, its institutions dissolved, its ancient creeds and standards abandoned.

Earth's leaders are dismayed and bewildered, its ignorant millions everywhere in hysterical and unreasoning revolt.

Our modern civilization, tottering on the brink of the abyss, cries aloud for sympathy and practical help, for wise and firm restraint, for enlightened and unselfish leadership.

In our present period of selfish nationalism and moral reaction it has actually become the fashion to defend brute selfishness with a protective armor of cynicism, and to sneer at international altruism as mawkish sentimentality.

As an active participant in the great movement, I positively affirm that it was neither hate nor fear that swept our peace-loving nation into war, but a tidal wave of moral indignation that would not allow us to stand idly by and see civilization murdered before our eyes. Speaking in behalf of a hundred thousand other American parents who gave their sons to the supreme sacrifice, and of five million more who, with equal consecration, risked the same irreparable loss, I declare that we sent our sons not to protect America but to rescue humanity. From months of intimate contact with young Americans training daily for the battlefields of Europe, I can confidently assert of our American college boys that they crossed the ocean with the consecrated zeal of crusaders to the rescue of the holy sepulchre.

Those were days when selfishness and greed disappeared in the pure white flame of an altar fire. Would God that the English-speaking nations might rise again and forever to those lofty heights of international co-operation for the common good!

Long since has mankind learned the value of the Golden Rule in the crowded life of a community; that selfish individualism defeats its own ends; that sacrifice for others enriches both giver and receiver.

We are now learning in a thousand forms of co-operative industry that the Golden Rule is also good business, that selfish and self-seeking individualism is the road to failure, that friendly co-operation increases the productivity and happiness of all.

Why should these priceless lessons, learned at the cost of long years of individual and business warfare, be thrown aside in the fields of international politics?

Why should the English-speaking nations, with a wrecked world to be rebuilt, stand idly and selfishly and ineffectively apart till the fires of anarchy make their task impossible? Surely never in human history has an imperial race been confronted with such a combination of manifest fitness and sublime opportunity.

Even amid the devastation of the world war, not a single English-speaking nation has seen its government overthrown, its territory ravaged, or its economic machinery wrecked by revolution. As a group they are industrially more able to rebuild the world than ever in their history.

They are today incomparably the wealthiest group of nations in the history of the world. In spite of their individual debts and losses they probably hold more wealth at their disposal today than before the war—wealth which, if wisely invested, could both lift a bankrupt world into profitable production and at the same time still further enrich its owners.

Their power today in world politics is as conspicuous as their wealth. If united in a common purpose no power on earth could seriously hinder, far less successfully oppose, their joint program. And they are not only at peace with each other, but are warm friends and recent allies, with a common language for immediate and universal inter-communication.

They are also, as a group, the most enlightened, scientific, and progressive of all the nations of the earth, owning and controlling the great inventions which have given to mere man almost supernatural powers.

With a common racial kinship, a common religion, and similar ideals of character and conduct, obeying the same general code of laws, accustomed to the same modes of self-government, and utilizing the same methods of business organization, they constitute today the most homogeneous group of nations ever known on earth.

Their instinct for justice and fair play, their universal capacity for sympathy and pity, their habitual generosity and regard for the weak, their religion of brotherhood and unselfish service, and their long and successful experience in guiding and developing backward races—all these, as if by the planning of divine wisdom, have especially fitted the Anglo-Saxon nations for rehabilitating a wrecked and bewildered world.

But civilization's worst malady today is not its huge debts, its staggering losses, or its mere economic disorganization. It is Bolshevism, the tyranny of the unintelligent, the revival of the devil-doctrine that might makes right, if it be only this time the might of the many against the few. This is the disease, epidemic and contagious, that now threatens its very life and a clear conception of its nature and origin will prove that none but the Anglo-Saxon nations can now arrest its fatal progress.

Our human civilization, working its way against human greed and selfishness, is like some mighty sailing vessel striving to reach port in the teeth of the wind, yet compelled to utilize for its forward motion the very forces whose constant pressure it must oppose and overcome. In such a case direct progress is impossible. Like a vast pendulum the ship must sweep back and forth, always approaching its true path with such accumulated momentum as to leave it forever unless the wisdom and skill of the mariners can again halt its progress and change its direction.

Thus for four hundred years, gathering irresistible momentum, modern civilization has been swinging from the intolerable despotism of the middle ages toward universal democracy. Amid world-wide tumult and incessant revolt, the power hitherto wielded by the few has been steadily transferred to the many in ever widening circles. As long as the diffusion of intelligence and morality kept pace with this rapid diffusion of power, the sum total of human welfare and happiness steadily increased with the progress of democracy till the very name became a religion.

But the furious actions and reactions of the world war checked all the processes of education and religion, unchained everywhere the devils of hate and greed and cruelty, and hurled the millions back toward savagery, while at the same time by shattering all forms and institutions of human authority it transferred to these unprepared millions the fatal gifts of power without knowledge and liberty without self-control.

This is the darkest cloud on the world's horizon today, this is the deadly fear that grips the stoutest heart—that the fate of Russia shall overtake our western world, that our blood-bought rights and liberties, the precious institutions we have so painfully built, the priceless assets we have accumulated through toil and tears, shall be trampled into the mire by the ignorant and unthinking.

In this imminent crisis the Anglo-Saxon nations, and these alone, are able to teach these groping and experimenting masses the true meaning of democracy.

Their specialty is combining liberty with law, diffusing intelligence among all classes, subordinating military to civil authority, and training all to attend their ends by argument rather than force, while they alone, of all earth's races, have the present power to arrest the processes of destruction and hold these restless millions in check till they and their nascent governments have gained experience and stability.

We boast of our Anglo-Saxon capacity for organization. Why not use it for this most stupendous of all tasks?

We are proud of our economic wisdom and scientific efficiency. Why shall we go on talking war and building battleships for a world that is homeless and naked and famine-stricken? Why not prove our claims and fill our coffers by manufacturing and distributing what earth's millions want?

We claim to lead the world in the difficult art of ordered and law-abiding self-government. Why can we not teach and guide these bewildered millions and save them from impending self-destruction?

Amid these stately memorials of our heroic dead who gave their lives for others, let Christian England and Christian America, with unshaken confidence in the ultimate triumph of righteousness, re-dedicate themselves to the advancement of human welfare.

That increasing intercommunication should increase international hatred, that the gains of research and the wonders of invention should be forever prostituted to the arts of murder, that we should bankrupt ourselves paying war's dread tuition fees of blood and tears and taxes, yet with childish obstinacy refuse to learn her lesson, that we should with endless and futile toil save and build that war may waste and destroy, and stagger to our daily tasks under its hellish and unnecessary burdens, that we should forever rear our homes and cities for the torch and our precious children for the slaughter-pen—this is the sum of all human folly and wickedness.

It is unreasonable, unthinkable, intolerable; and with the help of our newly enfranchised womanhood shall yet be made impossible.

The art of co-operative self-government in and among our huge and crowded populations shall yet emerge from its crude and experimental infancy. Our giant newborn democracies shall yet outgrow this child-era of unreasoning fickleness and credulous ignorance and infantile hysteria, and become mature and sane and wise and self-controlled.

The present clouds and darkness are the morning not the evening twilight of our human civilization. In spite of morning clouds and morning storms and the crude incompleteness of morning work, the spirit of national friendship and co-operation is working its daily miracles among the hearts of men, and this old earth of ours, battle-scarred, crime-stained, tear-drenched, tempest-tossed, and never more tempest-tossed and tear-drenched than now, is yet rolling her darkened continents out of our present hatreds and horrors toward that blessed, tho far-off noonday, when love and brotherhood shall be the law of human life and sacrifice and service the test and measure of human greatness.

Address of the Right Honorable, the EARL OF CURZON, K. G., G. C. S. I., G. C. I. E., accepting Virginia's gift:

I suppose that the features of Washington as depicted in that historic statue—features so calm, so dignified, so noble—are better known than the form and features of any man in the world, with the possible exception of the first Napoleon. Probably more speeches have been made about Washington than about any human being who ever lived, with the possible exception of Bobby Burns. No one would have hated this more than Washington himself.

Why do we as Englishmen gladly welcome the statue of Washington? It is because he was a great Englishman, one of the greatest Englishmen who ever lived; because though he fought us and vanquished us, he was fighting for ideals and principles which were as sacred to us as they were to the American people, and which were embedded in the very fibers of our common race. The defeat that he inflicted upon us was our gain; he laid the foundations of a structure which we could never have laid, and which required for its accomplishment the genius of an emancipated race. One of the remarkable things in reading the history of Washington was that his merits were recognized by Englishmen even in his lifetime. I have always thought it a moving thing that when the great man died and the news of his death was borne across the waters, the British fleet flying at anchor lowered their flags to half-mast in honor of the illustrious dead.

What was it that made this man one of the greatest personalities of all time? The answer lay in his personality and in his achievement. His personality represented integrity of character, nobility of soul, modesty and dignity of demeanor, and sagacity of judgment in a degree rarely combined in any human being. To deal only with his political achievements, Washington created a government and made a nation. He became ruler not by birth or inheritance, not by accident; not by right of conquest, but by the free choice of a unanimous people. Rarely, if ever, had there been a nobler life, rarely if ever had there been a more comely or more gracious death.

Washington found himself in Trafalgar Square alongside the fiery Napier, the noble-minded Havelock, the heroic Gordon; and the glorious Nelson looked down upon the wonderful gathering. If the spirits of the departed could revivify and reimburse the bronze or the marble effigies, if in the stillness of the night they could hold converse, what a symposium there would be! Three gave their lives for their country, one added a province to a great empire, the other added a great empire to the world. Of each it could be said that the mainspring of his life and action was duty; of all of them it could be said that their lives enriched the records of mankind.

It is a mark of the fact that the two branches of the great English-speaking race are now and henceforth indissolubly one. It is now more than a hundred years since we last fought, and that conflict was one of which none of us are proud and of which some of us are very much ashamed. We can never fight again. I should like to add that we can never quarrel again. We ought never to quarrel again. The idea is such that if anybody got up on a public platform and uttered it in this country he would be hooted from the place. I believe and hope that the same sentiments prevail in your country. But not merely can your nation and mine engage never to fight and never to quarrel; we can do a great deal to prevent other nations from fighting. That, I submit, is the main function and duty that lies upon us in the future. It is by the example we set, by the common sacrifices that we have endured and are prepared to endure again, by the friendly counsel and co-operation of our ambassadors and statesmen, by the resolute determination of our people, by the influence of the press of both countries—and would that greater restraint were sometimes put upon it, whether it be on one side or the other—it is by these influences that we should endeavor to see that the peace of the world is insured. It is a great and powerful weapon that is in the hands of these two great nations, and if our use of it is inspired by the temperate judgment, the lofty nobility of soul, and the unselfish purpose of George Washington, we ought to be able to use that weapon for the inestimable advantage of mankind.

BRITISH EMBASSY,

WASHINGTON, September 16, 1914.

MY DEAR MR. WILMER:

While I was in London I went into the question of a position for Houdon's Statue of George Washington which Virginia is giving to us. As a result of conversations with Lionel Earle, Secretary to the Office of Works, and others, a position has been provisionally selected in Trafalgar Square, opposite the main entrance to the National Gallery. The figure would stand facing the square inside the railings which surround the building, and sufficiently raised on a base above them to afford an uninterrupted view of the statue. In selecting Trafalgar Square the authorities were guided by the consideration that it is not only a very beautiful site and is famous for its statue of Nelson, but is also one of the most frequented of London's public places. I am sending you a drawing showing the position which the monument would occupy in relation to the National Gallery.

I should be glad if you would call on the Governor of Virginia and explain these circumstances to him with my compliments. You should ask His Excellency whether the proposed arrangements meet the views of the Commonwealth of Virginia.

I should also be glad to know when it is proposed to send the statue, in order that arrangements may be made for receiving it on arrival in England.

I am, my dear Mr. Wilmer,

MY DEAR MR. WILMER:

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letters of the 19th instant, and to express the pleasure I feel that the site selected for Washington's Statue should have given so much satisfaction in Virginia.

I perfectly understand the desire to postpone giving the statue until after the war and the motives which prompted the suggestion will be fully appreciated in England. I have informed the authorities at home of the proposal, and I feel sure they will readily concur in it.

I am, my dear Mr. Wilmer,

Yours sincerely,

HONORABLE BAINBRIDGE COLBY,
Secretary of State,

MY DEAR MR. SECRETARY:

In 1914 arrangements were made by the State Department, through the British Embassy, for the presentation by the Commonwealth of Virginia to the British government, of a copy of the Houdon Statue of Washington. The exigencies of war caused a postponement of the actual presentation, and the Commission constituted by the General Assembly of Virginia is now ready to carry forward the original design, and are arranging to sail for England after June 10, 1921. The Commission consists of—

WESTMORELAND DAVIS, Governor of Virginia,

B. F. BUCHANAN, Lieutenant-Governor of Virginia,

RICHARD L. BREWER, JR., Speaker of the House of Delegates,

JOHN W. WILLIAMS, Clerk of the House of Delegates.

I deeply regret that the duties of my office make it impossible for me to leave Virginia at this time, and I have, therefore, designated Dr. Edwin A. Alderman, President of the University of Virginia, to represent me.*

It is my understanding that the arrangements for the presentation have been cared for, but I desire to acquaint you with the appointment, purpose and personnel of the Commission, and to bespeak for them your kind offices on their mission to England.

Yours very truly,

WESTMORELAND DAVIS,

Communication from the Governor on the Subject of Pilotage

GOVERNOR'S OFFICE,

Gentlemen of the General Assembly:

The importance of Hampton Roads as a factor in the State's industrial development was discussed in my message to the General Assembly of 1920 and upon my recommendation a commission was created to study and report upon methods for the proper utilization of this remarkable asset. In my judgment no measure is more essential to the successful consummation of this undertaking than a revision of the State's arbitrary and antiquated pilotage laws. The existing statutes are based on conditions which prevailed before channels in Virginia's harbors had been dredged and located, when tugboats were virtually unknown and before hundreds of warning buoys and beacons had been established and practically every foot of navigable water charted by the government. Under the operation of these archaic laws traffic which would otherwise pass through Hampton Roads is driven to other ports and the natural advantages of the port have been capitalized in the form of exorbitant pilotage fees and diverted to the enrichment of the Virginia pilots. The possibilities of Virginia's seaport as a State and national asset can never be fully realized until this combine of the Virginia pilots is broken and the commerce of Hampton Roads is relieved of its handicap of excessive rates and arbitrary pilotage regulations.

According to the best information available Virginia pilots have divided among themselves in recent years annual revenues of approximately one million dollars. These enormous profits bear no relation to the value of the services which the pilots render to shipping, but are the direct result of allowing private interests to dominate the administration of the State's pilotage service. The rates for pilotage in Virginia harbors should be made comparable with the value of the services rendered and with the rates allowed for similar services at other ports, and after allowing a reasonable compensation for the labor of the pilots and their necessary expenses the remainder of the funds collected should be paid into the State treasury for the benefit of the elementary public schools.

In order to facilitate the consideration of this important matter by the General Assembly I have prepared, with the assistance of Mr. J. H. Bradford, statistician of the Governor's office, a thorough analysis of the pilotage laws and regulations of the various Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific coast States. This study has been based on material of unquestioned accuracy, such as the official reports of the United States Department of Commerce, the statutes of the various States governing pilotage, and the records of the congressional committees which from time to time have investigated pilotage matters. It is at once apparent from a study of this analysis why Virginia's seaports have failed to develop as their natural advantages warrant, and why their foreign commerce is less than one-twentieth the value of the foreign commerce of the New York customs district, less than one-third the value of the foreign commerce of either New Orleans or Philadelphia, and less than one-half the value of the foreign commerce of the customs districts of either Massachusetts, Maryland, Galveston, San Francisco or Washington.

By contrast with pilotage rates and service in other States the defects in the Virginia system may be briefly summarized as follows:

1. Pilotage rates at Hampton Roads are from thirty to fifty per cent higher than the prevailing rates at other Atlantic and Gulf coast seaports similarly situated as to proximity to the sea. They are from thirty to forty per cent higher than the rates at New York and Boston, where the channels are narrow and the traffic more congested and subject to the dangers of ice and fog. They are higher than the rates at Portland, Me., Providence, New London, New Haven, Hoboken, Jersey City, Wilmington, N. C., Tampa, Jacksonville and Galveston. The Virginia rates are nearly double the rates at Los Angeles and are about sixty per cent higher than the rates on Puget Sound and bar pilotage on the Columbia river.

2. For every mile traveled in taking vessels in and out of Norfolk harbor, the fees of Virginia pilots exceed from three to four times the rate per mile represented by pilotage charges at the ports of Baltimore and Philadelphia. On a mileage basis the Virginia pilot receives $4.00 per mile for piloting a vessel of 20 feet draft the round trip between the Capes and Norfolk. For a similar vessel the Maryland pilot receives only 67 cents per mile for the round trip between the Capes and Baltimore.

3. The expenditure of millions of dollars by the Federal government at Hampton Roads has so improved the channel that it can be navigated by any competent mariner with a government chart. In the face of these improvements pilotage rates, through the influence of the pilots' combine, have been increased instead of diminished, and are now thirteen per cent higher than the rates established before the Federal government had eliminated the obstacles which formerly made navigation difficult in these waters.

4. The gross earnings of Virginia pilots in 1919, according to the best information available, ranged in some cases around $25,000 and around $40,000, or from five to eight times the rates of pay of the highest paid officers in the American Merchant Marine. Their annual gross earnings as far back as 1907 averaged not less than $6,000, as contrasted with an average for pilots generally, before the war, of only $3,500.

5. Under municipal operation of the pilotage service at Los Angeles, rates are only half as high as the Virginia rates, and the city has obtained competent pilots at salaries of only $2,500. Under this system the city has obtained net revenues of more than $2,000 each year for each pilot as against only $50 per year obtained by the State of Virginia from each Virginia pilot.

6. At the ports of New York, Boston and San Francisco pilots are required to make periodic reports of their earnings to the pilotage authorities, who preserve these records for public inspection. In Virginia such information is denied even the Governor and the General Assembly, nor can anyone else obtain definite information as to the earnings of the pilots.

7. Under the optional pilotage system on Puget Sound, pilotage fees are fixed by open competition between the pilots and are forty per cent lower than the Virginia rates. The rapid growth of the port of Seattle and the flourishing foreign trade developed by this port are significant of the advantages of liberal pilotage laws and reasonable rates as contrasted with the arbitrary requirements and exorbitant rates which are obstructing the development of Virginia's seaports.

8. In the States of Connecticut, Rhode Island, Oregon and California, any citizen of the age of twenty-one years or over of good character who can pass the required examination may be appointed pilot. In the State of Washington any person holding a pilot's license from the United States government, who has had at least one year's experience as pilot of an overseas or coasting vessel of at least 1,500 gross tons may be appointed pilot.

Under the more liberal pilotage laws of the Pacific coast ports, the foreign commerce of San Francisco and Puget Sound has increased more than three hundred per cent within the last five years, and both at San Francisco and on Puget Sound is more than twice as great as the foreign commerce which has been developed at Virginia's seaports under their handicap of a monopolistic pilots' combine.

9. The prevailing systems of pilotage administration in the several States provide for the appointment of pilot commissioners by the Governor for terms of two, three, four, or five years. Under the archaic system in effect in Virginia, the appointment of pilot commissioners is divided between two judicial bodies and the term of office of these commissioners is for life.

10. The laws of Texas, California and Florida forbid the appointment as pilot commissioner of any person who is directly or indirectly pecuniarily interested in any pilot boat. In Virginia three of the seven pilot commissioners may be branch pilots.

11. In the States of Louisiana, New Jersey and Florida, and in the State of Maine, with the exception of Portland, pilots are appointed by the governor upon the recommendation of the shipowners and shipmasters. At the port of Boston pilots must be recommended for appointment by the trustees of the Boston Marine Society. In probably a majority of the States minimum or maximum restrictions are placed on the number of pilots. The effect of the Virginia pilotage laws is to place in the hands of the pilots themselves virtually absolute control not only of the number of pilots that may be appointed, but also the determination of whom these pilots shall be.

12. Vessels engaged in foreign commerce are required in ports in Texas, Oregon, Washington, New Hampshire and in California, with the exception of San Francisco, to pay only one-half pilotage if the pilots' service is declined. On Puget Sound pilotage is not compulsory for any vessel. At Virginia ports vessels engaged in foreign trade must pay regular pilotage in every case in which pilotage service is offered, although the commander of the vessel may know every foot of the channel.

Pilotage Administration

The difference between pilotage matters as administered in Virginia and in other States is the difference between a system which insures efficient and disinterested supervision of the pilotage service by a higher authority and a system which to a great extent places the administration of the pilotage service in the hands of the pilots themselves.

The prevailing practice in the administration of pilotage laws in the various States is to centralize the appointment of the pilot commissioners in the hand of the Governor. In the comparatively few jurisdictions where a different system prevails, the responsibility for the appointment of pilotage authorities is placed in the hands of agencies especially concerned with the promotion of coastwise and foreign trade, such as the presidents of commercial organizations of seaport towns, or officials of marine insurance companies. The State of Virginia, alone, adheres to a system of selecting pilotage authorities which has nothing to recommend it for producing results either by centralizing responsibility or otherwise insuring efficient supervision of pilotage affairs.

The prevailing practice in this connection is well summarized in the following excerpt from a recent bulletin issued by the Department of Commerce:

"The administration of all matters relating to pilotage is generally vested in a local board of pilot commissioners, consisting of two or three or five or more members, appointed for terms of two or more years by the Governor of the State."*

PILOTAGE ADMINISTRATION BY STATES

The States in which responsibility for the appointment of pilotage authorities is vested in the governor include Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Jersey, North Carolina, Florida, Alabama, Louisiana, Texas, Washington, Oregon and California. At the port of Boston the board of pilot commissioners consists of two members who are appointed by the governor for a term of two years. In New Jersey the board consists of six members appointed by the Governor for a term of three years; at Mobile seven commissioners for five years; at Wilmington, North Carolina, five members for four years; at New Orleans three members each for the bar and river boards for two years; at San Francisco three members not exceeding four years; for the Columbia river ports three members for three years.

At the port of Charleston pilotage affairs are administered by a board of harbor commissioners, consisting of thirteen members who also act as pilot commissioners. Of the members of this board seven are appointed by the governor and the others consist of the mayor, the presidents of four commercial organizations and the chairman of the State board of health. At all other South Carolina ports authority is vested in local boards of three or more members appointed by the governor.

PILOTAGE ADMINISTRATION AT NEW YORK, PHILADELPHIA AND BALTIMORE

Pilotage by way of Hell Gate, New York, is regulated by a board of port wardens, consisting of nine members appointed by the governor for a term of three years.

The system of pilotage administration at the ports of Philadelphia and Baltimore and at the Sandy Hook entrance to the port of New York, presents some variation from the general rule as to the selection of pilotage authorities, but not as to their tenure of office. Since 1907 the administration of all Pennsylvania laws relating to pilotage has been vested in a board of commissioners of navigation for the river Delaware and its navigable tributaries. This board is composed of five members, one of whom must be the director of the department of wharfs, docks and ferries of Philadelphia. The other members are elected respectively by the council of Chester, the burgesses and council of Bristol, the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce and the Pennsylvania maritime exchange, to serve four years.

The administration of the Sandy Hook pilotage within the jurisdiction of the State of New York, is under the control of a board of pilot commissioners, consisting of five persons appointed for a period of two years. Three of the commissioners are selected by the Chamber of Commerce of the city of New York, and two by the presidents and vice-presidents of the marine insurance companies of New York city.

At the port of Baltimore pilotage is administered by a board of three commissioners, consisting of the presidents of the board of trade, the corn and flour exchange and the pilot association. The membership of this board of course varies with each change in the heads of the organizations from which the members are selected.

In several States pilotage administration has been further centralized in the governor by the enactment of legislation giving him the power to appoint pilots for the various ports. This is the case in Louisiana, Texas, and New York, and also in Maine, with the exception of the port of Portland. In all cases where pilots are appointed by the governor they must be recommended either by a majority of the shipowners and shipmasters as in all ports of Maine, except Portland, or by the local boards of pilot commissioners, as in New York, Louisiana and Texas. At New Orleans the presidents of the board of commissioners of the port, the board of trade and the board of underwriters must be notified of the recommendations of appointment as pilots, and may file written protest against any appointment.

The protection of the commerce of the country from exploitation by pilots has been further safeguarded in some States by a provision that neither pilots nor any person holding an interest in a pilot boat may act as pilot commissioner. The Florida statutes are particularly stringent on this subject, providing that the members of the board shall "not be pilots, owners or agents of pilot boats, consignees or charterers nor officers of any organization acting as consignees or charterers, or in any manner interested in the business of pilotage or the employment of pilots."

Texas forbids the appointment as pilot commissioner of any branch pilot or any person who is directly or indirectly pecuniarily interested in any pilot boat. In California the statutory regulation is that neither the commissioners of the San Francisco board nor their secretaries shall have any interest in any pilot boat, or in a steam tug or in the earnings of the same.

PILOTAGE ADMINISTRATION IN VIRGINIA

The significant aspect of the pilot laws discussed above are, first, that responsibility for the selection of pilotage authorities is centralized in nearly every instance in the Governor, and, second, that the propriety of the Governor's choice and the fitness of his appointees are automatically made subject to review at relatively frequent intervals by reason of the limitations placed upon their terms of office. Even in the comparatively few instances where divided responsibility exists for the appointment of pilot commissioners, it is not the practice to place these authorities in office for life.

The pilotage laws of Virginia have the unique distinction of vesting pilotage authorities in this State with virtually a life tenure of their positions.

Under the Virginia laws the administration of all matters relating to pilotage is conferred on a board of pilot commissioners, consisting of seven members, three of whom are appointed by the Circuit Court of Elizabeth City county, and four by the Corporation Court of the city of Norfolk. With the exception of the provision that not more than three of the commissioners shall be branch pilots, there is no regulation affecting the qualifications of these appointees, nor is there any limitation upon their term of office other than a statutory one of removal for incapacity negligence or misconduct.

It will be seen that the Virginia law involves no periodic inquiry as to the qualifications of pilotage authorities for their positions, as is the case where appointments are made for a definite period, nor does it otherwise insure such active supervision of pilotage matters as experience has indicated is essential to the efficient and disinterested administration of public duties. Since the enactment of this antiquated statute, in 1881, experience has demonstrated the necessity for centralizing responsibility in order to obtain the right results in the administration of the law. The enactment of legislation empowering the Governor to appoint the pilotage commissioners, as is the practice generally, and limiting their terms of office to a definite period, not to exceed four years, should help materially in preventing a recurrence of the abuses which have developed under the State's present system of pilotage administration.

Qualifications and Appointment of Pilots

In sections 3615 to 3621 of the Code of 1919 will be found the various statutes which divest the public of all control over the personnel of the Virginia pilotage service. An examination of these statutes is explanatory of the factors which underlie the present monopolistic combine of the Norfolk pilots.

Under the law as it now exists an apprenticeship of five years, under a duly licensed Virginia pilot with a pilot's boat, is an indispensable prerequisite for an appointment as pilot. In other words, skill in navigating Norfolk harbor acquired in the operation of tug boats, coastwise vessels or other craft can never confer eligibility for appointment as pilot, although such experience may have greatly exceeded the period of service required for apprentices, and may have familiarized the applicant with every foot of the channel from the Virginia capes to Norfolk. Moreover there is no statutory regulation that there shall be any number of apprentices, nor is there any limitation placed upon the minimum or maximum number of pilots. Under these conditions the Pilots' Association possesses and exercises the power to determine absolutely both the number and the personnel of the pilots at the port of Norfolk.

In this connection the situation in Virginia is well described in the following excerpt from the report of the Department of Commerce, referred to above.

"The number of apprentices is largely within the control of the Pilots' Associations which are generally close corporations and in many cases family affairs."

Protection of the Pilotage Service from Monopoly

In view of the monopolistic combine represented by the Virginia Pilots' Association, it is of interest to note that the States of Oregon, California, Rhode Island, and Connecticut refuse to allow the pilotage service to be made a private monopoly. In none of these States apparently are there any legislative or administrative regulations as to the apprenticeship of pilots. In Alabama only one year of apprenticeship is required for appointment as pilot. In the port of New Orleans an apprenticeship of only year is required for bar pilots and only six months for river pilots. At the port of New York an apprenticeship of five years is required for appointment as deputy pilot with an eighteen-foot branch, but there is no requirement that such apprentices shall be attached to the boats of the pilot association.

On Puget Sound the only statutory requirement as to experience and skill in the case of a pilot are (1) that he shall hold a pilot's license from the United States government for Puget Sound waters, and (2) that he shall have had at least one year's experience as pilot of overseas or coast vessels of at least 1,500 gross tons. It has not been found necessary at Puget Sound ports either to enforce a compulsory pilotage service or to fix the rates for pilotage. The recent report of the United States Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce on pilotage in the United States shows that the pilotage charges in these waters are fixed by open competition between the pilots. The usual charge for bringing a ship from Port Townsend to Seattle, thirty-eight miles, is $100.00 to $150.00 for making the round trip. It is interesting to observe in this connection that the pilotage charge under the Virginia law for bringing a vessel, with an average draft of twenty feet, from the Virginia Capes to Norfolk, twenty-five miles, is $200.00 for the round trip, or about sixty per cent greater than the Puget Sound rates, although the distance is thirty-three per cent less than the distance from Port Townsend to Seattle.

Rates of Pilotage

Pilotage fees at Hampton Roads, notwithstanding the expenditure of millions of dollars by the Federal government in making navigation easier and safer at this port, have been increased more than thirteen per cent over the rates promulgated in 1881, and have apparently been fixed without any reference whatever to the advantage of Virginia harbors over such competitive ports as Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York and Boston. In view of the enormous earnings of the Virginia pilots it is apparent also that the present rates were fixed with but little regard to the value of the services which the pilots render to shipping. These factors are significant of the influence of a private combine in fixing rates for pilotage, as contrasted with the rates established by open competition, as on Puget Sound, or under municipal ownership, as at Los Angeles.

RATES OF PILOTAGE AT PACIFIC COAST PORTS COMPARED WITH VIRGINIA RATES

A comparison of the pilotage charges at the various Pacific coast ports discloses the significant fact that the rates at Los Angeles, where the city operates the pilotage service, are only about one-half the rates at San Francisco and San Diego. This is especially noteworthy in view of the fact that rates at San Francisco were reduced about thirty-three per cent in 1915 in order to meet the competition of the ports on Puget Sound, where pilotage is optional and the rates are also low. Another effect of the competitive system has been to reduce Columbia river pilots' charges about forty per cent below the maximum allowed by law. Under the Oregon statute Columbia river pilots are allowed to charge $2.50 per foot draft for bar pilotage and $2.00 per foot draft for river pilotage, plus two cents per net registered ton. The rates actually charged are $1.50 per foot draft for bar pilotage and $1.00 per foot draft for river pilotage, plus one cent per net registered ton. For a vessel with a net tonnage of 3,000 tons and an average draft inward and outward of twenty feet the total pilotage for the round trip between the ocean and Astoria, Oregon, would amount on this basis, to $120.00. For the round trip between the Virginia Capes and Norfolk the pilotage charges for a similar vessel would amount under the Virginia laws to $200.00. Without attempting a further comparison between rates at Norfolk and on the Pacific coast, the above facts are significant as to what open competition among pilots can accomplish in relieving shipping of unnecessary pilotage charges.

INCREASE IN VIRGINIA RATES OF PILOTAGE SINCE 1881

At the ports of Norfolk and Newport News pilotage charges for vessels drawing ten feet of water or over range from $3.50 to $5.00 per foot draft. As originally established in 1881, the rates on such vessels ranged from $3.00 to $4.50 per foot draft. The rates now in effect, therefore, represent an increase over the rates established in 1881 of fifty cents per foot draft, or more than thirteen per cent. For pilotage service in Virginia harbors commerce is now taxed at a higher rate, in other words, than the rate established when many of the present aids to navigation were unknown, and before the expenditures made by the Federal government had eliminated such obstacles as originally existed to easy and safe navigation of these harbors.

COMPARISON OF RATES OF PILOTAGE AT NORFOLK, NEW YORK AND BOSTON

The effect in brief of pilotage charges as they now exist in Virginia is to deliver to the pilots the money value represented by the superior natural advantages of the State's seaport at Hampton Roads and which should be administered for the benefit of the public as a whole. For example, the pilotage charges on a vessel with a draft of sixteen feet amount at the ports of New York and Boston to approximately $92.00 for the round trip. At the port of Norfolk the pilotage charges for the round trip for a similar vessel are $144.00, an increase over the charges at New York and Boston of nearly sixty per cent. An examination of the table below shows that pilotage charges in general are from thirty per cent to forty per cent higher at Norfolk than at New York and Boston. In view of the fact that the ports of Boston and New York have narrow channels and a more congested traffic with delays and dangers from ice and fog, this difference between pilotage rates at the three ports illustrates forcibly the extent to which commerce through Hampton Roads is unnecessarily taxed for the benefit of the Virginia pilots.

COMPARISON OF RATES OF PILOTAGE AT NORFOLK, BALTIMORE AND PHILADELPHIA

Further evidence of the extent to which the monetary advantages of the State's superior harbor facilities have been diverted to the enrichment of the Virginia pilots is afforded by a comparison of the pilotage charges at the ports of Norfolk, Baltimore and Philadelphia.

From the Virginia Capes to Norfolk the distance by water is only twenty-five miles. The distance from the Capes to Baltimore, on the other hand, is more than one hundred and fifty miles. In other words, vessels bound for Baltimore are under the guidance of a pilot six times the distance required in the case of vessels docking at Norfolk or Newport News. As contrasted with this immense difference in the proximity of these two ports to the channel entrance, it is significant to note that pilotage fees for vessels drawing nineteen feet or less are only about twelve per cent lower at Norfolk than at Baltimore. For vessels drawing twenty feet or more, the Virginia pilot collects exactly the same amount for piloting a vessel a distance of twenty-five miles between the Capes and Norfolk as is paid the Baltimore pilot for the distance of more than one hundred and fifty miles from the Capes to Baltimore.

This great disparity between the value of the services rendered by pilots at the two ports is more forcibly indicated by reducing the pilotage charges to a mileage basis. Thus the average rate of pilotage per mile for the round trip between the Capes and Norfolk of a vessel with a draft of twenty feet is $4.00. For the round trip between the Capes and Baltimore, the average rate per mile for the same vessel is only sixty-seven cents. In other words, the Norfolk pilot receives almost six times as much as the Baltimore pilot for every mile covered in taking a vessel in and out of the harbor.

Similarly vessels en route to Philadelphia are taken in charge by a pilot at the Capes of Delaware, a distance of more than ninety miles below the city. As in the case of the Baltimore pilotage, the rates at Philadelphia are only about twelve per cent higher than the pilotage at Norfolk on vessels drawing nineteen feet or less, and are the same as the Norfolk rates on vessels whose draft exceeds nineteen feet. Reduced to a mileage basis, pilotage fees between the Virginia Capes and Norfolk are from three to four times the rates between the Delaware Capes and Philadelphia.

COMPARISON OF RATES OF PILOTAGE AT NORFOLK AND VARIOUS ATLANTIC AND GULF COAST PORTS.

By reference to the following table it will be seen that pilotage rates at Norfolk are materially higher than the rates at either Portland, Me., Wilmington, N. C., New Jersey (Sandy Hook), Tampa, Jacksonville, or Galveston. At Portland, Me., for example, bar pilotage, inward and outward, on vessels drawing from ten feet to thirty feet, ranges from $37.50 to $112.50, as contrasted with a range of from $70 to $300 for vessels of the same draft at Norfolk. For New Jersey, Sandy Hook, pilotage the rates range from only $48 to $295.40 for vessels drawing from ten feet up to thirty-five feet. At Norfolk pilotage rates for vessels of this draft range from $70 to $350. At Jacksonville pilotage on vessels drawing from ten to twenty-seven feet ranges from $55 to $148.50 as against pilotage charges ranging from $70 to $270 at Norfolk.

(a) Data not available.

(b) Rates at Galveston vary not only with the draft of the vessel but also with the net tonnage. Rates here given apply to vessels with net register of 1500 tons or over.

In addition to the fees earned for pilotage between the Virginia Capes and Norfolk or Newport News, the statute permits certain extra charges to be made for any loss of time occasioned by the detention of the vessel in quarantine or by carrying the pilot to sea. The statute further provides for the payment of specified fees for the pilotage of vessels between Newport News and places on the James river, and for pilotage between Newport News and Norfolk, and from the Naval Anchorage to the Navy Yard.

The law further provides that any pilot who attends any vessel with his boat at the request of the master or owner shall have $50.00 per day. These additional sources of revenue must be considered in any inquiry as to the reasonableness of the basic rates for pilotage now charged by Virginia pilots.

Earnings of Virginia Pilots

Corroborative evidence of the exorbitant tax that Virginia pilots are levying on the commerce of Hampton Roads is afforded by their deliberate refusal to let the public know what their returns from the existing charges actually amount to in the course of a year. Some fragmentary information has been obtained as to their earnings, from secondary sources, but the pilots themselves have in effect denied that the public has any right to this information.

The results of one of the earlier efforts of the General Assembly in this connection are well described by the following quotation from the testimony of A. D. Batchelor, of Newport News, before the United States House of Representatives Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, in 1908:

"Mr. Littlefield: Were you able to ascertain during the progress of all these hearings how much the pilots were receiving and dividing per capita?

"Mr. Batchelor: We were not. We were able to give our committee figures which showed that they had received last year at least $208,000—thirty-four pilots. That did not include the foreign naval vessels participating in the Jamestown Exposition at Hampton Roads. We took the position before the committee that the pilots should be liberally paid, that after deducting the expense of maintaining their equipment, their pilot boat and a proper allowance for the deterioration of their property yearly, there should still be divided among them a fair compensation considering the character of service rendered; but we insisted that anything beyond that was a tax upon commerce which eventually comes out of the pockets of the owners of the cargo and not of the owner of the ship.

"Mr. O'Brien: Thank you.

"Mr. Batchelor: And that, therefore, it was a tax upon the many for the benefit of the few, and undemocratic. But we could not get them to say to the committee what they were receiving, though we propounded the question in pamphlets, and we propounded it in the papers. We propounded it in the largest type we could find in the printing offices, "How much are you getting now gentlemen * * *." We propounded that question in season and out of season, but we have never yet gotten them to say how much they are getting.

"Mr. Littlefield: So far as you were able to ascertain, it was something like $6,000 per capita.

"Mr. Batchelor: Thirty-four pilots received last year $208,600 that we know of, which is a little over $6,000 per capita."

As contrasted with the figures quoted above, it is of interest to note that the Department of Commerce has estimated that the average yearly earnings of pilots in ordinary times, such as those existing prior to 1914, amounted to a minimum of about $3,500. At the port of New Orleans, for example, an investigation by a State committee, in 1908, disclosed the fact that the annual earnings of the New Orleans bar pilots amounted to an average of $3,300.

Taking the annual earnings of Virginia pilots during this earlier period at a minimum of $6,000, therefore, it is apparent that their compensation under the conditions existing prior to 1914 was nearly double the average for pilots as a whole.

In view of the great increase in the commerce of Hampton Roads since 1914, the data set forth above have relatively little significance as to the earnings of Virginia pilots during the more recent period since the beginning of the war. Some idea of the returns to the pilots during this latter period is afforded by information given at the hearings before the Senate Finance Committee of the General Assembly, in 1920, on the proposed measure to increase the license tax of pilots.

During the course of the hearings before the Senate committee the admission was made by one of the Virginia pilots, under cross-examination, that his income in 1919 as reported for Federal income tax purposes, amounted to $25,000. Another witness examined by the committee testified that the income tax report of a certain pilot showed that his income for the year 1919 arising from his membership in the Virginia Pilots' Association amounted to $40,000. Up to the present time this statement, so far as can be ascertained, has never been contradicted by either the pilots or their attorneys, although it was given wide publicity both during the session of the General Assembly and subsequently. It is a legitimate inference, therefore, that the figures given are approximately correct.

EARNINGS OF VIRGINIA PILOTS AND OF CAPTAINS IN THE MERCHANT MARINE COMPARED

As to the relation which exists between the earnings of the Virginia pilots and their work and responsibility, it is of interest to refer to the compensation of officers of coastwise vessels which go in and out of Norfolk harbor. In conformity with the practice prevailing generally, coastwise shipping has been exempted in Virginia from compulsory pilotage. The captains of such vessels calling at Virginia ports have accordingly found it necessary to familiarize themselves not only with the Norfolk harbor but with numerous other harbors along the coast where it may be necessary to take on or discharge cargoes or take on fuel. In addition, these officers have entire responsibility for the care and management of the vessel and crew and must exercise numerous other duties and responsibilities which are not required of a Virginia pilot.

As contrasted with the income of the Virginia pilots, which apparently ranged as high as $40,000 in 1919, it is of interest to note that the compensation of these officers of coastwise vessels in 1919 ranged from a minimum of $3,960 to a maximum of only $4,950.* According to the best information available, in other words, the members of the Virginia Pilots' Association are receiving from five to eight times the compensation of the highest paid officers of the American Merchant Marine for work inferior in every way in skill and responsibility.

Pilotage Fees and Commerce

The imperative need for removing the handicap of oppressive pilotage charges from the commerce of Hampton Roads is forcibly indicated by the following comparison of the foreign commerce of the principal Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf coast ports. With an harbor unequalled in natural facilities by any other of the country's seaports, the foreign commerce of Hampton Roads during the last five years, expressed in terms of dollars, has amounted each year to an average of only $187,171,335. This is less than one-half that of its nearest rival, the port of Galveston. It is materially less than one-half the foreign commerce of the customs districts of Maryland, San Francisco and Washington. It is only about one-third that of Massachusetts. It is less than one-third that of either New Orleans or Philadelphia, and is less than one-twentieth the value of the foreign commerce of the customs district of New York.

Compulsory Accounting

In the States of California, New York and Massachusetts, pilotage service is administered on the assumption that the public is entitled to full information as to the earnings of pilots. This principle finds expression in a legal requirement in each State that the pilots shall make periodical reports to the pilotage authorities of all fees collected by them and that the public shall have access to these records. The Boston pilots are required to render these accounts every three months. At San Francisco the reports of the pilots are filed monthly.

The statute covering this phase of pilotage administration in San Francisco is as follows:

"Every pilot of the harbor of San Francisco, Mare Island, Vallejo, and Benicia must once in each month, upon blanks to be furnished them by the board of pilot commissioners, render a verified account to the board of all moneys received by him, or by any other person for him, or on his account, and pay five per cent thereof to the board of pilot commissioners in full compensation for its official services, for the services of its secretary and treasurer, and all incidental expenses. Such account shall give the name of each vessel piloted and the master thereof, and of each vessel for which pilotage has been charged or collected, and the amount charged to or collected from each, and any rebates made and allowed and the amounts thereof, where the same is registered, the depth of its draft, its tonnage, whether inward or outward bound, and whether the amount so received, collected or charged is for full pilotage, or half pilotage, and the secretary shall record such account in full detail in a book prepared for that purpose, which book shall at all times be open to public inspection.*

The enactment of legislation requiring the submission of periodic financial reports by Virginia pilots would mean that the Governor and the General Assembly would have at their command at all times complete financial data on which to base recommendations or legislation for the regulation of the pilotage service in accordance with public interest. Such legislation would also be in accord with the State's Budget procedure and would place the pilotage service on a footing with the departments of the State government in respect of the requirements for financial publicity and accountability enforced under the budget law.

Pilotage at Los Angeles

As contrasted with annual earnings of from $25,000 to $40,000 reported for Virginia pilots in 1919, the maintenance of an efficient pilotage service at the port of Los Angeles, with unusually low rates, has involved the payment of annual salaries by the city, for pilots, of only $2,500. At the same time the two pilots employed at this rate yielded the city of Los Angeles, in 1913, revenue of more than $4,000 as contrasted with a total of only $1,550 annually collected by the State of Virginia in recent years from thirty-one pilots. These facts are illuminating as to the possibilities for the more economical administration of the Virginia pilotage service through a system of State operation of this franchise.

Since May 1, 1911, pilotage at Los Angeles has been regulated by a municipal ordinance of the city of Los Angeles enacted upon the repeal by the legislature of a special act of March 18, 1889. The city employs two pilots who furnish their own boats and receive annual salaries of $2,500. For the fiscal year 1913 the receipts from pilotage were $9,238, leaving a balance for the city of Los Angeles, after deducting pilots' salaries, of more than $4,000.

The report of the United States Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce on Pilotage in the United States gives the following brief account of the services at Los Angeles:

"At Los Angeles pilotage inward or outward is charged for at the rate of $1.00 per foot draft and one cent per net ton, except in the case of a vessel entering the port for the purpose of taking on water, fuel or other supplies, or to receive orders or to report, provided that such vessel shall not moor at any wharf. The charge for this class of vessel is only fifty cents per foot draft and one cent per net ton.

"All pilotage fees are paid to the board of harbor commissioners, a municipal body, the pilots being on a salary basis. Such an arrangement formerly existed at the Columbia river ports, six pilots being employed at a salary of $200 per month by the port of Portland commission.

"It is interesting to note that the pilotage service at Los Angeles nets the city a large revenue annually, although the rates of pilotage are exceptionally low and all vessels in the coastwise trade, even those under register, are exempt from pilotage. It should be noted, moreover, that the number of foreign vessels entering and clearing at the port of Los Angeles is comparatively low. The cost of the Los Angeles service is kept at a low level because only two pilots are employed, these men receiving salaries of $2,500 per year, out of which they maintain their own pilot boats.

"Each pilot is required to furnish and maintain at his own cost a suitable pilot boat, which boat he must keep for his exclusive use and which shall be of such description and condition as may be prescribed by the board of pilot commissioners.

"The financial statement of the Los Angeles board of harbor commissioners for the fiscal year ending January 30, 1913, shows that the receipts from the pilotage fees amounted to $9,238.49, while the only expenditures were the salaries paid the two pilots, namely $5,000."

In 1913 the foreign trade of the port of Los Angeles, expressed in terms of dollars, amounted in round numbers to $2,950,000. During the calendar year 1919 the foreign trade of the Virginia customs district, expressed in terms of dollars, amounted in round numbers of $176,000,000. The foreign trade of the southern California district during the same period was about $31,035,000. It is interesting to note, therefore, that the pilotage service at Norfolk earned the State in 1919 a revenue of only $1,550, while the return to the city of Los Angeles, on foreign commerce of less than $3,000,000 in 1913, was $4,239. At the same ratio of revenue to the value of foreign commerce as existed at Los Angeles in 1913, and at the Los Angeles rates, the pilotage service at Norfolk would have earned the State of Virginia, in 1919, revenue of more than $250,000. On the basis of the Virginia rates, which are nearly double those of Los Angeles, the return to the State of Virginia would have been greatly in excess of this amount.

Pilotage Expenses

By contrast with the enormous revenues collected by the Virginia pilots from pilotage, the necessary expenses involved in maintaining an efficient pilotage service at Hampton Roads, are not of great magnitude.

Considered from any angle an annual salary of $3,000 represents a liberal standard of compensation for a Virginia pilot, whose duties and responsibilities are obviously less exacting than those of a first officer in the American Merchant Marine. The rates of pay of these officers in 1920, it may be noted, ranged from a minimum of $2,595 to a maximum of only $2,895.* Allowing the liberal rate of $3,000, therefore, the annual salaries of Virginia pilots, considered collectively, should not in the aggregate exceed $90,000. To maintain in commission the necessary pilotage equipment, including depreciation and all other expenses, should not at the outside cost more than $75,000 per year. To this may be added the cost of the pilot's office, which may be liberally estimated at $5,000 per year. Including salaries and expenses, therefore, the annual cost of maintaining the necessary pilotage service for Virginia harbors should not amount to more than $175,000. As contrasted with this figure, the Virginia pilots are apparently dividing among themselves approximately $1,000,000 annually, or about $825,000 in excess of the reasonable value of their services and legitimate expenses. This is approximately the amount of the annual interest on the State debt or the State's annual appropriation for pensions for Confederate veterans, or the total appropriation for the year 1921-1922 for the State's four colleges and the University of Virginia, and more than half the annual appropriation from the general funds of the State treasury for the public free schools of the State. With the addition of this enormous sum to the State's revenues, the annual appropriation for pensions or for higher education could be practically doubled, in other words, or the appropriation from the general funds for the public free schools of the State could be increased nearly sixty per cent without adding one cent to the taxes now assessed against the people of the Commonwealth.

The above facts are suggestive of the economies which can be effected in the pilotage service in Virginia by subordinating private interests to the interests of the public.

Recommendations

The comparative analysis which has been made of pilotage administration in Virginia and other States indicates the legislation needed to break up the combine of the Virginia pilots and destroy their grip upon the commerce of Hampton Roads. Under proper administration of the pilotage service, shipping in Virginia harbors would be relieved of the burden of oppressive pilotage charges and the funds collected by the pilots, in excess of the reasonable value of their services and their necessary expenses, would be paid into the State treasury for the benefit of the public schools.

In view of the exorbitant rates now collected by Virginia pilots, it is apparent that a wide margin exists both for a reduction in pilotage rates and an increase in the license tax of pilots. That both results are possible is indicated by the relatively high returns to the city of Los Angeles under the low scale of pilotage fees established at this port. It is not recommended that the Los Angeles system be introduced at Hampton Roads, but there can be no controversy as to the imperative need for changes in the existing system, the most essential of which are as follows:

1. An amendment providing for the appointment of pilot commissioners by the Governor and limiting their terms of office to three years.
2. An amendment regulating the number and method of selection of pilots' apprentices.
3. An amendment reducing pilotage fees and providing that all funds collected by the pilots in excess of a reasonable compensation for their labor and their necessary expenses be paid into the State treasury for the benefit of the elementary public schools.
4. An amendment requiring pilots to render monthly statements of their earnings to the Board of Pilot Commissioners, and giving the public access to these records.

The adoption of the amendments suggested above will make it impossible for an organized group of self-appointed pilots further to exploit shipping in Virginia harbors and will insure that public and not private interests shall govern the administration of the State's pilotage service. It will also terminate the existing situation under which the pilots have defied every effort which has been made to obtain definite information as to their earnings and will place at the command of the Governor and the General Assembly financial data which will be invaluable as a basis for the further regulation of the pilotage service as public interest requires. In view of the inordinate profits which the pilots are reaping from the existing rates, it is evident that a radical revision of the existing scale of pilotage fees and licenses can be made without prejudice in any way to the maintenance of an efficient pilotage service at Hampton Roads.

In many respects the fiscal year 1920-21 has been one of the most difficult years in the history of extension work in Virginia. This has been occasioned by the fact that in the general deflation following the war the farmers were harder hit than any other class of people. The truth of this statement is readily seen when a study of the index figures for all commodities is made.

In June, 1921, the index number of wholesale prices for all commodities was 151. Compared with a five-year average before the war as 100, the purchasing power of some farm products at prices paid to farmers in June, 1921, was as follows: Corn 61, oats 60, wheat 93, beans 81, cotton 51, hay 68, cabbage 111, potatoes 64, peanuts 48, apples 91, eggs 77, beef cattle 69, lambs 79, hogs 67, and horses 45. In other words, during the first six months of this year as compared with 1913 the purchasing power of the farmer's dollar stood at about 70 per cent. Practically nothing that the farmer sold could be exchanged for the usual quantity of things which he had to buy.

MARKETING WORK.

When the crops were harvested and the markets opened up in 1920 the farmers of Virginia quickly realized the conditions described above and came to the Extension Division for help. They stated that the Extension Division had taught them to produce much more than they could market at a profit. This, of course, was not entirely true, but it indicated very clearly that if the Extension Division of Virginia was to meet successfully the problems presented to it by the farmers of the State it had to give considerably more attention to the question of marketing than in the past. Realizing this, the Director of Extension, together with the administrative officers and specialists, gave considerable attention to the study of successful marketing organizations. The constitutions and by-laws, marketing contracts, etc., of every so-called successful farmers' co-operative marketing organization in the United States was studied in detail. This information was assembled and given to the farmers of the State through the county agents, specialists and administrative officers.

As a result of these conditions and this work, more progress has been made in Virginia during the last year towards the establishment of successful co-operative marketing organizations than ever before in the history of the State. The peanut growers of Virginia and North Carolina have formed a co-operative exchange for the marketing of peanuts, with 5,000 growers signed up to market all of their peanuts through the exchange for a period of seven years. This organization has employed one of the best peanut marketing men in the State as manager and is now ready to do business.

The tobacco growers of Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina have agreed to market 50 per cent of the tobacco grown in the three States through a central marketing organization. About 18,000 Virginia tobacco growers, or practically 75 per cent, have signed the contract to market all of their tobacco through this association for a period of five years. This organization will not be completed until December, 1921.

The tobacco growers of the sun-cured belt secured such a small price for their tobacco when the market opened in 1920 that they decided to form a small temporary pool. Over a million pounds of tobacco was held in this pool for a period of ten months. This tobacco was recently sold at a profit of about $6.00 per hundred above the price paid to farmers who did not pool their tobacco in this territory.

The cabbage and potato growers of Southwest Virginia have been assisted in forming a co-operative exchange for handling these crops. This exchange has been very successful, having handled this year about half of the cabbage and potatoes grown in Smyth and Wythe counties at a considerable saving.

The Virginia fruit growers were making plans to form a large commodity marketing organization along the lines mentioned above, but postponed this action on account of losing practically the whole 1921 crop from a heavy frost early in the year. However, a number of small fruit organizations have been formed for the purpose of studying better methods of production, standardization and marketing.

The dairymen of Northern Virginia have joined with the dairymen of Maryland in forming an organization for the better marketing of their products. This is a comparatively large organization and has made good progress up to the present time. Smaller dairy organizations have been formed in the territory surrounding the larger cities.

The live stock growers have also given considerable study to the question of marketing and are now tackling the problem through co-operative shipping associations. The county agents, together with the State Division of Markets, have organized a number of successful co-operative shipping associations in this State during the past year. This work is growing rapidly.

It can be seen from the report of the progress made in marketing during the past year that Virginia farmers are thoroughly alive to the necessity of bettering their condition through organization. There are more organized farmers in Virginia at present than ever before in the history of the State, and the best thing about these organizations is that they all have a definite purpose and are founded on safe and sane lines. The part played by the Extension Division has been to take to the farmers the latest and best information in regard to successful organizations for marketing. An effort has been made in all cases to make the farmers understand that there is no such thing as setting arbitrary prices on farm commodities, but there is such a thing as more orderly and efficient marketing. Most of our farmers now realize this fact and the further highly important fact that trained business management should be employed to conduct the business of the marketing organizations. That the work done by the Extension Division in helping the farmers with their marketing problems has been appreciated is evidenced by the fact that Virginia is one of the few States which has increased the number of county agents in the past year. Instead of hard times cutting down the amount of extension work it has practically doubled it in this State. At the present time we have five more county agents than a year ago and several additional specialists, but in spite of this increase in the number of workers we cannot keep up with the demands from the farmers.

ECONOMIC PRODUCTION.

But while much attention has been given to the question of marketing during the past year, better methods of production have not been overlooked. We try always to keep before the farmers of this State the fact that economic production is the first step in successful marketing. How well this has been done is indicated by the increase in yields which has been made in the principal crops of this State during the past few years. Extension work, under the Smith-Lever act, was started in Virginia in 1914, when the farm demonstration work was taken over by the State and Federal governments and connected up with the State Agricultural College. In order to find out whether extension work has had any real effect on crop yields, a comparison was recently made of the average yields as given by the Bureau of Crop Estimates for the period of 1910 to 1914 and the period of 1915 to 1920. In addition to the comparison of the two periods, a comparison was also made with the yields of a number of our sister States to the South. The results of these comparisons are given in the table below.

	Corn		Oats		Irish Potatoes		Sweet Potatoes		Hay
	1910-14	1915-20	1910-14	1915-20	1910-14	1915-20	1910-14	1915-20	1910-14	1915-20
Virginia .....	24	28	20.2	23.2	77.8	108.5	96	116.8	1	1.53
North Carolina .....	19	20.5	18.2	18.7	70.8	89.7	94.2	102	1.26	1.39
South Carolina .....	18.5	17.2	21.3	20.2	78	89.6	91.4	96	1.16	1.10
Georgia .....	15.2	15.2	20.5	19.3	76.6	70.5	85.2	89.1	1.37	1.14
Alabama .....	17.5	15	20.1	18.2	80.4	78.1	94	90.1	1.35	1.01
Mississippi .....	19.5	17	19.6	18.6	83	80.8	92.8	94.5	1.43	1.46

A study of this table will show that Virginia has made a greater increase in the yields per acre in the crops mentioned than any of the other States with which it was compared. There has been an increase in Virginia of 4 bushels of corn per acre, 3 bushels of oats, 30.7 bushels of Irish potatoes, 20.8 bushels of sweet potatoes, and one-third of a ton of hay. These are indeed wonderful increases when it is considered that they are not just the increases for one year, which may be due to seasonal conditions, but are average increases over a period of years.

Of course, it is not claimed that extension work is responsible for all of these increases, but it is claimed that county agents and other representatives of the Agricultural College have done a great deal of extension work in all these crops. It is indeed gratifying to see the increases which have taken place since this work was started.

ADMINISTRATION.

There were practically no changes in the plan of organization for the administration of extension work from July 1, 1920, to June 30, 1921. The change made last year whereby the Director of Extension Work was instructed to report directly to the dean of the college of agriculture instead of to the president has been giving entire satisfaction. It has brought about a closer relationship between the work of the college, the Experiment Station and the Extension Division. The meetings of representatives of these three departments have also been of much help in bringing about a better understanding of the work of the different departments. In fact, the co-operation between the departments is better now than ever before in the history of the Extension Division. All forces at the college are working in perfect harmony with each other and with the farm organizations in Virginia for a greater development of Virginia's agriculture.

There have been no changes in the duties and relationships of the principal officers of the Extension Division. The Director has associated with him an assistant director in charge of farm demonstration work and a State agent in charge of home demonstration work. Associated with the assistant director and State agent are district agents of men's and women's work. These district agents have direct supervision of the county agents. They are responsible not only for the adult work in their territory, but also for the boys' and girls' club work. The State agent in charge of boys' club work has no administrative authority and reports directly to the assistant director in charge of farm demonstration work. The State agent in charge of girls' club work has no administrative authority and reports directly to the State agent of home demonstration work.

There are field specialists in agronomy, animal husbandry, agricultural engineering, dairy husbandry, plant pathology, poultry husbandry, horticulture, vegetable gardening, etc. These specialists are under the direct supervision of the Director of Extension Work. They work with and through the county agents and help carry to the farmers the latest information in their respective lines. They have no administrative authority. For subject matter they are responsible to the subject matter heads of their respective departments in the Agricultural College.

The arrangement described above is working splendidly at the present time and we see no reason for change as long as this condition continues.

CHANGES IN RELATIONSHIPS.

There have been no special changes in relationships to other parts of the institution or to other agricultural agencies during the year. However, a special effort has been made to carry out the agricultural policy worked out last year. Regular quarterly meetings of the college agricultural workers have been held and special efforts have been made from time to time to bring about a closer relationship with the various State departments, such as the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Public Instruction, the Farm Bureau, the Farmers' Union, the breed associations, seed associations, dairy-men's associations, etc. A special rural life conference was called in Richmond in the spring of 1921 to which all co-operative agricultural and educational agencies in Virginia were invited. The representatives of the farm organizations present unanimously passed a resolution asking the Extension Division of the Agricultural College to take the leadership in all movements for the betterment of agricultural conditions in Virginia. This shows that there is the right kind of relationship between the farm organizations of the State and the Extension Division, and that the farm organizations appreciate the efforts which the Extension Division has made to serve them. We believe that this action is a direct result of the agricultural policy outlined during the past year.

SOURCES OF EXTENSION REVENUE.

The Extension Division of Virginia is financed by appropriations made: (1) Directly to the United States Department of Agriculture and Farmers' Co-Operative Demonstration Work; (2) appropriations for co-operative extension work in accordance with the terms of the Federal Smith-Lever act; (3) appropriations for co-operative extension work in accordance with the terms of the Federal extension act; (4) appropriations and contributions by counties and cities; (5) appropriations by farmers' associations, boards of trade, chambers of commerce, etc.

The total revenues appropriated for agricultural extension work in Virginia for the year 1920-21 were as follows:

Farmers' co-operative demonstration work.....	$ 32,000 00
Federal Smith-Lever .....	109,571 81
State Smith-Lever .....	99,571 81
Federal extension fund .....	48,179 91
State extension fund .....	48,179 91
Other bureaus .....	1,300 00
Local appropriations from counties, etc. ....	66,614 03
Total .....	$405,417 47

The amounts shown above are the amounts budgeted for the year 1920-21. A number of changes were made throughout the year in the county appropriations and appropriations from other sources. We received more money from the counties than was budgeted. Slight changes were also made, at the request of the States relations service, in the appropriation from the farmers' co-operative demonstration fund. A complete financial statement showing all expenditures has been prepared and submitted to the president of the Virginia Agricultural and Mechanical College and Polytechnic Institute and to the chief of the States relations service of the United States Department of Agriculture. All information as to detailed expenditures for the year can be gotten from this report.

It can be seen from the above figures that the Virginia Extension Division is not yet receiving total appropriations equalling the appropriations received in 1918-19, when, with the emergency money, the total appropriations for Virginia amounted to $438,781.94. However, the Virginia Extension Division has stood the period of readjustment well and its finances are in good shape.

There has been no recent State legislation affecting expenditures and no new laws and rules relating to appropriations.

The changes in personnel will be set forth in the reports of the various projects.

METHODS FOR INCREASING THE EFFICIENCY.

The chief method used to increase efficiency of extension work during the past year has been to have every extension worker have a definite plan of work based on the needs of the people whom he is trying to serve.

The county agents have drawn up their plans of work with the assistance of local farmers and their district agents. The specialists have drawn up their plans of work after consulting with the county agents and with the assistance of the heads of the subject matter departments of the college.

The quarterly meetings of the agricultural workers mentioned above have done much to increase efficiency along all lines. For instance, at the last quarterly meeting representatives of the Farmers' Union, the Farm Bureau and the Tobacco Association presented to the workers of the Agricultural College ways by which they thought the college, the Experiment Station and the Extension Division could be of greater service to each of their organizations. The suggestions made will be followed out as far as possible during the present year.

In each project where more than one specialist is employed the ranking specialist is made head of the department and is held responsible for the work in that project. The head of the department, with the assistance of his co-workers, draws up a definite plan of work which he submits to the Director at the beginning of each year. At the end of the year a detailed report is made showing the work accomplished under the project. Copies of specialists' reports are submitted herewith.

Publications

PROJECT No. 2.

There is a distinct department of publications maintained by the Extension Division, the purpose of which is to furnish to the people of Virginia information in regard to what extension work has done, what it is doing and what it is prepared to do. It is the function of the information service to tell farmers, farm women and boys and girls of the State, through the medium of the printed word, what are the latest and best things in farming and home keeping.

This information service is carried on through the daily and weekly papers of the State, through certain magazines circulated in Virginia, such as the Southern Planter, Journal of Education, Progressive Farmer, etc., and through the regular publications of the Extension Division, such as the Agricultural Club Letter, the Extension Division News, Extracts from County Agents' Reports, bulletins and circulars. Practically all of the daily newspapers in Virginia, and at least one paper in each county (where there is a paper) co-operate by giving space to matters sent out from the central office. The plan is followed of furnishing the papers in every section with the kind of copy that is particularly suited to the needs of that section. During the year covered by this report an average of four articles per month have been furnished the daily papers, and an average of three articles per month the county papers.

The Extension Division News is a four-page, sixteen-column newspaper issued each month for the farmers, farm women, bankers, ministers, public school superintendents, State officials, and all others in Virginia who are interested in the betterment of conditions on farms and in the homes of the State. It contains practical suggestions for and results of work done along the various lines that are being developed in the home office and field. It is mailed free of charge to anyone who asks for it and the papers of the State are invited to use the material in its columns. The circulation of the Extension Division News has grown from 10,000 to 27,000 during the last year and new requests are coming in daily. The mailing list for all extension publications is kept up to date, and whenever a copy is returned because of inability of the post-office to deliver same an effort is made to find the correct address, and if this is not possible, the name is removed from the list.

monthly by the Department of Publicity, containing matter of special interest to club members. This material is furnished by State leaders and specialists in club work. Considerable material is furnished by the club members themselves. About 12,000 copies of the Club Letter are sent out each month.

All field reports from agents, both white and colored, are gone over carefully by the editor for items of particular interest. At the end of each month, the best of these extracts are compiled and mimeographed for distribution to the agents, specialists, newspapers, county officers, etc. In this way the agents are able to keep in touch with one another.

BULLETINS AND CIRCULARS.

Bulletins and circulars are published from time to time to furnish special information and meet special demands. A general mailing list is maintained in the office carrying about 27,000 names. A few of the bulletins and circulars are sent to this whole list, but individual mailing lists of farmers interested in different subjects are kept and the bulletins relating to these special subjects, such as agronomy, dairying, etc., are sent to these special lists. It is believed that this means greater efficiency and less waste of paper, labor, etc.

Appended hereto is a list of bulletins and circulars issued from July 1, 1920, to June 30, 1921:

PROJECTS.

The various lines of work carried on by the Extension Division are conducted under definite project agreements. These projects outline just what problems are to be attacked, who is to carry on the work, and the method of procedure to be followed. In order to give a definite idea of the work accomplished during the year 1920-21 by the Extension Division, a list of the projects carried on is given below followed by a brief account of what has been accomplished in each project.

- 1-A Administration.
- 1-B College men's travel.
- 2 Printing.
- 3 County farm demonstration agents.
- 4 County home demonstration agents.
- 5 Cheese making.

The work in marketing and farm economics and the bee work were both added during the year at the insistent demands of the farmers of the State. The specialists under these projects are being paid entirely from State funds.

PROJECT 1-A.

The object of the administration project is the co-ordination and administration of extension work in agriculture and home economics provided for in the general memorandum of understanding dated June 30, 1914, between the Agricultural and Mechanical College and Polytechnic Institute and the United States Department of Agriculture, and co-operating with such other State and local institutions as may arrange for work under this project. The Director of Extension is the leader of this project and has associated with him such assistants, clerks, stenographers, etc., as are necessary to carry on the work. During the year 1920-21 the following people were employed under the administration project:

John R. Hutcheson, director.
E. R. Price, editor.
Charles I. Wade, treasurer.
Pemberton Thacker, accountant.
Minnie Davidson, secretary to director.
J. H. Taft, assistant treasurer.
J. S. Schaeffer, supply clerk.
Mrs. Anna Faulkner, file clerk.
Elizabeth Sprinkle, stenographer.
Ruth Puckett, stenographer.
Carrie Schaeffer, mail clerk.
Mary Reynolds, clerk.
Estelle Kinzer, clerk.
Mary Gray, stenographer.
Annie Schaeffer, stenographer.
Leon Price, janitor.

The clerical force in the central office was considerably reduced last year, but during the present year it has been necessary to put on some additional employees to take care of the work. All letters, bulletins, circulars and circular letters sent out to county agents are handled from the main office. In addition, about 10,000 copies of the Club Letter and 30,000 copies of the Extension Division News are mailed out monthly.

For ease and convenience in budgeting the funds many other expenses than those necessary to directing and co-ordinating the various lines of work are included under the head of administration. Such items as the salary and travel of the Director, salary of the editor, treasurer, accountant, special stenographers, clerks, etc., are all budgeted under this project. To this project is also charged such expenses as the purchase of books, subscriptions to magazines, repairs of buildings, charges for heat, light, drayage, telephone and telegraph.

College Men's Travel

PROJECT 1-B.

A small sum is budgeted each year under this project to pay the traveling expenses of certain employees of the college on field trips for the Extension Division. On account of the limited number of specialists employed by the Extension Division of Virginia, it often happens that there are more calls from the field than can be filled. Under the arrangement worked out under this project, the Extension Division calls on heads of departments of the College and Experiment Station for help in meeting these demands. The employees of the College and Experiment Station are very willing to make these field trips if the Extension Division will pay the travel expenses. Quite a number of trips were made during the past year by employees of the college in the departments of agronomy, animal husbandry, dairying, plant pathology, entomology, etc. This arrangement works to the mutual advantage of the College and Extension Division.

Printing and Publications

PROJECT 2.

Funds are provided under this project for the printing and sending out of all bulletins and for the publication of the Extension Division News and the Agricultural Club Letter. Full details as to the organization of the project, problems attacked and results obtained have already been given in this report under the head of publications.

PROJECT 3.

Virginia is one of the few States which did not lose a number of counties in farm demonstration work during the past year. A recent report from the States relations service shows that instead of a loss Virginia had an actual increase of five counties during the year. This is very gratifying, and would indicate that Virginia county agents are, in a large measure, meeting the demands of the farmers of the State. It is true that deflation was not quite so great last year in Virginia as in some of the other Southern States, but there has been a great loss to farmers in most every section of the State and they are trying to cut down expenses in every way possible. The county agent's office is one of the few that is not required by law, and it is perfectly natural that in an effort to cut down taxes the work should, in some cases, be abolished. However, in spite of the era of hard times, only three counties dropped out during the year, these being Scott, Halifax and Prince Edward. The farmers in Halifax and Prince Edward, however, have recently raised sufficient appropriations to continue the work in these counties. Virginia would undoubtedly have lost a much larger number of counties had it not been for the marketing work done by the county agents. The agents were especially active in the tobacco, peanut, truck and dairy organizations.

It can be seen that there were quite a number of resignations during the year, but not nearly so many as during the last fiscal year. The feeling of restlessness which pervaded the ranks of the county agents immediately following the war seems to have, in a large measure, disappeared. The agents seem to be better satisfied and have settled down to steady, well planned work. It is much easier at the present time to get good agents than it has been in the last two or three years. A plan has recently been adopted which requires all agents to have some practical experience before they are placed in charge of the work in a county. Young men just out of college are given from three to six months' training as assistant agents. We find that this materially increases their efficiency.

WORK ACCOMPLISHED BY AGENTS.

The work done by the county farm demonstration agents may be divided into three classes: First, general work; second, special campaigns, and third, definite demonstrations. We have always considered the definite demonstrations the most important part of the agent's work. However, during the present year a great deal of time had to be given to special campaigns in order to educate the farmers along marketing lines.

The statistical data given under this project cover the calendar year 1920 as reports for 1921 are not yet in hand.

The Virginia county farm demonstration agents last year, in performance of their duties, traveled 78,069 miles by rail, 302,538 miles by team or auto, made 12,517 visits to demonstrators, 7,810 visits to co-operators, 19,484 visits to other farmers, 3,683 visits to business men, and 9,586 visits to club members, or a total of 53,090 visits. In addition to this, 20,126 personal visits were made to the agents at their offices, and 12,455 telephone calls were received relative to their work. These agents also held more than 3,000 meetings with a total attendance of 160,137 people.

To give an adequate idea of an average day's work for a county agent, we have estimated 293 days per year as being devoted to official work. With this as a standard, we find that the average agent in Virginia during the past year traveled 4.5 miles by rail, 17.5 miles by auto, made 3 visits to farmers, received 1 visit, answered 1 telephone call, wrote 2.2 letters, sent out 4.4 circular letters, and held a meeting once a week at which he addressed 63 people. In addition to this, he made his regular weekly, monthly and annual reports, mailed out circulars, bulletins, and performed other miscellaneous work which falls to the lot of all county agents. All this work was performed without stenographic or other office assistance and shows that the average Virginia county agent is a busy man.

COUNTY ORGANIZATIONS.

Forty-four county agents report that they have county organizations supporting their work. Of this number there are 27 farmers' unions, 8 farm bureaus and 5 advisory boards, the remainder being fair associations, chambers of commerce, farmers' clubs, etc. The agents assisted in organizing 179 farmers' clubs, farmers' union locals or farm bureaus during the year, with a membership of 5,842. Forty-four agents report that these clubs are dependent upon the county agent for their existence and continuation.

CO-OPERATIVE BUYING AND SELLING ASSOCIATIONS.

Forty-five county agents report that they have assisted 292 such organizations in buying lime, fertilizer, feed, seed and miscellaneous articles to the value of $1,468,299.00 at a saving of $162,598.00. These organizations sold wheat, eggs, live stock and miscellaneous products amounting to $424,866.00 at a profit of $37,804.00 over local prices to producers. This does not include large savings made through the pooling of wool and the handling of truck and other farm products by regularly established farm marketing organizations in the State.

SPECIAL CAMPAIGNS.

As stated above, a large part of the agent's time during the past year has been given over to special campaigns. The low prices of farm products and the demand for special information in regard to marketing has made these campaigns necessary.

Early in the year the peanut growers of Eastern Virginia and North Carolina started an organization for the co-operative marketing of peanuts. This organization had not gone very far before it found it absolutely necessary to have the assistance of the Extension Divisions of the two States. In answer to a call from this organization for help, the district and county agents were instructed to give whole-hearted support to the movement. Most of their work was confined to arranging meetings and explaining to the farmers the meaning of the contract which they were asked to sign. A great deal of educational work in regard to marketing was done through this organization. The organization has recently been completed with a total of more than 5,000 signers who have agreed to market all of their peanuts through the association for a period of seven years. A man who has made a success of selling peanuts on a large scale has been employed as manager of the organization.

When the tobacco marketing season opened up in the fall of 1920 the average price paid farmers was around twenty cents a pound. The average for the 1919 season was above fifty cents a pound. The farmers were naturally indignant and began to hold mass-meetings all over the tobacco territory. A meeting of 5,000 farmers was held in Danville, Va., which is the principal tobacco market in the State. At this meeting resolutions were passed and sent to the Director of Extension Work calling on the Extension Division to help the tobacco farmers work out a plan for marketing. Since that time the administrative officers, district agents and county agents in the tobacco territory have given detailed study and whole-hearted support to this work. A plan for marketing tobacco has been worked out proposing a tobacco organization composed of 50 per cent of the tobacco growers in Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina. This plan was worked out by the best farmers, business men and agricultural educators in the three States. It has been presented to the farmers and met with general approval. Approximately 18,000 tobacco growers of Virginia have signed the tobacco marketing contract agreeing to sell all of their tobacco through this organization for a period of five years. Virginia completed its sign-up in four months and has led all the other States in the work done along this line. The county agents in the tobacco territory gave a large part of their time to explaining the contract to the farmers and helping them work out organization plans. This organization must be completed by December 31st. It looks now as if it will be completed successfully on time, and if it is it will be the largest co-operative marketing organization in the eastern part of the United States, having around 75,000 members and handling about $250,000,000 worth of tobacco annually.

The potato and cabbage growers of Southwest Virginia sustained such heavy losses last year that they were forced to start a co-operative marketing organization for selling these products for the present year. The county agents in Smyth and Wythe counties, together with specialists from the Extension Division, gave much assistance in forming this organization. Up to the present time it has worked very successfully and handled a large part of the crop at a good profit.

The county agents in Northern Virginia were called on to assist in the campaign for putting across the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers' Association. They have rendered valuable assistance along this line.

The pure-bred sire campaign which was begun last year was continued, and it is gratifying to report that, up to the present, Virginia leads all the other States in the Union in the number of farmers who have signed the enrollment blanks agreeing to use only pure-bred sires. The county agent in Pulaski county took especial interest in this work, enrolling 429 signers, which was the highest enrollment of any county in the United States.

A poultry culling campaign was put on through the county agents by the poultry department. Special schools were held at which the agents were instructed in this work. These agents then went back to their counties and held culling demonstrations in a number of communities. This work is doing much to improve the poultry in the State.

DEFINITE DEMONSTRATIONS.

Those in charge of extension work in this State have always insisted that the agents carry on as many definite demonstrations with farmers and club members as possible. A demonstrator is a farmer who agrees to carry out a definite project as outlined by the agent and to make a report on the same when the demonstration is completed. In addition to demonstrators, our agents enroll a great many co-operators. A co-operator is a farmer who follows, in a large measure, the instructions given by the agent, but does not make a definite written report on his project.

On account of the amount of time given to special campaigns during the year, the number of actual demonstrators who reported was not quite so large as in the past. However, the work done and the yields made by demonstrators were very good. An attempt is made in the following paragraphs to show something of the work accomplished by the demonstrators and co-operators during the past year, and in some instances to show the average increase in yields during the last ten years. We believe that these demonstrations have done more to increase the yields per acre of our principal crops than any other one thing.

CORN.

Corn is the most widely grown and most valuable crop of the State. The 1920 census recorded 1,804,802 acres of corn, producing 42,302,978 bushels. Though corn is grown on practically every farm, very little is sold out of the State. In the eastern part of the State where animal production is not an important enterprise corn is grown chiefly for feeding work animals and for human consumption. In the western part of the State it is grown for feed for animals which are an important source of revenue.

Number of demonstrators.....	584
Number acres .....	9,048
Yield per acre on demonstrations.....	54.5 bushels
Increase over average State yield.....	26.6 bushels
Number of co-operators.....	2,047
Number acres grown by co-operators.....	26,145
Yield per acre.....	41.3 bushels
Number farmers testing seed.....	826
Number planting pure-bred seed.....	704
Number field selecting seed.....	1,507

The county agents reported that over 50 per cent of the farmers in counties having agents are following demonstration methods in growing corn. That these methods are bringing results can be seen in the increased yield per acre of the corn crop in Virginia during the last ten years. The average yield per acre for the years 1910 to 1914 was 24 bushels, while the average yield per acre for the period 1915 to 1920 was 28 bushels. This is a greater average increased yield per acre than has been shown in any other Southern Atlantic State.

COTTON AND TOBACCO.

Cotton is grown in Virginia in only a few counties. Four agents report nineteen demonstrators with 140 acres yielding 1,178 pounds of seed cotton per acre. This is an increase of 528 pounds over the State average.

Tobacco is one of our important crops, but up until the present time our agents have not conducted many demonstrations with the same, the idea having been to get the farmers in the tobacco section to diversify their crops rather than grow tobacco. However, with the coming of the tobacco association, definite plans are being made to get tobacco farmers to conduct demonstrations with varieties, fertilizers, seed treatment, etc. These demonstrations will be conducted through the locals of the tobacco association. Eight agents report demonstrators with tobacco during the past year. These demonstrators grew 127 acres and made a yield of 818 pounds per acre. This is 235 pounds more than the State average.

A great deal of work was done by the agents in getting the farmers to treat their tobacco seed for wildfire and angular leaf spot. A complete account of this is given in the report of the specialist in plant pathology.

WHEAT.

Wheat is grown in all sections of the State except the coastal plain area. The 1920 census showed 990,506 acres of wheat in the State which produced 11,446,027 bushels. It will be seen from these figures that the average yield per acre in the State—11.5 bushels—will hardly pay the cost of production. However, wheat works well in a rotation with other crops, furnishes bedding for cattle, gives a good place for grass seeding and does not seriously compete with other crops for labor. For these reasons it will probably continue to be an important crop in the State.

Thirty-three agents reported 262 demonstrators with this crop. Four thousand three hundred and ninety-six acres were sown under demonstration methods, which made an average yield of 23 bushels per acre, or more than double the average yield for the State.

OTHER GRAINS.

Oats, rye and barley are all grown to a limited extent. Of these oats is the chief, being grown for home feed on a large number of farms of the State. Both winter and spring varieties of oats are grown in the eastern half of the State where the winters are mild, but in the western half where the winters are more rigorous only spring varieties are seeded. The 1920 census showed 135,842 acres of oats with a yield of 1,958,609 bushels. Rye is grown for grain on some of the thinner soils of the State where wheat does not do well, but is chiefly used for winter grazing and a green manure crop.

The table below shows some of the work done by agents during the past year with these crops:

Number of demonstrators with oats.....	57
Number acres grown under demonstration methods .....	422
Yield per acre.....	48	bushels
Increase over State average.....	22.6	bushels
Number demonstrators with rye.....	16
Number acres grown.....	1,234
Yield per acre.....	19	bushels
Increase over ordinary methods.....	7.5	bushels

A study of the average yield of oats during the past ten years shows a decided increase in the yield per acre in this crop. For the period 1910 to 1914 the average yield in the State of Virginia, as given by the Bureau of Crop Estimates, was 20.2 bushels, while for the period of 1915 to 1920 the average yield per acre was 23.2 bushels. This is a greater average increased yield per acre than is shown by any of the surrounding States.

HAY AND FORAGE CROPS.

The 1920 census gives the acreage of hay in Virginia as 856,257 acres, with a total production of 944,693 tons. As most of the hay produced in the State is grown in those sections where live stock raising is an important industry, it is largely fed on the farm. Some hay is shipped from the Valley of Virginia to the tobacco section of the State and to other Southern States. The greater part of the hay sold is timothy, clover and alfalfa.

Better production of hay has been one of the main projects of the county agents of Virginia ever since the work was started. The greater use of lime, fall seeding, better preparation of the soil, and inoculation have been taught in every section of the State. The table below shows some of the work accomplished by county agents with the main hay crops during the past year.

Number of alfalfa demonstrators.....	236
Number of acres grown.....	7,295
Yield of cured hay per acre.....	3.5 tons
Number of farmers ordering inoculating material....	933
Number of demonstrators with mixed grasses and clovers .....	297
Number of acres under demonstrations.....	3,528
Yield per acre of cured hay.....	2¼ tons
Number red clover and sweet clover demonstrators..	277
Number of acres in these demonstrations.....	2,907
Average yield per acre on demonstrations.....	1.9 tons
Number of soy bean and cowpea demonstrators.....	656
Number of acres grown as demonstrations.....	7,083
Average yield of hay per acre.....	2 tons

It can be seen from the above figures that the yields per acre of all forage crops are much higher when improved methods are used. In this connection it is interesting to note that the average yield of hay in Virginia has increased from 1 ton per acre for the period 1910-14 to 1½ tons per acre for the period 1915-20. Improved methods advocated by the county agents have undoubtedly brought about much of this increase.

POTATOES.

Both Irish and sweet potatoes are grown in large quantities in Virginia. The chief market crops of potatoes raised in the State are grown in Tidewater Virginia. The 1920 census recorded 105,780 acres of Irish potatoes grown in the State, producing 12,263,375 bushels.

The county agents report fifty-seven demonstrations on 239 acres with Irish potatoes, with an average yield of 150 bushels per acre. They also report 81 acres of sweet potatoes grown under demonstration methods, with a yield of 150 bushels per acre.

The methods of growing potatoes have been greatly improved in this State during the past few years, as indicated by the fact that the average yield per acre of Irish potatoes has increased from 77.8 bushels for the period 1910-14 to 108.5 bushels per acre for the period 1915-20. The yield of sweet potatoes has increased from 96 bushels per acre for the period 1910-14 to 116.8 bushels for the period 1915-20.

PEANUTS.

The 1920 census shows that Virginia farmers planted 133,162 acres of peanuts with a production of 5,865,127 bushels. It can be seen that this is a very important crop in the State. However, practically all of these peanuts were planted in Tidewater Virginia.

The agents in the peanut section report forty demonstrators growing 600 acres of peanuts, with an average yield of 80 bushels per acre. This is about 30 bushels higher than the average for that section and shows what can be accomplished by improved methods.

A great deal of work was done by the agents in the peanut growing counties during the past twelve months in helping to organize the Co-Operative Peanut Exchange with headquarters at Suffolk. This is a purely co-operative farmers' organization which now has a membership of 5,000 Virginia and North Carolina farmers who have agreed to sell all of their peanuts through the exchange for a period of seven years. Since the organization has been completed Mr. Birdsong, of the Birdsong Peanut Company, has been employed as manager. Mr. Birdsong is considered one of the best peanut men in the trade. This is the first large commodity organization perfected in Virginia and its success is being watched with much interest.

ORCHARDS.

Fruit growing is one of the most important lines of farming in the Piedmont and Valley sections of Virginia. Virginia apples have an enviable reputation for quality and flavor and demand top market prices when properly marketed. The 1920 census gave the commercial crop of the State as 2,300,000 barrels. Virginia ranks as the third commercial apple growing State in the Union.

A large part of the extension work done with the commercial orchardists has been done by the specialists in horticulture. However, they do this work through the county agents. The small home orchards are necessarily looked after largely by the county agents. These agents report that during the past year they inspected 1,037 orchards, pruned 1,031, sprayed 583, helped with the planting of 74 new orchards, and treated 196 peach orchards for borers. The county agent usually takes a small part of the orchard as a demonstration and gets the owner to agree to follow the practices used.

LIVE STOCK DEMONSTRATIONS.

Most of the work done by the county agents with live stock has to do with the introduction of pure-bred sires and teaching of better methods of feeding through live stock associations and cow-testing associations, and the promotion of different breeds through assistance given at co-operative sales, etc. The figures given below show some of the things accomplished by the county agents during the past year in building up the live stock industry of the State.

Number of pure-bred stallions bought due to agent's influence .....	19
Number pure-bred brood mares bought due to agents' influence .....	26
Number of horses and mules fed according to demonstration methods .....	1,338
Number of pure-bred dairy bulls bought due to agents' influence .....	144
Number of pure-bred cows and heifers .....	366
Number of pure-bred dairy bulls sold due to agents' influence .....	672
Number of cows tested regularly .....	2,586
Number of new cow-testing associations established .....	5
Number of farmers helped with feeding problems .....	1,031
Number of pure-bred beef bulls bought due to agents' influence .....	161
Number of pure-bred cows and heifers bought .....	232
Number of pure-breeds sold with agents' help .....	403
Number of breeders' associations formed .....	12
Number of breeding herds started .....	44
Number of pure-bred boars bought due to agents' influence .....	285

Number of sows and gilts bought.....	668
Number of pure-bred hogs sold with agents' help.....	989
Number of feeding demonstrations supervised.....	210
Number of pure-bred rams bought due to agents' influence .....	39
Number of pure-bred ewes bought.....	26

The above figures do not include the live stock work done by the negro agents. The results of work done by the negro county agents are given under Project No. 12.

Ten years ago very little attention was paid to pure-bred live stock in Virginia except by rich breeders and owners of large estates, but with the coming of the county agents and extension work there has been great improvement and Virginia is now the leading live stock State in the South Atlantic Division. The census figures show that Virginia has more pure-bred beef cattle, pure-bred dairy cattle, and pure-bred horses than any other State in this division. More Virginia breeders signed the pure-bred sire enrollment blanks during the past year than from any other State. Virginia stands in the front rank of the States doing tuberculin testing. Breeders' associations, cow-testing associations, co-operative sales, and other measures instituted by county agents and extension workers, are largely responsible for this good showing.

MISCELLANEOUS DEMONSTRATIONS.

In addition to the crop and live stock demonstrations regularly conducted by county agents, a large number of demonstrations are carried on in the use of lime, fertilizers, manure, and general improvements of farms and homes. The table given below sets forth some things accomplished along these lines.

Number of farmers induced to take better care of manure .....	3,112
Number of farmers reinforcing manure with acid phosphate .....	1,082
Number of silos built by demonstrators.....	254
Number of lime bins erected due to agents' influence....	25
Number of demonstrations with lime.....	635
Number of dwellings erected by demonstrators.....	238
Number of building plans furnished.....	353
Number of home water systems installed.....	710
Number of drainage systems established.....	143
Number of farmers induced to buy better machinery....	5,491
Number of farmers advised in regard to use of fertilizer .....	10,842
Number of fertilizer demonstrations.....	437
Number of cattle treated for blackleg by agents' advice	20,822
Number of hogs treated for cholera.....	7,855
Number of hogs treated for other troubles.....	15,409

This table shows briefly a few of the general accomplishments of county agents. There are a number of others that cannot be mentioned for lack of space.

NET RESULTS OF COUNTY AGENTS' WORK IN DOLLARS AND CENTS.

In order to determine whether county agent work actually pays in dollars and cents, the county agent leader has made a very conservative estimate of the amount of profit made by demonstrators through the assistance given by the agents. These figures were compiled from the reports of both the white and negro agents.

ESTIMATED PROFITS.

These figures are not wild estimates, but in every case are based on conservative figures furnished by the county agents' reports. It will be noted that the savings from live stock demonstrations are estimated as being very small. This is because definite demonstrations on which figures could be obtained were not available. If anything, the savings have been underestimated.

County Home Demonstration Agents

PROJECT 4.

For the two years immediately following the war there were a great many changes in the home demonstration work in Virginia. In certain sections of the State there seemed to be a feeling that home demonstration work was a war-time measure, and that it was not necessary after the close of the war. In addition to this, the high salaries paid women in all lines of work caused a number of our best home demonstration agents to resign and enter other work.

However, during the past year things have become more settled and people are realizing that home demonstration work is a permanent activity for the best development of the State. Some of the agents who left during the war and immediately thereafter are enlisting in the ranks again. Three new counties have recently made appropriations for the work, the amounts appropriated being larger than heretofore. There are indications that a number of other counties will make appropriations for beginning the work at an early date.

PUBLICATIONS.

Except for the publication of revised programs for home demonstration clubs and a "Milk Catechism," very little has been prepared for publication by the home demonstration department which bears upon subject matter. Forms for reporting results in cooking, canning, gardening, sewing, and requirements for various phases of club work have been published, as well as suggestions for serving school lunches, receipts for preparing foods, and instructions in breadmaking.

Each month a letter has been sent to the president of all home demonstration clubs giving suggestions for the club work for the following month. The boys' and girls' Club Letter, issued under direction of the agricultural editor each month, carries a great deal of matter in regard to girls' club activities. This paper has done much to perfect and keep alive the State and county organization of boys' and girls' clubs.

ORGANIZATIONS.

It is realized fully that the best home demonstration work cannot be done through individuals, therefore efforts are made at all times to work through organizations, both with the girls and with the women. The general farm organizations are not always so organized as to be of greatest service in the women's work, therefore special organizations have to be formed with both girls and women.

During the past year the home demonstration agents organized 229 girls' clubs which held regular meetings. The attendance at these club meetings during the year was estimated at 13,558. In addition there were eighty-two women's clubs with a membership of 1,608 demonstrators.

GENERAL WORK.

There was an average of twenty-eight home demonstration agents for the year. These agents traveled, in performance of their duties, 32,014 miles by rail, 105,644 miles by auto, and 10,339 miles by team. They made 3,918 visits to schools and clubs, 3,129 visits to demonstrators, 3,946 visits to other farm homes, 3,749 visits to club members, distributed 32,720 bulletins, and held 2,380 meetings with an estimated attendance of 82,167.

SHORT COURSES.

State, district, county and community short courses for girls were held, where instructions were given in canning, cooking, sewing, gardening, clothing, poultry work, etc. A number of short courses have been held where instructions for women were given along with the instructions for the girls.

These short courses have proven to be a very interesting and helpful feature of the work with the girls. During the year there was one State short course with an attendance of 48 girls, 18 county short courses with an attendance of 446 girls and 1 woman, 17 community short courses with an attendance of 410 girls and 120 women.

GIRLS' CLUB WORK.

During the year the home demonstration agents enrolled 2,195 girls in first year clubs, 505 girls in second year clubs, 139 girls in third year clubs, and 57 girls in fourth year clubs.

They reported eighteen girls as having won scholarships to normal schools and colleges, and seventy girls as paying all of their expenses by money earned in club work. The table below gives some things accomplished by girl club members.

Number of pounds of fresh fruits and vegetables raised by club members.....	211,922
Number of quarts put up in tin.....	30,022
Number of quarts of vegetables put up in glass.....	23,896
Pounds dried vegetables saved.....	856

WOMEN'S WORK.

The home demonstration agents reported a total of 82 organized women's clubs for home demonstration work with 1,608 demonstrators enrolled. In addition to this, they reported home demonstration work with 1,143 women not in clubs, and 3,815 women, aside from demonstrators, who were directly influenced by their work.

Demonstrations were given in utilization of vegetables, dairy products, poultry products, and in canning, drying, brineing, etc. It is estimated that 6,461 women attended public demonstrations during the year. Other special work done with women is given below.

Number of gardens grown.....	1,184
Number of quarts of fruit canned.....	144,835
Number of quarts' vegetables canned.....	113,768
Number of pounds of meat smoked.....	111,597

Number of dozen eggs preserved in water glass.....	5,473
Number of dozen eggs used at home.....	19,043
Number of dozen eggs sold co-operatively.....	11,914

In addition to the above, a large amount of work was done with both women and girls in dairying and home improvements. A complete account of this is given in a detailed report submitted herewith.

DOLLARS AND CENTS VALUE OF HOME DEMONSTRATION WORK

It is very difficult to work out the value of home demonstration work on a dollars and cents basis. The great value of this work is in better living conditions in farm homes. However, the State agent in home demonstration work has given the following figures as approximate estimates:

Total value of all poultry products.....	$ 37,188
Total value of all fruit and vegetable products.....	181,925

PROJECT 5.

Conditions prevailing the past year made it difficult to interest farmers in producing milk to be made into cheese. The high price of breeding stock and the high price of whole milk, coupled with an increased demand for market milk at higher prices and the high cost of labor, tended to divert the attention of farmers from producing milk for cheese making. During the latter part of the year, however, some of the farmers began to realize that, although the cheese business showed a small margin of profit, it was a safe business to anchor to and would insure a livelihood and means of paying taxes and current bills. Unfortunately, however, many small farmers who want to go into cheese business do not have sufficient means with which to buy factory equipment and cows.

The season of 1921 opened up very unfavorably for the cheese industry. Prices for cheese were tending downward, and finally reached the lowest point in years. The Wisconsin primary market got down to 12 cents per pound. Some of the factories which had been running in the past did not open up, but in the last few months the price paid for cheese has risen materially and the outlook for the coming year is much brighter.

PERSONNEL.

Professor W. D. Saunders, who is head of the dairy department of the Agricultural College, is employed for part time in extension work and has charge of this project. He had associated with him during the year Mr. Wayne McGowan, who gave special attention to the production end of the work, and Mr. H. F. Fralin, who looked after the practical work in the factories and helped train cheese makers.

PROBLEMS ATTACKED.

The principal problems attacked in carrying on the cheese work were: (1) Establishing the new factories; (2) securing and training cheese makers; (3) improving quality and quantity of cows. During the period covered by this report considerable difficulty was experienced in keeping up the interest in the cheese work. The cause for this has already been mentioned.

METHODS EMPLOYED.

The specialists in cheese work tried to keep in touch with all localities that are interested in the establishment of cheese factories. This interest is developed by personal visits, meetings, etc. After an organization is perfected, the specialists help in getting the cheese equipment and in training a cheese maker. Help is also given in finding a market for the cheese. During the past year special effort has been made to find local people who would take the cheese from the factories at dealers' prices. However, this has not been very satisfactory, and we are now trying to dispose of the cheese through arrangements with some of the big wholesale concerns. We hope to get one of these large packing concerns to handle the cheese on the basis of the Wisconsin market.

Special effort is made to get the milk producers who supply milk to the cheese factories to put in better cows and to give these cows better attention. Help in the building of silos, simple dairy barns, etc., is furnished by extension specialists in cheese work.

RESULTS OBTAINED.

Due to the low price of cheese during the year, the factories at Pilot, Grant and Elk Creek failed to open up and it was with some difficulty that the factory at New London was prevailed upon to continue making cheese. The factories operating in 1921 were the Spring Valley factory, the Eureka factory, the New London factory, and the Gold Ridge factory. The Pilot, Elk Creek and Grant factories operated during the latter half of 1920.

Some interest in the establishing of cheese factories is being evidenced in Bedford, Franklin, Fluvanna, Rockingham and Lancaster counties.

The table below gives some of the results of the cheese factory work:

Total number of pounds of milk delivered to factories.....	596,128
Total number of pounds fat delivered to factories.....	24,433
Total number of pounds of cheese made.....	58,420
Operating expenses .....	$2,688.41
Total amount paid patrons for milk.....	$12,447.34
Total amount received for cheese.....	$15,764.99
Average price paid for fat.....	.51

Animal Husbandry

PROJECT 6.

While the work of this department is expected to cover horses, beef cattle, sheep and swine, most of the time of the specialists during the past year has been devoted to beef cattle and hogs. This was on account of the limited force for handling the work and the great need along the particular lines mentioned.

PERSONNEL.

J. P. Keen had charge of the animal husbandry extension work, with George C. Herring as assistant. Mr. Keen gave a large part of his time to the beef cattle work, while Mr. Herring gave special attention to the swine work. Both of these specialists were new men in the work and some time had to be given to a study of conditions throughout the State before formulating a definite, constructive plan of work.

METHOD OF PROCEDURE.

Most of the work with the live stock breeders was done through county, district and State breeders' associations, and through boys' club projects. All the work was done in connection with the county agents. Two hundred and sixty-nine visits were made to breeders, and 50 visits were made to county agents. Twenty-five meetings were held, at which a total of 732 people were addressed.

RESULTS OBTAINED.

As a result of the specialists' work, the following live stock associations were organized:

Virginia Poland-China Breeders' Association.
 Rockbridge County Pure-Bred Live Stock Association.
 Southside Berkshire Club.
 King George Duroc-Jersey Association.

These, together with the associations already organized, are all co-operating with the Animal Husbandry Department. The Virginia Short Horn and Hereford Breeders' Associations recently contributed $250 each to be used by the department in putting on a pure-bred beef bull campaign.

It is not the policy of the department to take active management of live stock auction sales but to encourage such sales where needed and give such assistance as is requested in handling advertising, advising consignors in regard to feeding and fitting their stock, selecting consignments, etc. The specialists are doing much to raise the standard of the live stock sold in auction sales in Virginia. During the past year they assisted in five beef cattle sales, at which 192 pure-bred beef animals were sold, and ten hog sales, at which 303 pure-bred hogs were sold.

The State Club Judging Team, which won fourth place in the International Club Judging Contest at Atlanta, was coached largely by the specialists in animal husbandry. Much assistance was given the county agents in selecting calves for baby beef club work, thirty of the calves used being purchased through the aid of the specialists.

Five forage crop demonstrations were started during the year. Nine lamb docking and castrating demonstrations were given in nine counties by representatives of the department. These demonstrations were attended by a total of 200 farmers, and about 2,000 lambs were docked and castrated in one county.

The live stock at fourteen county fairs was judged by representatives of the Animal Husbandry Department. Usually considerable time was given to explaining why animals were placed in various positions by the specialists.

Horticulture

PROJECT 7.

The authority for extension work in horticulture is vested in a general project or agreement of understanding to the effect that all activities connected with the production and marketing of horticultural products may be included under horticultural extension work.

During the past few years very successful work has been done in orchard management, disease control, etc. At present there is a very close working relationship with the State Horticultural Society, which organization helps draw up the plans for horticultural extension work.

PERSONNEL.

The horticultural extension staff during the past year consisted of G. S. Ralston, horticulturist, employed one-third time; F. A. Motz and Kent Apperson, full time assistants, and Hugh Ross, half time assistant. Mr. Ross resigned June 30th to accept a position in connection with the Veteran's Bureau.

PROBLEMS ATTACKED.

The general horticultural work was divided into several distinct lines early in the development of the work in order to facilitate organization and administration. From time to time additional lines have been put on. At present several major and minor lines are in active progress. These lines of work are as follows:

MAJOR LINES.

- |                                       |   |
|---------------------------------------|---|
| 1. Orchard Management—Supervisory     | 6. Insect and Disease Control           |
| 2. Orchard Management—Advisory        | 7. Horticultural Exhibits               |
| 3. Pruning Demonstrations             | 8. Grading and Packing                  |
| 4. Demonstration Visits               | 9. Fruit Growers' Organizations         |
| 5. Club Work in Tree and Small Fruits | 10. Sweet Potato Production and Storage |
| 11. Small Fruits                      |   |

MINOR LINES.

- |                          |                                     |
|--------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| 1. Rodent Control        | 4. Home Gardening                   |
| 2. Orchard Fertilization | 5. Landscape Gardening              |
| 3. Establishing Orchards | 6. Information and Inspection Trips |

METHOD OF PROCEDURE.

In all of the above mentioned lines, the method of procedure is first to gain the confidence of the county agents and fruit growers through personal visits and as rapidly as possible form organizations of interested growers for carrying out the project. The exact method, of course, varies with the line of work undertaken, but the ultimate aim of all lines of work is the same; that is, to get farmers sufficiently interested to do things for themselves in organized groups.

RESULTS OBTAINED.

During the past year the extension horticulturists conducted nineteen definite orchard management demonstrations in fifteen counties. Eight meetings were held at these demonstrations with a total attendance of 234 people. In addition to the definite orchard management demonstrations supervised by the horticultural specialists, there have been fifty-five visits made to thirty-eight counties in an advisory capacity. Seventy-seven fruit growers have been interested enough in this advisory work to modify their plans according to recommendations of the specialists.

Pruning has been one of the major lines of horticultural work during the last six years. This work is done largely in co-operation with the county agents, who make arrangements for pruning demonstrations. Meetings are frequently held at county schools, where farmers and their children attend the demonstrations. Twenty agents were visited last year and eighty-three meetings and demonstrations were held attended by 1,543 people. Ninety-three visits were made to farmers for the purpose of giving pruning advice and demonstrations.

Six club work projects in fruits were established this year. Due to loss of fruit by frost, only one demonstration was continued throughout the season.

The work in insect and disease control is carried on with the assistance of the county agents through farmers' organizations, particularly fruit growers' organizations. During the past year 11 meetings, attended by 725 people, were held, 23 agents visited, 87 orchards visited and 4 spraying demonstrations given. Circular letters, press articles, bulletins, etc., were distributed throughout the State. Results of this work are seen in at least 75 per cent of the commercial orchards of the State and also in many home orchards.

The horticultural specialists are doing everything possible to get more attention paid to grading and packing of Virginia fruit. In the development of this line of work the specialists are attempting to work through existing organizations wherever possible, but new local organizations are formed from time to time. During the year one press article was prepared, one window display and one fair exhibit made relative to grading and packing. Ten farmers' meetings were held with an attendance of 267. Five demonstrations were given with an attendance of seventy-seven. Fourteen local leaders were given some training.

The horticultural specialists feel that the goal that they are seeking cannot be reached without some sort of co-operative work with the growers. With this in mind they are trying to have the growers' club themselves into organizations. No special type of organization is held up as a model. The general plan is to meet with a few prominent growers and discuss the type of work which they feel is most needed and present whatever plans the horticulturist has in mind. After some definite decision is reached, the matter is presented to the growers at a general mass-meeting and plans drawn up to make effective working machinery. Six meetings have been held with agents to consider such organizations. Forty-three conferences have been held with fruit growers. One county organization and one local organization were formed during the year. In addition, existing organizations were given all possible assistance. Five hundred people were addressed along this line.

The sweet potato production and storage work was tackled this year for the first time by the extension specialists. The work includes seed selection, seed treatment, selection of varieties, erection of storage houses, etc. The extension work in this line is being carried on in connection with the Virginia Truck Experiment Station at Norfolk. Eighteen meetings were held with agents in sweet potato districts. Twenty-four conferences with the growers were also held. One organization was formed for co-operative storage, two new houses were built and five or six remodeled. Seven seed selection demonstrations were given, four seed beds built, thirty-one seed beds inspected and nine meetings held with an attendance of 590.

The work in small fruits is also a new project. Small fruit production for home and local use has been advocated and the opportunity for commercial production studied. Twenty-four conferences were held during the year with college workers, and sixty-one conferences with farmers. Five circular letters, four press articles and one bulletin were prepared. Five plantings were established and five farmers' meetings held with a total attendance of 4,189.

In the minor projects, five demonstrations were given in rodent control with an attendance of 535 people. One hundred and seventy-six conferences were held in regard to orchard fertilization and ten farmers' meetings addressed with an attendance of 500 people. Fifty demonstrations were made along this line. Considerable information was also given in regard to home gardening, landscape gardening, bridge grafting, etc.

Dairying

PROJECT 8.

The dairy extension work in Virginia has grown very rapidly in the last few years and Virginia is now the leading dairy State in the South Atlantic Division. The whole milk market is well supplied and attention is now being turned largely to the manufacture of butter, ice cream and cheese. The producers all over the State are calling for help along dairy lines.

PERSONNEL.

Mr. F. A. Buchanan has had charge of the dairy extension work in Virginia during the past year. He has given all of his time to this work and has had considerable assistance from Mr. Wayne G. McGowan, who was assigned to the cheese project, and Professors C. W. Holdaway, W. D. Saunders and R. E. Hunt, who are in charge of the dairy work of the College and Experiment Station.

PROBLEMS ATTACKED.

The principal projects undertaken in dairy extension work may be briefly summarized as follows:

1. Development of Dairy Organizations.
2. Organizing Cow-Testing Associations.
3. Cheese Manufacturing Development.
4. Dairy Calf Club Work.
5. Increase of Milk Consumption.
6. Pure-Bred Dairy Cattle Sales.
7. State and County Fairs.

METHOD OF PROCEDURE.

The method of procedure followed by the specialists in dairy extension is first, to get in close touch with the county agents and learn what are the needs for the various counties and communities, and then, together with the county agents, call meetings of interested groups of farmers and work out plans. Considerable publicity work is done through the newspapers and through the monthly Dairy Extension News Letter in acquainting the dairymen of the State with what is taking place in other sections along dairy lines and what the Extension Division can do to assist those interested in dairy development.

RESULTS OBTAINED.

Three dairy associations were given much assistance in plans of organization. They were the Norfolk-Princess Anne Milk Producers' Association, with a membership of 26; the Shenandoah Valley Milk Producers' Association, with a membership of 300, and the Virginia State Dairymen's Association, with a membership of 286. The two first named associations were organized this year and have for their chief object the better marketing of their dairy products. The Virginia State Dairymen's Association has been in operation for a number of years. During the past year the specialist in dairy extension work has acted as secretary of this organization and in this way has kept in close touch with the leading dairy breed associations in the State.

A co-operative milk receiving station was organized in Mecklenburg county with ten members. A co-operative bull association was organized in Stafford county with forty-five members.

Five cow testing associations were organized and added to the five already in operation in the State. There were 3,078 cows on test in these associations in June in 188 herds. Some of the most valuable work done along dairy extension lines is done through cow testing associations. During the past year 163 unprofitable cows were sold as a direct result of the cow testing association work. Six silos and fourteen new barns were constructed.

Considerable assistance was given to the members of the calf clubs in securing the right kind of calves for the work and in the feed and management of these calves after they were secured. There were about 200 dairy calf club members in Virginia during the year.

Assistance was given at six pure-bred dairy cattle sales and 297 head of dairy cattle were sold for a total of $87,900.

Six educational exhibits were given at county and State fairs. Five counties were induced to exhibit county show herds at the State Fair as a result of the work of the extension specialist.

Marketing and Farm Economics

PROJECT 9.

The specialist in this line of work was not put on until June, 1920, and therefore has no report to make for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920. The work in this department was put on at the insistent demand of the farmers of the State.

Agricultural Engineering

PROJECT 10.

The work of the farm engineering department has grown steadily during the last year. In fact, the demands have become so great that it has been found necessary to add to the specialist staff.

PERSONNEL.

Mr. Charles E. Seitz was in charge of the work of this department. He was assisted by Mr. John S. Glenn and Mr. H. B. Boynton, who are both part time employees.

PROBLEMS ATTACKED.

The principal farm and home problems attacked during the past year were as follows:

- |                    |                   |
|--------------------|-------------------|
| 1. Land Drainage.  | 3. Power Farming. |
| 2. Farm Buildings. | 4. Water Works.   |

METHOD OF PROCEDURE.

Farm ditching machine organizations were developed in the State for the purpose of getting the tile drainage work done at a minimum cost.

Co-operative relations were established with the tractor and farm machine companies, with the ditching machine manufacturers, the United States Department of Agriculture, the State Commissioner of Agriculture, and the agricultural high schools.

Articles relating to the different projects were written for various county and farm journals. In advertising tractor demonstrations, posters were distributed throughout the territory of the demonstrations by the implement dealers. Bulletins and blue prints on various farm engineering projects were sent out to the farmers on request.

Where tile drainage demonstrations are conducted a representative farmer is chosen who wishes to tile drain his land with the assistance of the agricultural engineer. A drainage survey is made of his wet land and a map prepared showing the location of the tile system, size of tile, grades, etc. After making the map the engineer goes back to the farm, stakes off the work and instructs the farmer in the proper method of grading the ditches, laying the tile, etc. Sufficient time is spent with the farmer to insure that the work will be carried out successfully. Other farmers are invited in to see how the work is done. The farmers for whom work is done report results.

RESULTS OBTAINED.

During the past year forty-eight county agents were trained and aided by specialists in this department. Others given some assistance were: Fifty Smith-Hughes high school teachers, 5 members of the college staff, 6 specialists of the Extension Division, 4 ditching machine operators, 2 agricultural agents of banks, and 3 agricultural agents of railroads.

Three hundred and five farmers conducted drainage demonstrations. 120 of these farmers were given personal assistance by the engineers; 185 were given assistance through letters and bulletins, and 218 farmers were given assistance on miscellaneous engineering problems. Twenty farmers conducted farm building demonstrations. Fifty-five farmers conducted farm water supply demonstrations.

Thirty-two complete farm drainage surveys were made and maps prepared comprising 2,055 acres. Fifty-three preliminary examinations were made of farms having overflow and swamp land.

Perhaps the most outstanding piece of extension work accomplished under this project was that of getting a department of agricultural engineering established in the college. The work of the Extension Agricultural Engineer was directly responsible for the establishment of this department.

Home Demonstration Work With Negroes

PROJECT 11.

Up until 1920 the work with negro women was done in co-operation with the school work under the Jeanes Fund. About twenty-five agents were employed for the three summer months.

Beginning with 1920, it was decided to change the plan for doing this work because it was realized that the agents did not give sufficient time to the home demonstration work to get the best results. It was decided to put the negro women's work on the same basis as the men's work; that is, to get a small local appropriation from some source and carry on the work throughout the year. However, on account of lack of funds, this plan could not be put into effect immediately. April 1, 1920, a negro woman in each of the following counties began home demonstration work: Amherst, Campbell, Caroline, Dinwiddie, Elizabeth City, Gloucester, Nansemond, Sussex and Montgomery. These agents were employed during the months of April, May, June, July and August.

METHOD OF PROCEDURE.

Miss Lizzie Jenkins, with headquarters at Hampton Institute, was district agent in charge of the negro home demonstration work. She worked directly under the supervision of Mrs. M. M. Davis, State agent of all home demonstration work in Virginia. The local home demonstration agents enrolled the negro women and girls in home demonstration clubs just as is being done by the white agents. These women and girls conducted demonstrations in sewing, cooking, gardening, canning, sanitation, etc.

RESULTS OBTAINED.

The negro home demonstration agents organized fifty-seven girls' clubs, which held regular meetings with a total attendance of 2,603. In these meetings the girls received instructions in sewing, cooking, gardening, canning, serving meals, crocheting, home sanitation and other things necessary to good housekeeping. In every county the girls have been active in efforts to raise funds to aid in improving schools and churches. Occasionally there was a girl who had to leave home to earn money. The agents have helped to secure places for these girls and have followed them up afterwards. In most cases, they have been successful in persuading these girls to enter such schools as Petersburg, Lawrenceville, Hampton and Christiansburg.

For the period ending August 31, 1920, the girls put up 16,888 quarts of vegetables and 2,871 quarts of fruit.

The work with the negro women has been devoted largely to stressing better living conditions in the homes. More home conveniences, better sanitary conditions, and better methods of feeding children have been stressed in addition to the work in canning and preserving.

Seventy-three women's clubs held regular meetings, with a total attendance of 3,257; 27,940 quarts ofruit were canned, 22,895 quarts of vegetables, 4,432 pints of jellies and marmelades, 2,417 pounds of fruit were dried and 1,619 pounds of vegetables brined.

It is impossible to estimate the good done by these negro agents among the women of their race. They go about their daily tasks in a quiet way and convince their people that much which has been wasted could have been saved.

Negro County Agent Work

PROJECT 12.

There is a large section in Eastern Virginia where the negro population runs from 40 to 60 per cent of the total farming population. For this reason it was early deemed advisable in Virginia to do some special farm demonstration work with negro farmers. Experience has taught us that work can best be done with negro farmers through negro agents, and for this reason we have negro men trained at Hampton and other negro colleges, to carry on this work. J. B. Pierce, who has direct charge of the negro agents, has his headquarters at Hampton Institute. The officials of Hampton have always cooperated to the fullest extent in carrying on this work. We believe that the plan outlined for doing negro work in Virginia is very effective.

PERSONNEL.

The negro county agents are known as local agents, and are located at the county seats or somewhere near the center of the county. During the past year, as stated before, J. B. Pierce has had general charge of this project. He has also had some work in adjoining States. He has had associated with him the following district and county agents:

DISTRICT AGENTS.

ORGANIZATIONS.

The negro agents have perfected very definite organizations for carrying on demonstration work with the negro farmers. Every agent has an advisory board, a county farm organization and a number of local community clubs. These community and county organizations have regular meetings at which farm demonstration work is discussed and various projects outlined.

The negro agents also report thirty-one buying and selling organizations as having done a buying business amounting to $33,996 at a saving of $7,918 during the past year. Every county with negro work has a summer farmers' conference and an agricultural fair.

PROBLEMS ATTACKED.

The principal problems attacked by the negro agents are:

First: Better organization among negro farmers for agricultural work.

Second: Production of food and feed supplies for home use.

Third: Economic production of all farm crops.

Fourth: Better methods of living among negro farmers.

The twenty-two negro agents, in performance of their duties during the past year, traveled 59,948 miles by auto or team and 11,288 miles by rail. They made 16,760 visits to farmers, club members and others interested in their work, wrote 6,558 official letters, answered 1,397 personal calls and addressed 1,226 meetings with a total attendance of 88,235 people.

RESULTS OBTAINED.

The local agents conducted demonstrations with all the leading farm crops grown by the negro farmers of this State. The results of these demonstrations with the various crops and live stock are given below.

CROP DEMONSTRATIONS WITH NEGROES.

Kind of Demonstration.	Number of Demonstrators.	Number of Acres.	Yield Per Acre.
Corn .....	378	1,439	38 bushels
Cotton .....	30	57	1,010 pounds
Tobacco .....	63	141	788 pounds
Wheat .....	154	646	13 bushels
Oats .....	57	422	48 bushels
Rye .....	26	114	18 bushels
Alfalfa .....	28	42	3.5 tons
Mixed grasses and clover .....	93	351	2 tons
Red clover .....	78	296	2 tons
Soy beans .....	30	159	14 bushels
Cowpeas .....	84	228	11 bushels
Peanuts .....	59	279	62 bushels
Irish potatoes .....	20	30	77 bushels

The above report shows that the demonstrations carried on by the negro agents produced much higher yields than those made by the average negro farmers in the section. The negroes as a rule use poorer methods and get smaller yields than white farmers. However, the yields of negro demonstrators compared very favorably with the yields secured by the best white farmers.

The work of the co-operators, many of whom follow the advice of the agent explicitly but do not make reports, is not included in the above total, as accurate figures were not available. Neither is the work done with home orchards included. The reports of the negro agents show that during the year they inspected 679 home orchards, pruned 517, sprayed 161 and treated 199 for borers. These orchards contained a total of 41,491 trees.

LIVE STOCK DEMONSTRATIONS.

Up until the present time the negroes have not done a great deal of work with the larger types of live stock. However, a number of demonstrations were conducted with poultry, hogs and dairy cattle. The most interesting work with live stock was probably done with poultry. The negro agents report twenty-nine demonstrations with 4,562 birds. They also report improved poultry management methods on 3,247 farms with 91,742 birds. One hundred and forty-one communities were started to work with one breed. Pure-bred cockerels were, in many instances, donated by the poultry department of Hampton Institute. A special campaign was put on for better poultry houses and better methods of getting rid of insects and diseases.

Seventy-four pure-bred boars and ninety-three pure-bred sows were bought by the farmers due to the local agents' influence. Six hundred and fifty-nine farmers were influenced to grow grazing crops for hogs.

Eight pure-bred dairy bulls, seven pure-bred cows and fifty grades were bought by negro farmers due to the agents' influence. Three hundred and fifteen negro farmers were aided in feeding better balanced rations.

MISCELLANEOUS DEMONSTRATIONS.

The negro agents have always done considerable work along miscellaneous lines, especially in the improvement of homes and homesteads. Their reports show that during the past year the following things were accomplished:

Number of farmers induced to take better care of manure .....	4,207
Number of farmers induced to build manure sheds.....	229
Number tons manure saved by these farmers.....	134,000
Number of dwellings erected.....	282
Number of dwellings improved.....	884
Number of buildings painted or whitewashed.....	1,537
Number of building plans furnished.....	43
Number of water and lighting systems installed.....	26
Number of homes screened against flies.....	3,698
Number of sanitary conditions improved.....	3,046
Number of farmers adopting systematic crop rotations..	1,368
Number of farm implements bought.....	6,140
Number of animals treated for insect and other diseases .....	22,686

The extension work done among negro farmers in the past has been greatly appreciated by the negroes and has received the support of the white farmers in the counties. Many of the county boards of supervisors make direct ap-appropriations for the support of this work. We believe that it is the best form of educational work done among the negro farmers of the State.

Boys' Club Work

PROJECT 14.

The enrollment in boys' clubs for 1920 showed a substantial increase over 1919. However, this increase was largely in poultry and live stock demonstrations. The enrollment in peanut demonstrations also showed an increase, and other minor crop club demonstrations remained at about the same point, while the corn club demonstrations, which have been gradually falling off for several years, dropped from 2,052 in 1919 to 1,332 in 1920.

It is felt that club work is on a better basis at the present time and better results are being secured than ever before in the history of the work.

PERSONNEL.

Mr. Charles G. Burr is State agent of boys' club work, and during the past year has been assisted by Mr. C. A. Montgomery. Most of the time of the State club leaders is spent in the field with the agents, only sufficient time being spent at headquarters to plan the work, supply agents with material, and get out the club publications.

The boys' club work is directly under the supervision of the assistant director of extension in charge of farm demonstration work, club activities being considered a part of the county agents' regular activities rather than a separate department. The State club leaders have no administrative authority. We feel that this is much the best system of organization for this State.

CLUB ORGANIZATION.

The organization of agricultural clubs as an effective medium of supervising and managing club demonstrations, as well as training the country boys and girls in leadership, was stressed throughout the year. Probably every agent undertook this as a definite part of his club work. Organization work done in some counties was especially gratifying, though it has been difficult to get complete reports from the agents on their organization activities. Reports for the past year show that the county agents organized 160 clubs with a membership of 2,180, and that these clubs held an average of eight meetings each during the year. Reports also show that 11,016 club members attended the meetings and 7,815 visitors. Sixty per cent of the members in organized clubs turned in complete reports of their club activities.

PROBLEMS ATTACKED.

The aims of the boys' club department are, briefly, as follows:

First: To increase the economic production of farm crops.

Second: To train farm boys in progressive farm practices through practical demonstrations on the farm.

Third: To increase interest in farm life and rural development.

Fourth: To interest adult farmers in progressive farming through demonstrations conducted by farm boys.

Fifth: To bring about efficient rural organization for economic and social purposes by training farm boys in organization.

METHOD OF PROCEDURE.

To accomplish these aims, farm boys are organized into corn clubs, pig clubs, poultry clubs, baby beef clubs, dairy clubs, peanut clubs and miscellaneous clubs. Efforts are made whenever possible to have the club members in the different sections of the county organized into community groups which hold regular meetings at which the county agent brings to them information in regard to the various projects which they are undertaking. Assistance is rendered by the subject-matter specialists in agronomy, horticulture, animal husbandry, poultry, dairying, agricultural engineering, etc.

Publicity is secured through the monthly club paper, of which 10,000 copies are distributed monthly, articles and stories in newspapers and agricultural papers, circular letters, stereopticon slides, exhibits at fairs and speeches at public meetings.

Short courses for instructional purposes and training in leadership are held in the counties, in the districts and at the State Agricultural College.

RESULTS OBTAINED.

During the past year 6,647 boys were enrolled in agricultural clubs. These boys handled $137,348 worth of farm products at a net profit of $58,750.

One thousand seven hundred and fifty-four of these boys were enrolled in plant clubs, 3,337 in animal clubs, and the remainder in miscellaneous club activities. The enrollment in the baby beef club was considerably larger than it has ever been before. Four carloads of 109 baby beeves were sold at the State Fair, the top carload bringing 19 cents per pound, the second carload 18¼ cents, the third carload 15¾ cents and the fourth carload 15¼ cents.

One hundred and eighty-two club members attended the State Short Course at Blacksburg, 152 club members attended the District Short Course at Fredericksburg, and 40 club members attended the Tri-State Club Camp at Grottoes, in addition to club members attending the regular county short courses.

Full statistical results for each club projects are given in the statistical report submitted herewith.

Agronomy

PROJECT 16.

The work under the agronomy project was greatly interfered with on account of the fact that the specialist who had charge of this project resigned December 31, 1920. It was impossible to secure the right kind of man to take his place until April 1, 1921. However, the work under this project is now gaining rapid headway, and seed certification is becoming one of the most popular projects carried on in the State.

PERSONNEL.

Mr. J. C. Hart had charge of extension work in agronomy from July 1, 1920, to December 31, 1920, at which time he resigned. The vacancy made by his resignation was filled on April 1, 1921, Mr. W. G. Wysor taking charge of the project.

PROBLEMS ATTACKED.

The main problems attacked when the project was in charge of Mr. J. C. Hart were increased crop production, soil management and farm management.

When Mr. Wysor took up the work it was decided to make seed certification the principal problem attacked by the department. A secondary or minor project was to promote the more general and intelligent use of lime.

METHODS EMPLOYED.

Field demonstrations, personal visits to county agents, public meetings, bulletins, personal letters, press articles, etc., were all used in carrying out the work under this project.

A state-wide seed growers' organization, known as the Virginia Crop Improvement Association, was formed in April. This association is an organization of Virginia farmers who, in co-operation with the State Agricultural College, are specializing in the production and marketing of certified seed. On June 30th this organization had about 250 members.

RESULTS OBTAINED.

The county agents were requested to select one farmer in each county to begin breeding certified corn. Similar requests were made for a limited number of farmers in each county to grow certified cowpeas, soy beans, wheat, corn, oats, rye and barley. Forty-two county agents definitely undertook work in this project and started the required breeding work with some or all of the crops eligible for certification.

Fifty county agents were given some training and information as to the methods of conducting seed certification.

Two hundred and fifty farmers started demonstrations in certified seed production between April 1st and June 30th.

One hundred and twenty-five farm management record books were kept and completed during 1919, and 150 were started in 1920. A State corn show was put on in Roanoke in December.

An extensive exhibit was put up at the State Fair showing the work of the department.

Plant Pathology

PROJECT 17.

The special work in plant pathology has been largely with diseases of field crops. The diseases of fruits and vegetables are taken care of by the specialists in horticulture and vegetable gardening.

PERSONNEL.

Mr. R. C. Thomas has had charge of the extension work in plant pathology during the past year. He has been very closely associated with Dr. Fromme, who is subject-matter head of the plant pathology work in the college, and has received considerable assistance from Dr. Fromme in planning and carrying out his work.

PROBLEMS ATTACKED.

During the past year special attention has been given to the following problems:

1. Seed borne diseases of wheat and other cereals and their control by the hot-water method.
2. Treatment of tobacco seed for control of wildfire and angular spot.
3. Demonstrations in the control of root, stalk and ear rots of corn by the use of the improved rag doll germinator.
4. Cabbage diseases and the use of seed treatment and resistant varieties.

METHODS OF PROCEDURE.

The plan followed by the specialist in plant pathology was, first, to give considerable publicity to the problems attacked through the Extension Division News, daily and farm papers, and through personal letters to county agents. The county agents then arrange for demonstrations of the different methods of seed treatment. The specialists attend these meetings and give the county agents and the farmers assembled instruction in seed treatment. In some cases special treating stations were established. In other cases seed was sent to the specialists at headquarters for treatment.

RESULTS OBTAINED.

A hot-water treating plant was established in Rockingham county by the interested farmers in that section, at which 639 bushels of grain were treated for fifty-four farmers. A second treating station was established near Roanoke. This plant was financed by the Association of Commerce. Sixty-seven bushels of wheat were treated for eight farmers. A third treating station was established at Blacksburg, at which sixty-two bushels of wheat were treated for six farmers.

Demonstration treatments were also made in Washington and Rockingham county. All the treated grain was planted alongside untreated grain for demonstration purposes.

Tobacco growers in Virginia and other States have suffered severe losses from wildfire and angular spot during the last few years. A method of seed treatment has been worked out at the Virginia Experiment Station which largely controls these diseases. This treatment was carried to the farmers by the specialists in plant pathology. Demonstrations were conducted in sixteen counties with a total attendance of 1,500 farmers. At these demonstrations 1,200 lots of seed were treated. In addition, 1,100 lots of seed were treated at the central office. In view of the fact that quite a few lots of seed were divided among several people, it is probable that not less than 2,500 farmers planted treated seed this year.

The work of demonstrating the control of corn root rot, a disease which destroys at least 5 per cent of the corn crop of the State each year, was begun March 1st. An improved rag doll germinator electrically heated was installed in the laboratory of the department of plant pathology and arrangements made to have corn brought in to be tested. Six farmers tested their seed at this place. In addition, instructions were given to Smith-Hughes teachers and county agents in the use of the rag doll germinator.

A demonstration with the use of resistant strains of cabbage was carried on in Smyth county. This demonstration promises to revolutionize cabbage production in Southwest Virginia, as it showed conclusively that the resistant seed gave much better results than the seed ordinarily planted.

Poultry Husbandry

PROJECT 19.

Extension work in poultry husbandry has grown very rapidly in the last few years. Poultry raising is one of the most important lines of farming in the State when the total value of poultry products is considered. There are very few large poultry plants in Virginia, but practically every farm carries some form of poultry. A determined effort has been made in the last year to replace mongrel poultry with pure-breds, and to weed out the unprofitable hen by culling.

PERSONNEL.

Mr. A. F. Treakle is the leader of the poultry project and has associated with him as assistants A. L. Dean, Miss Bessie Hodsen and Mrs. A. F. Treakle. Miss Hodsdon gives most of her time to poultry work with the women agents. All poultry work is done through county farm and home demonstration agents.

PROBLEMS ATTACKED.

The principal problems attacked by the extension workers in poultry during the past year have been as follows:

1. Early hatching.
2. Care of baby chicks.
3. Feeding for egg production.
4. Culling the non-profitable hen.
5. Increasing the number of standard bred flocks.
6. Better poultry houses.
7. Planning egg laying contests.

METHODS OF PROCEDURE.

Circulars and bulletins were prepared on the various lines of poultry work and distributed to the poultry producers of the State through the county agents. Special articles have been furnished the Club Letter, the Extension Division News, daily and weekly papers. Special lectures and demonstrations have been given to farmers and club members in every section of the State. Poultry clubs have been formed among the raisers of standard bred flocks. Community and county shows have been encouraged. There has been close co-operation with the Roanoke Poultry Fanciers' Association, the Old Dominion Poultry Association, the Virginia Poultry Association, local poultry associations and farmers' unions and farm bureaus.

RESULTS OBTAINED.

Two hundred and seventy-eight meetings and demonstrations were held, attended by about 15,000 farm men and women.

One thousand farm flocks were directly affected by extension work in poultry.

Culling demonstrations were given in practically every county having an agent. Hundreds of poultry owners were taught how to cull. Three thousand one hundred and ninety-seven boys and girls were enrolled in poultry clubs and carried out some phase of definite poultry improvement work.

REPORT

of the

Joint Committee on the Re-apportionment of the State Into Senatorial and House Districts

---

To the General Assembly of Virginia:

Pursuant to a joint resolution agreed to by the General Assembly of Virginia, at the session of 1920, the President of the Senate appointed:

Senators Saxon W. Holt, E. Lee Trinkle, W. A. Garrett, James E. Cannon, the committee on the part of the Senate, and the Speaker of the House of Delegates appointed: Messrs. E. Griffith Dodson, Thomas W. Ozlin, B. F. Noland, John W. Stephenson, R. A. Anderson, the committee on the part of the House of Delegates, which two composed the joint committee provided by said resolution, charged with a re-apportionment of the State into senatorial and house districts, as required by section 43 of the Constitution, and in accordance with the result of the 1920 census.

The committee met on March 14, 1920, and organized by electing Hon. John W. Stephenson, of Bath, its chairman.

Shortly thereafter Senator Trinkle resigned and the President of the Senate appointed Senator W. L. Andrews, of Roanoke, to take the place of Senator Trinkle.

Mr. R. A. Anderson, having accepted a post of honor and emolument with the Federal government, the Speaker of the House of Delegates appointed Mr. C. C. Hyatt, of Tazewell, in his stead.

Mr. John W. Stephenson, the honored chairman of the committee, having died, the Speaker of the House of Delegates appointed Mr. J. R. Horsley, of Appomattox, in his stead, and at a meeting of the joint committee held on November 15, 1921, Mr. Thomas W. Ozlin, of Lunenburg, was elected chairman.

The census disclosing a total population of 2,306,351, the average bases of apportionment is:

Senate . . . . .	57,567
House . . . . .	23,063

The joint committee set itself to the task making as nearly equal apportionment, in each case, as possible, but found itself confronted with many difficulties such as natural topographical barriers, divergent business and social interests, lack of communication by rail or highway, and disinclinations of communities to breaking up political ties of long standing, resulting in some cases of districts requesting to remain with populations more than their averages rather than have their equal representation with the changed conditions.

Your committee has given every opportunity for the people to be heard and has used every endeavor so to arrange the districts as to meet the views of those affected.

The results reached are shown by the apportionments following, which gives the districts their population according to the 1920 census, and the population in each case over or under the general average. As required by the joint resolution, bills have been prepared amending sections 78 and 79 of the Code in according with this apportionment and will be introduced by members of this committee, in the respective Houses, at the coming session of the General Assembly.

House of Delegates—Basis 23.063

Committee on the Part of the House of Delegates.

Minority Report

To the Members of the General Assembly:

I cannot fully concur in the report of the joint committee for redistricting the State and for the following reasons:

Norfolk city, which I had the honor to represent in the House of Delegates, had according to the Federal census of 1920, 115,777 inhabitants.

The Federal census is by implication the constitutional basis for apportionment or reapportionment; and it is no excuse for a wrong to the people of a district to say that as great or greater wrongs were for political reasons perpetrated under the former apportionment.

In support of this argument, I quote Article IV, section 43, which reads:

"Sec. 43. Apportionment of State into Senatorial and House Districts.—The apportionment of the State into senatorial and house districts, made by the acts of the General Assembly, approved April the second, nineteen hundred and two, is hereby adopted; but a re-apportionment may be made in the year nineteen hundred and six, and shall be made in the year nineteen hundred and twelve, and every tenth year thereafter." You will note that the General Assembly may reapportion the State in 1906, but must in "1912 and every tenth year thereafter."

Clearly the intent of the Constitution is that the decennial census of the Federal government shall be taken as a guide. Representation is presumed always to be on a basis of population, and it is only through a recognition of this principle that the Southern States have been able to hold their congressional delegations.

Furthermore, the contention that Norfolk since 1920 has lost population is unsupported by fact and contrary alike to census estimates of the United States and of the health department of Norfolk; but if it were true, it would have no bearing on the point at issue since the Constitution of Virginia, as I have indicated, makes the decennial census the basis and does not consider the opinion, individual citizens having no means of ascertaining facts.

Norfolk had in 1920, 115,777, or 462 more than the number entitling that city to five delegates. I believe the population now to be greater, and it will soon annex a populous portion of Norfolk county.

There is a surplus of 1.795 from Norfolk county, and Portsmouth has an average of 8.261. Yet to placate a representative from the Valley of Virginia, claiming to know more about the local situation in Norfolk than does the government, the local health department and the signer of this protest, the committee decided to take from Norfolk one delegate, leaving more than 23,000 people of that city unrepresented proportionately and more than 10,000 people of Norfolk county and Portsmouth combined similarly disregarded.

I shall not protest any reasonable method of reconstructing district lines in the Valley, but I do protest against the injustice to more than 33,000 people in Norfolk and vicinity, just because Rockingham and Harrisonburg feel that they should have two delegates, although their average for one delegate is only 12,859, which might easily be merged with a contiguous county in such a way as to do justice to all.

For the reasons stated, I cannot fully concur in the report, and I am unwilling to believe that the General Assembly of Virginia will be a party to such a grave and indefensible injustice.

Respectfully submitted,

E. GRIFFITH DODSON.

HOUSE DOCUMENT No. 10.

VIRGINIA DEBT COMMISSION

General Assembly of Virginia

January 11, 1922.

To the General Assembly of Virginia:

Your commission, appointed and acting under the joint resolution of the General Assembly entitled "A joint resolution to provide for adjusting with the State of West Virginia the proportion of the debt of the original State of Virginia proper to be borne by West Virginia, and for the application of whatever may be received from West Virginia to the payment of those entitled to same," approved March 6, 1894, and an act of the General Assembly entitled "An act to provide for the settlement with West Virginia of the proportion of the public debt of the original State of Virginia proper to be borne by West Virginia, and for the due protection of the Commonwealth of Virginia in the premises," approved March 6, 1900, beg leave to make a further and final report of their proceedings, as follows:

It will be noted from the last report of your commission, dated January 9, 1906, printed and referred to as Senate Document No. 1, session of 1906, that all efforts on the part of your commission to bring about a friendly adjustment and settlement with West Virginia of the liability of that State having proved ineffectual and unavailing, no alternative remained in the premises, in the judgment of your commission, except a suit against West Virginia, as authorized by the act aforesaid, and that your commission, having complied with the conditions of said act, and acting by and with the advice and approval of the Attorney General, had undertaken to bring such suit.

Accordingly, on the 28th day of February, 1906, the Commonwealth of Virginia, suing in her own right and as trustee for her creditors who had entrusted their obligations to her keeping, under her several funding acts, by William A. Anderson, then her Attorney General, acting by the direction of your commission, filed her bill in the Supreme Court of the United States against the State of West Virginia, for the purpose of having a determination and settlement of West Virginia's liability for an equitable proportion of the public debt of the Commonwealth of Virginia prior to January 1, 1861.

A statement of the origin and subsequent history of the public debt of Virginia, its purposes and objects, West Virginia's participation in creating it and in the enjoyment of its benefits, the subsequent dismemberment of Virginia, and of West Virginia's assumption of an equitable share of said debt, were fully set forth in the bill.

The issues arising in the case, both of law and fact, were numerous, difficult and complicated, and every defense which able and learned counsel employed by West Virginia could suggest were interposed to the claims asserted by Virginia. Finally, after years of persistent litigation, protracted and searching inquiries and investigations conducted by a special master appointed by the court, covering thousands of pages, and repeated and exhaustive arguments before the master and the court itself, a final decision was rendered by the Supreme Court of the United States on the 14th of June, 1915, by which the court ascertained West Virginia's share of the debt to be $12,393,929.50 (238 U. S., page 202). A final decree accordingly was entered in favor of the Commonwealth of Virginia against the State of West Virginia for the above sum with interest thereon from July 1, 1915, until paid, at the rate of five per cent. per annum, with costs to be equally divided, the said decree being as follows:

"This cause coming on to be heard on the pleadings and proofs; the reports of the special master, and the exceptions of the parties thereto, and was argued by counsel.

"On consideration whereof the court finds that the defendant's share of the debt of the complainant is as follows:

"Principal, after allowing credits as stated.....	$ 4,215,622 28
"Interest from January 1, 1861, to July 1, 1891, at 4 per cent per annum .....	5,143,059 18
"Interest from July 1, 1891, to July 1, 1915, at 3 per cent per annum .....	3,035,248 04

"Making a total of interest of $8,178,307.22, which, added to the principal sum, makes a total of.....$12,393,929 50

"It is, therefore, now here ordered, adjudged and decreed by this court that the complainant, Commonwealth of Virginia, recover of and from the defendant, State of West Virginia, the sum of $12,393,929.50, with interest thereon from July 1, 1915, until paid, at the rate of 5 per cent per annum.

"It is further ordered, adjudged and decreed that each party pay one-half of the costs.

"June 14, 1915."

After sundry efforts to enforce satisfaction of said decree, the court, in an opinion by the late Chief Justice White, delivered April 22, 1918, ordered a re-argument upon Virginia's motion for a writ of mandamus, and fixed the date of said argument after the February recess 1919. (246 U. S., page 565.) in the meantime the legislature of West Virginia, at its regular session of 1919, adopted a joint resolution inviting Mr. Randolph

Harrison to appear before the body in joint session on February 4, 1919, and address them on the subject of providing for the settlement of the decree of the court. Mr. Harrison, with the approval of your commission, accepted the invitation and made an address as the representative of Virginia to the legislature in joint session on the date mentioned. As a result of this address, a basis of settlement was reached, as shown by a concurrent resolution adopted by the legislature in regular session February 20, 1919, and in accordance therewith the legislature in extra session made provision for the settlement of said decree by an act entitled—

“An act providing for the payment of West Virginia's part of the public debt of Virginia prior to the first day of January, 1861, as ascertained by the judgment of the Supreme Court of the United States and adjusted by the two states, and to provide for the issuance of bonds and the raising and appropriation of money for the payment of said judgment,” which act was approved by the Governor of West Virginia on the 1st day of April, 1919.

Copies of the concurrent resolution and the act aforesaid are filed herewith.

By the terms of said act settlement of the judgment was to be made as of January 1, 1919, by the payment of $1,062,867.16, with interest thereon at five per centum per annum, until paid, together with one-half of the costs of the suit, in cash, and by payment of the residue, to-wit, $13,500,000.00, in twenty year gold bonds of the State of West Virginia bearing three and one-half per cent interest, payable semi-annually, in the manner and on the terms as shown in said act.

Accordingly, in compliance with the terms of said act, the authorities of West Virginia, in due course, paid to the clerk of the Supreme Court of the United States one-half the costs of said suit, and paid to the Commonwealth of Virginia, acting by and through your commission, the cash payment aforesaid, to-wit, the principal sum of $1,062,867.16, with accrued interest thereon, and delivered to the Commonwealth of Virginia, acting by and through your commission, the sum of $12,366,500.00, face value, of gold bonds of the State of West Virginia, of the tenor and effect set forth in the said act of the legislature of that State.

The residue of said bonds as aforesaid, to the amount of $1,133,500.00, face value, known as “reserve bonds,” were delivered as provided in said act to the board of public works of West Virginia, to be held in escrow upon the conditions and trusts set forth in section 6 of the said act, the purpose being that only such bonds should be retained in escrow as should be ascertained to represent the distributive share of such Virginia deferred certificates as should not have been, at the time when the West Virginia debt settlement act took effect (April 1, 1919) deposited with your commission or subject to its control. All of said reserve bonds found to be in excess of the amount necessary to be retained in escrow as aforesaid were to be delivered to the Commonwealth of Virginia, acting through your commission or other authorized representative. The object of this escrow feature of the settlement was to give the State of West Virginia the benefit of such reserve bonds as should remain in the custody of said board of public works uncalled for, during the terms of the bonds, by your commission or other authorized representative of Virginia.

Upon the settlement of the judgment as aforesaid by the State of West Virginia, your commission caused satisfaction of said judgment to be entered of record in the Supreme Court of the United States, and in order that the interests of all parties concerned in said settlement might be safeguarded and the rights of the State protected, the Commonwealth of Virginia, at the relation of your commission, by John R. Saunders, Attorney General, filed her bill in the circuit court for the city of Richmond on the 20th of June, 1919, for the purpose of convening all parties in interest and having said court take charge of the fund in said cause, determine and adjudicate the rights of all parties in interest and distribute the said fund under its authority and direction. The said court took jurisdiction of said cause and designated the First National Bank of the city of Richmond as the depository of the court to receive the cash and bonds delivered to your commission in settlement of said judgment, which were at once deposited in pursuance of the order of the court with said bank, and such proceedings were had in said cause that on the 22nd day of July, 1920, the court, after full hearing, entered a decree confirming the report of Special Master Robert E. Scott, which contained an exhaustive review of all questions in the case, and directed a distribution of the cash and bonds in accordance with said report.

Under the decree aforesaid, your commission was authorized and directed to apply for and receive from the board of public works of the State of West Virginia on behalf of the Commonwealth of Virginia the reserve bonds of the State of West Virginia ascertained, as shown by the report of Special Master Robert E. Scott, to be in excess of the amount necessary for the State of West Virginia to retain in order to exchange the same, upon a proper distributive basis, for undeposited Virginia deferred certificates, to-wit, bonds of the State of West Virginia of the face value of $272,275.37, and give proper receipt therefor; and your commission was further authorized and directed, upon the receipt of said excess bonds, to distribute the same as provided in schedule C of Special Master Scott's report, by delivering (1) to the Commonwealth of Virginia part of said bonds, to-wit, bonds of the par value of $9,649.44, with all coupons attached—being the distributive share of the Commonwealth of Virginia of said bonds; (2) to Brown Brothers & Company, of New York city, depository of Virginia deferred certificates (deposited in pursuance of the joint resolution and act aforesaid, approved, respectively, March 6, 1894, and March 6, 1900), the residue of said bonds, to-wit, bonds of the par value of $262,625.93, with all coupons attached—being the distributive share of the owners of the Virginia deferred certificates deposited with Brown Brothers & Company as aforesaid.

Your commission executed the duty imposed upon it as aforesaid, as follows:

By direction of your commission, the Honorable Joseph Button, its secretary, together with Major Samuel H. Williams, of the law firm of Randolph Harrison, of counsel for Virginia, visited Charleston, West Virginia, on July 29, 1920, and appeared before the board of public works of said State and presented their credentials, including a certified copy of the decree of the circuit court of the city of Richmond of July 22, 1920, and of the report of Special Master Scott filed in said cause, and requested the delivery of the excess bonds as above stated. The said board complied with this request and delivered to Mr. Button, acting for your commission, coupon bonds of the State of West Virginia with all coupons attached, of the face value of $272,000.00, together with two checks of the treasurer of the State of West Virginia—one for $125.93, and one for $149.44, the bonds and checks totalling $272,275.37, the amount called for, and Mr. Button signed and delivered on behalf of your commission a proper receipt covering the delivery of said bonds and checks.

By direction of the decree aforesaid your commission, acting through its secretary, the Honorable Joseph Button, upon the receipt of said excess bonds and checks as aforesaid, delivered (1) to the Treasurer of Virginia part of the said bonds, to-wit, bonds of the par value of $9,500.00, with all coupons attached, together with the check of the treasurer of West Virginia for $149.44, the bonds and check aggregating $9,649.44, the distributive share of the Commonwealth of Virginia of said bonds, and took the Treasurer's receipt for the same, dated August 4, 1920; and (2) to Brown Brothers & Company, depository of the Virginia deferred certificates as aforesaid, the residue of said bonds, to-wit, bonds of the par value of $262,500.00, with all coupons attached, together with the check of the treasurer of West Virginia for $125.93, the bonds and check aggregating $262,625.93, being the distributive share of the owners of Virginia deferred certificates deposited with said Brown Brothers & Company, taking the receipt of said Brown Brothers & Company dated July 30, 1920.

Your commission, as futher directed by the decree aforesaid, caused its secretary, the Honorable Joseph Button, acting in conjunction with Brown Brothers & Company, to withdraw from the Central Union Trust Company of New York the Virginia deferred certificates deposited with it by Brown Brothers & Company and held subject to the order of your commission, and deliver the same to the Second Auditor of Virginia to be cancelled. In order to insure the due and proper execution of this requirement of the decree aforesaid and at the request of your commission, the Honorable John R. Saunders, Attorney General of Virginia, and Honorable Rosewell Page, Second Auditor of Virginia, accompanied the secretary of your commission, the Honorable Joseph Button, to New York, where they arrived on the 9th of August, 1920, and were joined by Randolph Harrison, of counsel for Virginia. After conference with Brown Brothers & Company, they adjourned to the Central Union Trust Company and presented their credentials and requested the Central Union Trust Company to deliver to Brown Brothers & Company and to the secretary of your commission the Virginia deferred certificates on deposit with said Central Union Trust Company as aforesaid. This was done, and a receipt covering the same duly executed was delivered to the Central Union Trust Company and a copy of said receipt forwarded to the First National Bank, of the city of Richmond, in accordance with the terms of the decree aforesaid. The Virginia deferred certificate were then delivered to the Hon. Rosewell Page, Second Auditor of Virginia, and were cancelled in the office of the Central Union Trust Company, in the presence of the above named State officials and a representative of Brown Brothers & Company, and the said cancelled certificates, amounting to $14,368,842.63, were forwarded by the Hon. Rosewell Page to Richmond, Va., and duly listed and filed in his office.

The bonds of the State of West Virginia, amounting to $12,366,500.00, held by the First National Bank of Richmond, as the depository of the circuit court of the city of Richmond, were then delivered by said bank as directed by the decree aforesaid of July 22, 1920, as follows:

To the Treasurer of the Commonwealth of Virginia bonds of the par value of $438,368.90, with all coupons attached after July 1, 1920, as shown by the Treasurer's receipt, dated September 22, 1920, the same being the distributive share of the Commonwealth of Virginia of said bonds; and to Brown Brothers & Company the residue of said bonds, to-wit, bonds of the par value of $11,928,231.10, with all coupons attached after July 1, 1920, as shown by the receipt of Brown Brothers & Company, dated August 20, 1920, the same being the distributive share of said bonds of the owners of Virginia deferred certificates deposited with said Brown Brothers & Company as aforesaid.

The "excess bonds" ($272,275.37) and the bonds held by the First National Bank, of Richmond, as depository of the court ($12,366,500.00) thus delivered in pursuance of the direction of the court, aggregated $12,638,733.37, which accounts for all the bonds, amounting to $13,500,000.00, issued by the State of West Virginia under the terms of settlement with that State except the reserve bonds, that is to say, bonds of the par value of $861,224.63, with all coupons attached, held by the board of public works of West Virginia to be applied to the payment of the undeposited Virginia deferred certificates upon the basis approved by the court, as and when the same are presented for settlement.

Under the decree of the circuit court of the city of Richmond of July 22, 1920, as aforesaid, the Second Auditor of Virginia was designated and appointed as the representative of the Commonwealth of Virginia to effectuate the exchange of the undeposited Virginia deferred certificates for reserve bonds retained by the board of public works of West Virginia as aforesaid. To that end the Second Auditor was authorized and empowered to receive said Virginia deferred certificates when presented for settlement and to certify the same to the board of public works of West Virginia for payment upon the basis approved by the court, and to do all things necessary to such settlement in compliance with the terms thereof stipulated by the act aforesaid.

The Second Auditor, the Honorable Rosewell Page, immediately entered upon the duties imposed upon him by the decree aforesaid and has been diligent and successful in performing them. He gave due notice by circular letter to all concerned of his appointment by the court as the representative of the Commonwealth of Virginia to make the exchange aforesaid, and in the manner and on the terms specified, and invited those holding or owning undeposited Virginia certificates to file same with him for settlement.

By October 5, 1920, Virginia deferred certificates amounting to $179,634.49 (of principal) had been filed with the Second Auditor for settlement which were duly certified by him to the board of public works of West Virginia for payment in reserve bonds to the value of $156,125.79, with all coupons attached. To facilitate the exchange the Second Auditor, accompanied by Major S. H. Williams, of Mr. Harrison's law firm, visited Charleston, West Virginia, on the 7th day of October, 1920, and met the board of public works of that State—the meeting having been previously arranged by Mr. Harrison with the Governor of West Virginia. All details in relation to the delivery of said reserve bonds in settlement of undeposited Virginia deferred certificates were thus thoroughly considered and an understanding reached and the West Virginia authorities were invited to send a representative to Richmond to inspect the certificates which had been deposited with the Second Auditor and by him certified for payment. This was done, with the result that the board of public works of West Virginia delivered to the Second Auditor of Virginia three and one-half per cent twenty-year gold bonds of the State of West Virginia, with all coupons attached, together with the requisite fractional certificates aggregating (bonds and fractional certificates) $156,125.79, the amount called for in settlement of $179,634.49 of undeposited Virginia deferred certificates certified by the Second Auditor for payment as aforesaid. The above bonds and fractional certificates, together with the proceeds of the past due coupons, were promptly distributed by the Second Auditor among those entitled thereto, in satisfaction of the Virginia deferred certificates surrendered by them as aforesaid, and said certificates were cancelled and filed as required by the decree aforesaid.

By November 29, 1920, additional Virginia deferred certificates, amounting to the sum of $145,923.40 (of principal), were received by the Second Auditor (Hon. Rosewell Page) from the owners thereof and were certified by him for payment to the board of public works of West Virginia and in due course he received in settlement thereof as required and called for three and one-half per cent twenty-year gold bonds and fractional certificates of the State, amounting to $93,412.68, with all coupons attached to said bonds. The above bonds and fractional certificates, together with the proceeds of the past due coupons, were promptly distributed by the Second Auditor to the owners thereof in payment of their said certificates deposited as aforesaid which were cancelled by the said Second Auditor as required by the decree aforesaid.

By January 22, 1921, the Second Auditor received additional Virginia deferred certificates, amounting to $35,091.39 (of principal), which he certified for payment to the board of public works of West Virginia and he received in due course in settlement thereof, as required and called for, three and one-half per cent twenty-year gold bonds and fractional certificates of that State, amounting to $22,653.77, which were promptly distributed to the owners thereof in payment of their said certificates deposited as aforesaid, and said certificates were cancelled and filed as required by said decree.

By April 7, 1921, the Second Auditor received from the owners thereof additional Virginia deferred certificates, amounting to $13,480.85 (of principal), which he certified for payment to the board of public works of West Virginia and the said board delivered to the said Second Auditor in settlement thereof three and one-half per cent twenty-year gold bonds and fractional certificates of that State, amounting to $12,086.16, the amount called for, with all coupons attached to said bonds. The said Second Auditor promptly distributed the same to the owners thereof in payment of their certificates deposited as aforesaid, which were cancelled and filed as required by said decree.

The Second Auditor received additional Virginia deferred certificates by July 16, 1921, amounting to the sum of $7,617.16 (of principal), which he certified for payment to the board of public works of West Virginia and received in settlement thereof, as required and called for three and one-half per cent twenty-year gold bonds and fractional certificates of that State, amounting to $3,815.15, with all coupons attached to said bonds, which he promptly distributed to the owners thereof in payment of their said certificates which were cancelled and filed as required by the decree aforesaid.

The extent of the work performed by the Second Auditor's office is indicated by the fact that the cancellation of the Virginia deferred certificates received from Brown Brothers & Company, amounting to $14,368,842.63, and the cancellation of the undeposited certificates filed by the owners with the Second Auditor and paid through his office by the board of public works of West Virginia, amounting as of July 16, 1921, to $381,747.29, involved approximately eight thousand entries on the books of the Second Auditor's office.

The total number of Virginia deferred certificates outstanding in the hands of the public (as shown by the report of Special Master Robert E. Scott) were as follows:

Deposited with Brown Bros. & Company.....	$ 14,368,842 63
Undeposited certificates .....	1,108,687 08

Total .....	$ 15,477,529 71
-------------	------------------

Of this total amount there have been paid, cancelled and filed in the Second Auditor's office the following:

Certificates deposited with Brown Bros.

& Co. paid, cancelled and filed.....$ 14,368,842 63

Undeposited certificates paid through Second Auditor's office as of July 16, 1921, by bonds held in escrow by the board of public works of West Virginia .....

381,747 29	14,750,589 92
------------	---------------

Leaving a balance as of July 16, 1921, of Virginia deferred certificates unaccounted for out of a total of $15,477,529.71 of .....

As these remaining undeposited certificates are presented to the Second Auditor they will be paid with the residue of the reserve bonds, amounting to $573,131.67, retained by the board of public works of West Virginia in escrow for that purpose, and any and so many of said reserve bonds which shall remain in the custody of the board of public works of West Virginia uncalled for by the authorized representative of Virginia on the first day of January, 1939, shall, according to the terms of the debt settlement act, be conclusively presumed to have been lost or destroyed and shall be cancelled by said board of public works.

The net proceeds of the cash payment made to your commission in settlement of said judgment, with the accrued bank interest thereon, was distributed, under the decree of the Circuit Court of the City of Richmond, entered July 22, 1920, as aforesaid, as follows: (1) to the Treasurer of Virginia the sum of $22,425.84, being the distributive share of the Commonwealth of Virginia in said fund, and (2) to Brown Brothers & Company the sum of $610,356.00, being the distributive share in said fund of the owners of Virginia deferred certificates deposited with Brown Brothers & Company.

The entire proceeds of the settlement with West Virginia having been distributed, except the residue of the reserve bonds as aforesaid, amounting, as of July 16, 1921, to $573,131.67, nothing remains to be done except, through the medium of the office of the Second Auditor, in connection with the payment of such of the balance of undeposited Virginia deferred certificates as may be presented to him hereafter for settlement with the bonds as aforesaid retained for that purpose by the board of public works of West Virginia.

Your commission under the authority of the act of March 6, 1900, retained as counsel on behalf of Virginia the late John B. Moon, Randolph Harrison, and Hon. William A. Anderson, the latter upon the expiration, on February 1, 1900, of his term of office as Attorney General. These gentlemen had charge of and conducted the litigation and negotiations between Virginia and West Virginia. The late Major Holmes Conrad, of Winchester, the late John G. Johnson, of Philadelphia, and Sanford Robinson, of New York, were employed by Brown Brothers & Company and were associated with Virginia's counsel at different periods during the progress of the litigation. They had at all times the advice, co-operation and assistance of the late Attorney General Samuel W. Williams, who succeeded Mr. Anderson, Attorney General John Garland Pollard, who succeeded Mr. Williams, and Attorney General John R. Saunders, who succeeded Mr. Pollard. Your commission, without meaning to discriminate, desire especially to acknowledge the valuable services rendered by Attorney General Saunders and Assistant Attorney General Hank in connection with the proceedings before the master and the court for the distribution of the proceeds of said settlement.

The right of the Commonwealth of Virginia to participate in her own right in the distribution of the proceeds of the recovery against the State of West Virginia was asserted in her original bill and based upon two grounds:

(1) That the commission of the "Sinking Fund" and the "Literary Fund" of the State held bonds of the State of Virginia purchased prior to January 1, 1861, and that when these bonds were subsequently funded the Virginia deferred certificates, representing the unsettled one-third of said bonds, issued to and held by the literary and sinking fund commissioners, respectively, were entitled to participate ratably in said recovery with the Virginia deferred certificates issued to and outstanding in the hands of the public.

(2) That obligation of the undivided State were paid off in full by Virginia, subsequent to January 1, 1861, from her separate and individual resources; that these unfunded obligations were included in the aggregate of the outstanding debt of the undivided State as of January 1, 1861, and that in respect to them Virginia had paid and satisfied, not only her own share thereof, but also West Virginia's share; that Virginia having paid in full out of her own resources obligations which bound both States she was entitled, upon well-recognized equitable principles, to be reimbursed out of the recovery to the extent of West Virginia's equitable share of such obligations, paid in full as aforesaid.

The special master appointed by the Supreme Court of the United States, in determining the amount of the public debt of the Commonwealth of Virginia on the first day of January, 1861, held that the bonds of the State of Virginia purchased prior to January 1, 1861, and held by her sinking fund and literary fund commissioners, did not constitute a part of the existing debt of Virginia, for a part of which West Virginia was liable. This finding of the master was approved by the court. As a consequence, the certificates representing the unsettled part of such bonds held by Virginia through the agency of her sinking and literary fund commissioners were not entitled to participate in the recovery against West Virginia.

In respect to the second ground upon which Virginia's right to participation was based, Virginia's counsel, Messrs. Harrison and Anderson, ably seconded by Attorney General Saunders and Assistant Attorney General Hank, successfully maintained said right in elaborate oral and written arguments before Special Master Scott and the Circuit Court of the City of Richmond. The Master held that the State of Virginia was entitled to share in said fund in her own right upon the basis of equitable contribution, and ascertained her distributive share to be $470,444.28 in cash and securities as hereinbefore shown, and this finding of the master was approved by the court.

The purpose of the suit against the State of West Virginia have been accomplished and the result is of the highest value to the people of Virginia.

The proceeds of the settlement have been distributed and $14,750,589.92 of Virginia's obligations, represented by the certificates called "Virginia deferred certificate" issued by her and outstanding in the hands of the public, have been paid off by her, cancelled and filed in the office of the Second Auditor from whence they issued from time to time during the past fifty years; and only a remnant of these obligations called Virginia deferred certificates remain outstanding in the hands of the public, while for the payment of this remnant bonds are retained by the board of public works of West Virginia and the machinery for their payment is provided for under the terms of the West Virginia act, approved April 1, 1919, and under the decree of the Circuit Court of the City of Richmond of July 22, 1920. Perhaps in the course of time the majority of this remnant of Virginia deferred certificates still outstanding in the hands of the public will be presented to the Second Auditor of Virginia for settlement and will be paid in due course by the board of public works of West Virginia; but such as may not be presented and certified for payment, by the first of January, 1939, will, under the terms of the act aforesaid, be forever barred of settlement.

It thus appears that liability for the unsettled one-third of the debt of the original State of Virginia, amounting with interest to more than fifty millions of dollars, which has rested like a shadow over Virginia for half a century has been finally settled through the instrumentality of your commission which was created for and charged with the duty of bringing about that important result.

In referring to the character, extent and value of the services rendered by your commission and counsel, Special Master Robert E. Scott, in his report, quoted the following extract from the testimony of Hon. H. T. Wickham:

"The responsibility upon the Virginia Commission and its members was very great, not only to the certificate holders but especially to the State of Virginia, and the determination to institute this suit in the Supreme Court of the United States, involving as it did the proportion of the debt of the original State proper to be borne by West Virginia and an accounting with West Virginia, was a matter of the gravest concern and consideration to the Virginia Commission and to each member thereof and the responsibility was proportionately great. The result has been that besides the pecuniary benefit to Virginia by whatever amount the commissioner may find she is entitled to in her own right and the court may decree to her, Virginia has been relieved of all danger of being made eventually to pay a possible indebtedness amounting with accrued interest to millions of dollars."

Special Master Scott also quoted, in his report, from the testimony of Mr. Randolph Harrison on this subject as follows:

"Thus this long drawn out and historic litigation has nearly drawn to a close. * * * * * The Virginia Debt Commission which, together with the Attorney-General, was charged with the duty and clothed with the power to institute and conduct this suit has performed that duty in a way which should be very gratifying to the people of Virginia, as well as to those who are the beneficiaries of their labors. It was a great responsibility and fraught with much risk and danger; but in the final result all can congratulate themselves upon having performed a high trust faithfully and efficiently. The weight of the responsibility primarily fell upon the counsel who were charged with the conduct of the suit. They had able and industrious counsel to meet, who left nothing undone that ability and ingenuity could devise to defeat the recovery; and while during the progress of the litigation the end seemed oftentimes doubtful and indefinite, still the struggle was continued unabated with a zeal and fidelity which could not well be surpassed. The result speaks for itself."

Not only is Virginia relieved of all liability in the premises for the hitherto unsettled one-third of her original debt, but she has the satisfaction of having rendered a service of the highest value to her creditors, and at the same time to have received into her own treasury on account of her share of the recovery in her own right $22,425.84 in cash and $447,818.34 in three and one-half per cent twenty-year gold bonds of the State of West Virginia—while the holders of Virginia deferred certificates have realized in cash and securities from 71.8 cents on the dollar of the principal of said certificates, issued under the act of 1892, to 95.9 cents on the dollar of the principal of the certificates issued under the act of 1871.

The members of your commission as originally constituted under the joint resolution of March 6, 1894, were Taylor Berry, H. D. Flood and H. T. Wickham, elected from the Senate, and John B. Moon, H. H. Downing and Randolph Harrison, elected from the House of Delegates, and W. F. Rhea, appointed by the Governor.

Your commission organized on the 26th of November, 1894, by the election of John B. Moon as chairman, and Joseph Button as secretary.

Since its organization four of its members have died,—Judge Taylor Berry in January, 1896, Honorable John B. Moon on March 13, 1915, and Honorable H. H. Downing on January 26, 1919, and Honorable H. D. Flood on December 8, 1921. Judge Berry was succeeded by Judge J. Thompson Brown, Mr. Moon by Honorable D. H. Pitts, and Mr. Downing by his son, Honorable J. H. Downing.

Mr. Moon served as chairman until his death and was succeeded by Mr. Downing who upon his death was succeeded by Judge Rhea. Mr. Button has served continuously as secretary.

Respectfully submitted,

WM. F. RHEA, Chairman,
H. T. WICKHAM,
D. H. PITTS,
JOHN H. DOWNING,
J. THOMPSON BROWN,
RANDOLPH HARRISON.

Concurrent Resolution, Legislature of West Virginia, Regular Session

Adopted February 20, 1919.

Relating to the judgment of Virginia against West Virginia.

Whereas, after protracted litigation, the Supreme Court of the United States by its decree entered in the suit of the Commonwealth of Virginia against the State of West Virginia on the 14th of June, 1915, adjudged, ordered and decreed that:

The complainant, Commonwealth of Virginia, recover of and from the defendant, State of West Virginia, the sum of $12,393,929.50, with interest thereon from July 1, 1915, until paid, at the rate of five per centum per annum, and that each party pay one-half of the costs; which debt, interest and costs, under the terms of said decree, as of January 1, A. D. 1919, are as follows:

1915, July 1, principal.....	$12,393,929 50
Interest thereon from July 1, 1915, to January 1, 1919.....	2,168,937 66

Total, principal and interest, as of said January 1, 1919.....	$14,562,667 16

to which is to be added one-half of the costs of said suit and,

Whereas, the Supreme Court of the United States, did on the 22nd day of April, 1918, upon a petition for a writ of mandamus, render an opinion, in said cause, a part of which is as follows:

Giving effect to this view, accepting the things which are irrevocably foreclosed—briefly stated, the judgment against the State, operating upon it in all of its governmental powers, and the duty to enforce it, viewed in that aspect—our conclusion is that the case should be restored to the docket for further argument at the next term after the February recess. Such argument will embrace the three questions left open. First, the right, under the conditions previously stated, to award the mandamus prayed for. Second, if, not, the power and duty to direct the levy of a tax, as stated; and, third, if means for doing so be found to exist, the right, if necessary, to apply such other and appropriate equitable remedy by dealing with the funds, or taxable property of West Virginia, or the rights of that State, as may secure an execution of the judgment. In saying this, however, to the end that if, on such future hearing provided for, the conclusion should be that any of the processes stated are susceptible of being lawfully applied (repeating that we do not now decide such question), occasion for a further delay may not exist, we reserve the right, if deemed advisable, at a day hereafter, before the end of the term or at the next term before the period fixed for the hearing, appoint a master for the purpose of examining and reporting concerning the amount and method of taxation essential to be put into effect, whether by way of order to the State legislature, or direct action to secure the full execution of the judgment, as well as concerning the means otherwise existing in the State of West Virginia, if any, which, by the exercise of the equitable powers in the discharge of the duty to enforce payment, may be available for that purpose; and,

Whereas, the only thing preventing the West Virginia Debt Commission and the Virginia Debt Commission from reaching an agreement for the settlement or adjustment of the debt as decreed by the Supreme Court of the United States was the matter of allowing West Virginia to hold in escrow sufficient of the proposed issue of bonds in payment of the debt to cover the value of the lost or unrepresented so-called West Virginia certificates estimated to amount to one million one hundred thousand dollars until said certificates are discovered and presented to West Virginia for payment, if at all; and,

Whereas, the Honorable Randolph Harrison, attorney for the Virginia Debt Commission, and representing the State of Virginia, appeared before a joint session of the legislature and, on behalf of the said State of Virginia, proposed if the legislature of West Virginia would elect to settle the said judgment, to accept in full settlement thereof a cash payment of $1,062,867.16, with interest thereon at five per cent from the 1st day of January, 1919, until paid, and bonds of the State of West Virginia for the residue of $13,500,000.00 to be dated January 1, 1919, and to bear interest at the rate of three and one-half per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, spread over a period of twenty years, and payable in gold coin and free from taxes in the State of West Virginia, and further agreed that the State of West Virginia may retain or hold in escrow in its treasury of said bonds a sufficient amount to cover the value of unrepresented so-called West Virginia certificates, and which such certificates shall be redeemed as they may be presented during the term of the bonds, and which certificates are now estimated to amount to about $1,100,000, said bonds to be held and retained by the State of West Virginia unless and until said certificates are discovered and about $1,100,000, said bonds to be held and retained by the State of West Virginia to be exchanged for bonds so retained in escrow as aforesaid, ratably; and,

Whereas, the State of West Virginia desires to accept the proposition of the Debt Commission of the Commonwealth of Virginia and thereby comply with the decrees of said court and to satisfy the same as soon as practicable; therefore, be it Resolved by the Senate (the House of Delegates concurring), That the offer of settlement of the judgment of the Commonwealth of Virginia against the State of West Virginia, made by the Virginia Debt Commission, through the said Honorable Randolph Harrison to the joint session of the legislature, be, and the same is, hereby accepted, and the committees on the subject of the Virginia debt of the respective houses are hereby directed to prepare and submit to the House and Senate a suitable bill or suitable bills, as soon as practicable for the purpose of providing for the payment of the cash payment and the issuance and delivery of the bonds, and provide the revenue to pay the principal and interest as the same may become due and payable, necessary to carry out the terms of such offer as hereinbefore set out.

Extraordinary Session

AN ACT providing for the payment of West Virginia's part of the public debt of the Commonwealth of Virginia prior to the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-one, as ascertained by the judgment of the Supreme Court of the United States and adjusted by the two States, and to provide for the issuance of bonds and the raising and appropriation of money for the payment of said judgment.

(Passed March 31, 1919. In effect from its passage. Approved by the Governor April 1, 1919.

Which debt, principal and interest, under the terms of said decree as of January one, A. D., one thousand nine hundred and nineteen is as follows:

July 1, 1915, principal .....	$12,393,929 50

Total principal and interest as of January 1, 1919.....	$14,562,867 16 to which is to be added one-half of the costs of said suit, when taxed and certified; and,

Whereas, the State of West Virginia desires to comply with the decree of said court, and to satisfy the same as soon as practicable; and,

Whereas, this legislature has been informed by the report of the West Virginia Debt Commission, as well as by the representatives of the Commonwealth of Virginia, that the bonds of the State of West Virginia, dated January one, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, bearing interest at three and one-half per centum per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of July and January of each year, hereinafter described, and to the face amount of thirteen million five hundred thousand dollars, together with a cash payment of one million sixty-two thousand eight hundred sixty-seven dollars sixteen cents, with interest thereon at the rate of five per centum per annum from the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, until the date of payment thereof (West Virginia to pay one-half of the costs of said suit as taxed and certified by the clerk of the Supreme Court of the United States), will be accepted at par in full satisfaction of said judgment.

Now, therefore,

Be it enacted by the legislature of West Virginia:

Section 1. That the auditor of the State of West Virginia be and he is hereby authorized and directed to draw his warrant upon the treasurer of said State in favor of the Commonwealth of Virginia acting by and through its commission, constituted under and by virtue of the joint resolution of the General Assembly of Virginia, approved March six, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-four, and the act of the General Assembly of Virginia, approved March six, one thousand nine hundred "in respect to the settlement with West Virginia of the proportion of the public debt of the original State of Virginia to be borne by West Virginia," or upon the order of said Virginia commission, for the sum of one million sixty-two thousand eight hundred sixty-seven dollars sixteen cents, with interest thereon at the rate of five per centum per annum from January one, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, until paid; and said treasurer, upon the presentation of said warrant, is authorized and directed to draw his check upon the treasury of the State of West Virginia, payable to the Commonwealth of Virginia, acting by and through the said Virginia commission, or upon the order of said commission, out of any funds available for such purpose, for the sum so authorized by the auditor's warrant, and shall deliver the said check to the Commonwealth of Virginia, acting by and through the said Virginia commission or upon the order of said commission on or before the first day of September, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, and take a proper receipt therefor; and the said check, when so drawn and delivered, shall constitute a credit for the full amount thereof upon the judgment rendered on the fourteenth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and fifteen, by the Supreme Court of the United States in favor of the Commonwealth of Virginia against the State of West Virginia.

Sec. 2. For the payment of the residue of said judgment, both principal and interest, an issue of "listable" engraved bonds of the State of West Virginia, coupon and registered, is hereby created, to the face value of thirteen million five hundred thousand dollars, and the treasurer and auditor of this State shall cause said bonds and coupons to be engraved as soon as may be after this act takes effect.

The bonds hereinabove referred to may be issued as follows, to-wit:

Coupon bonds in denominations of one hundred dollars, five hundred dollars and one thousand dollars; registered bonds in denominations of one hundred dollars, five hundred dollars, one thousand dollars, five thousand dollars and ten thousand dollars.

All coupon and registered bonds issued under this act shall be separately listed by the auditor in books provided for the specific purpose, in each case giving the date, number, character, amount of obligations issued, and in case of registered bonds, the name of the person or corporation to whom issued.

The auditor and treasurer are authorized to exchange the coupon bonds issued under this act into registered bonds in the denominations hereinbefore provided, and to arrange for the transfer of registered bonds, and to exchange registered bonds for coupon bonds in the denominations of said coupon bonds hereinbefore provided. For every such bond so issued by the State in exchange, a fee of fifty cents shall be charged by and paid to the State of West Virginia, and covered into the treasury to the credit of the "sinking fund" hereinafter described, and bonds so taken in exchange shall be cancelled by the treasurer and auditor, and be carefully preserved by the treasurer.

Sec. 3. The said bonds shall be dated January one, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, and be payable at the office of the treasurer of this State, or at such agency in the city of New York as may be designated by the State of West Virginia, at the option of the holder, on the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine, with the right reserved to the State of West Virginia to redeem any of said bonds at any time before maturity at par, with accrued interest as provided in section seven of this act, and shall bear interest at the rate of three and one-half per centum per annum from the date thereof, payable semi-annually on the first day of July and January in each year (in the case of coupon bonds upon the presentation and surrender of the coupon representing interest then due), and the said interest may be payable at the office of the treasurer of this State, or at the New York agency above referred to, at the option of the holder, both principal and interest to be payable in gold coin of the United States of the present standard of weight and fineness.

Sec. 4. The bonds shall be signed by the treasurer of the State of West Virginia, and countersigned by her auditor, and shall be substantially in the following form, to-wit:

STATE OF WEST VIRGINIA.

BOND NUMBER ———.

This bond, issued under act of the legislature of West Virginia, approved the ——— day of ———, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, reference to which is hereby made as fully and at length as if copied and set forth in this bond.

The State of West Virginia acknowledges herself to be indebted to _____ (in the case of a coupon bond, to the bearer, and in case of a registered bond, inserting the name of a person or corporation, or assigns), in the sum of _____ dollars, which she promises to pay in gold coin of the United States of the present standard of weight and fineness at the office of the treasurer of the State of West Virginia, or at such agency in the city of New York as may be designated by the State of West Virginia, at the option of the holder, on the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine; with the right to redeem at par with accrued interest before maturity at any time on or after January one, one thousand nine hundred and twenty, in accordance with the terms and provisions of said act, to which reference is hereby made; interest payable at the office of the treasurer of the State of West Virginia, or at such agency in the city of New York, as may from time to time be designated by the State of West Virginia, at the option of the holder, in gold coin at the rate of three and one-half per centum per annum from January one, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, until paid, payable semi-annually on July first and January first in each year (according to the tenor of the annexed coupons bearing the engraved signature of the treasurer of the State of West Virginia, in case of coupon bonds). This obligation is hereby made exempt from any taxation by the State of West Virginia, or by any county, district or municipal corporation thereof.

In testimony whereof, witness the signature of _____, treasurer of the State of West Virginia, and the counter-signature of _____, auditor of the State of West Virginia, hereto affixed according to law, dated the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen.

Auditor of West Virginia.

Sec. 5. The form of coupons shall be substantially as follows, to-wit:

Coupon No. ——— for Bond No. ———.

On the first day of _____ the State of West Virginia will pay to bearer _____ dollars in gold coin of the United States of the present standard of weight and fineness at the office of the treasurer of the State, or at such agency of the State of West Virginia in New York city as may be designated by the State, at the option of the holder, the same being six months' interest on Bond No. ———.

_____
Treasurer of West Virginia.

The signature of the treasurer to said coupons may be engraved and each coupon shall be impressed on the back with its number in order of maturity from number one consecutively.

Sec. 6. The said auditor and treasurer are hereby empowered and directed to issue and deliver as soon as practicable coupon bonds to the aggregate amount of twelve million three hundred sixty-six thousand five hundred dollars ($12,366,500.00) face value, to the Commonwealth of Virginia, acting by and through the said Virginia commission, or upon the order of said commission, and shall take a proper receipt therefor, which shall be in full discharge of the balance of the judgment aforesaid. Provided, however, that no part of said bonds shall be so delivered until the Commonwealth of Virginia shall make and file with the board of public works of the State of West Virginia a full and complete itemized statement or list of the "Virginia deferred certificates," which have been deposited with the Commonwealth of Virginia, or subject to her control, upon the passage of this act. In order that the State of West Virginia may have the benefit of the distributive share in the proceeds of the judgment aforesaid, of such "Virginia deferred certificates" as may have been lost or destroyed, the residue, to-wit, bonds to the aggregate amount of one million one hundred and thirty-three thousand five hundred dollars ($1,133,500.00) face value, hereinafter referred to as "reserve bonds," shall be delivered to the board of public works of the State of West Virginia, and shall be held by it in escrow upon the following conditions and trusts:

(1) When and as soon as it shall be ascertained by the Commonwealth of Virginia and certified by said State, acting by and through the said Virginia commission, or its duly authorized representative, to the board of public works of this State, the amount of said reserve bonds which it will be necessary for the State of West Virginia to retain in escrow, in order to exchange the same on the proper distributive basis, and in the manner hereinafter provided, for "Virginia deferred certificates," which have not been deposited with the Commonwealth of Virginia, or subject to her control at the time this act takes effect, then the said board of public works is authorized and directed to deliver to the Commonwealth of Virginia, acting by and through the said Virginia commission, or upon the order of said commission, all of said reserve bonds in excess of the amount so ascertained and certified to be necessary, and shall take a proper receipt therefor. The certificate aforesaid shall be accompanied by a copy of the statement of account of distribution, fully and completely itemized, showing the name of the owner (if known) and amount of each of the "Virginia deferred certificates" or claims legally entitled to participate in the funds of the judgment aforesaid, together with an itemized list showing the name of the owner and the amount of all of the said "Virginia deferred certificates" deposited with the said commission or subject to its control, and entitled to share in the distribution of the funds in the judgment aforesaid. All of said "Virginia deferred certificates" shall be open to inspection to the board of public works of West Virginia, or its representative at the time the account of distribution is stated. It is the purpose and intent of this section that only such amount of the said bonds shall be retained in escrow, for exchange as hereinafter provided, as shall represent the distributive share of such "Virginia deferred certificates" in the fund arising from the settlement of the judgment aforesaid as shall not have been, at the time this act takes effect, deposited with the said Virginia commission, or subject to its control.

(2) Said bonds, with interest coupons thereto attached, shall be, from time to time, after the first of July, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, delivered by the said board of public works upon the order of the Commonwealth of Virginia, acting by and through the said Virginia commission, or the order thereof, or other representative of Virginia as may at the time be authorized and empowered to act. Such order shall be accompanied by a certificate of the representatives of the Commonwealth of Virginia who give the order that holders of the certificates heretofore issued by the Commonwealth of Virginia under its respective funding acts, and commonly known as "Virginia deferred certificates," have presented "Virginia deferred certificates" to an amount named, for adjustment by the Commonwealth of Virginia, and that the same are entitled to share in the distribution of said bonds authorized to be issued under the terms of this act to the amount named in said order. The "Virginia deferred certificates" themselves, upon which said order and certificate are delivered, shall be open to the inspection of the representatives of the State of West Virginia, authorized by her board of public works.

Upon the receipt of such order and certificate, the said board of public works shall forthwith, from the said reserved bonds so held in escrow, deliver the amount of bonds so certified by the representatives making the certificate, and such certificate, if found correct upon examination by the board of public works, shall be conclusive evidence of the amount of bonds to be delivered to such representatives, and the receipt of such representatives shall be a discharge pro tanto of the obligation to deliver said reserve bonds so held in escrow.

In order to cover any fractional part that may be left after the amount certified as aforesaid shall have been met as nearly as possible by the delivery of reserve bonds, the said board of public works shall issue and deliver to the representatives of Virginia, as hereinbefore provided, a certificate or certificates for such fractional amount or amounts. Such fractional certificates shall be exchangeable for the said reserve bonds when presented in sums of one hundred dollars or multiples thereof, and certificates of like character shall be issued for any fractional amount which may remain in making the exchange.

(3) Any and so many of said bonds constituting a part of said deposit of reserve bonds issued under this act which shall remain in the custody of said board of public works uncalled for by the said Virginia commission, or other authorized representatives of Virginia, on the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine, shall, with all the interest coupons attached to said bonds, be conclusively presumed to have been lost or destroyed, and shall be immediately cancelled by said board of public works, and a copy of the record of such act of cancellation, with a descriptive list of the bonds so cancelled, shall be transmitted by said board of public works to the said Virginia commission, or other authorized representatives of Virginia, and also to the second auditor of the Commonwealth of Virginia at Richmond, Va., and said board of public works shall duly report their action in the premises, accompanied by a verified copy of the record of such act of cancellation and descriptive list of bonds so cancelled, to the legislature of the State of West Virginia.

Sec. 7. The payment of the bonds hereinbefore provided for, in order to conform to constitutional provisions of the State of West Virginia, and to the adjustment made with the Commonwealth of Virginia, shall be equally distributed over a period of twenty years, beginning with the date of said bonds and ending with their maturity.

In the year one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, and annually thereafter, there shall be set apart from the revenues of the State each year up to the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine, a fund amounting to at least one-twentieth of said total issue of bonds, which said sum shall be paid into the treasury of this State to the credit of a fund hereby created, which shall be designated as "The Sinking Fund"; and the board of public works is hereby authorized and directed annually to apply said sinking fund to the purchase at a rate not above par and accrued interest, or redemption at par and accrued interest, of the bonds issued under this act, and the bonds so purchased or redeemed shall be cancelled by the said board of public works, and the same registered by the auditor in a book kept for that purpose, giving the number, date of issue, character, amount and owner, if known, at the time of purchase of the bonds so redeemed and cancelled; and in case no such purchase of bonds shall be made then the serial numbers of the bonds to be redeemed, as hereinbefore provided in this section, shall be determined by lot by the auditor and treasurer, and notice of the serial numbers of the bonds so selected to be redeemed, shall be given by publication, once every two weeks, beginning at least sixty days prior to an interest due date, in a newspaper published in Charleston, West Virginia, and in a newspaper published in New York City, and interest from and after the next succeeding interest due date shall cease upon the bonds so designated to be paid.

Sec. 8. In order to provide the revenues for the payment of the principal and interest of said bonds as hereinbefore provided, the board of public works of this State is authorized, empowered and directed to lay annually a tax upon all the real and personal property subject to taxation within this State sufficient to pay the interest on said bonds accruing during the current year and the principal of all bonds to be purchased or redeemed during that year, as hereinbefore provided; which taxes shall be collected in the usual way and paid into the treasury of the State to the credit of the "Sinking Fund" aforesaid, and shall not be liable for appropriation for any other purpose. Provided, however, that if there be other funds in the State treasury in any fiscal year, not otherwise appropriated, or if other sources or revenue be hereafter provided by law for the purpose, the board of public works is authorized, empowered and directed to set apart in any year there be such funds, or other sources of revenue provided for such purpose, a sum sufficient to pay the interest on said bonds accruing during the current year, and the principal of all bonds to be purchased or redeemed during any such year.

The authority hereby vested in the board of public works shall be in addition to the authority now vested in it by present law.

Sec. 9. The treasurer of the State of West Virginia is empowered and directed, upon warrant of the auditor, to pay the interest for the first six months on the bonds issued under this act as the same shall become due and payable, out of any money in the treasury of the State of West Virginia not otherwise appropriated, and all subsequent interest accruing thereafter upon said bonds shall be paid by him in accordance with the terms of this act, out of the sinking fund hereinbefore provided.

Sec. 10. The plates from which the bonds authorized by this act are printed shall be the property of the State of West Virginia.

Sec. 11. All necessary expenses incurred in the execution of this act shall be paid out of any money in the treasury of the State of West Virginia, not otherwise appropriated, on warrants of the auditor of the State drawn upon the State treasurer.

Sec. 12. The auditor is further empowered and directed to procure without delay, from the clerk of the Supreme Court of the United States a certified statement of all costs, paid or unpaid, incurred in the case of the Commonwealth of Virginia against the State of West Virginia, resulting in the judgment hereinbefore described, together with the names of the persons to whom such costs are payable, and shall draw his warrant upon the treasurer for the amount of one-half thereof, and the treasurer shall issue his check for said amount in accordance with the terms of said warrant, payable to the order of the clerk of the Supreme Court of the United States, with authority and direction to the clerk of said court to settle in full West Virginia's one-half of all costs incurred in said litigation, with direction to said clerk to remit to the State of West Virginia the amount of any credit that said State may be entitled to by reason of advancements or partial payments heretofore made by said State on account of said costs.

INAUGURAL ADDRESS

E. Lee Trinkle

Forty-seventh Governor of the State of Virginia

---

Delivered on Wednesday, February 1, 1922

RICHMOND:

1922

of
Governor E. Lee Trinkle

Gentlemen of the General Assembly of Virginia:

May I not with the very first words of my inaugural address express to the people of Virginia my sincere appreciation of the honor they so generously bestowed upon me, on the 8th of November, last, in electing me Governor of this Commonwealth.

Every honor carries with it obligations and responsibilities in keeping with the dignity and importance of the honor bestowed. Therefore, by this rule of measure my responsibilities are great and my recognition of this fact is most alert.

During the last few years our State and nation have passed through an unparalleled period of ever-changing conditions. The World War has been fought, victory has been won, and peace-times are now with us. The war, during its continuance and shortly thereafter, necessarily created an abnormal period of prosperity. Ready and remunerative markets were found for all of our products, and there was a persistent demand for all classes of labor.

The scenes have now shifted. The markets of the world, due to tremendous expenditures and resulting financial prostration, and almost unbearable war burdens attending the fearful period of strife, have, in effect, been denied us. Consequently, we now find our factories closed, agriculture temporarily stagnated, and ourselves, with over-developed appetites for extravagance, to be fed out of empty pockets, idle shops, and the hands of unemployed labor.

Therefore, with discouraging business conditions and facing enlarged views as to the necessities of modern living, we find ourselves living in a precarious atmosphere. Only the application of sound judgment, a dissipation of false pride, economical handling of public and private affairs, and a sincere and consecrated desire to serve can save us from a continued period of unrest, dissatisfaction, and financial depression.

I wish to say, however, there is no substantial reason why our people should not recognize as largely psychological the conditions that exist today; admit that there is no justifiable occasion for things to be as they are; and that by the spirit of determination to have normal conditions restored the scenes may rapidly shift again, and the curtain be raised on a forward-looking, progressive, and satisfied State and nation.

Virginia, however, in spite of recent and present industrial depression, has had a phenomenal growth in her increase of wealth; today having property, most moderately assessed, totalling a gross valuation of taxable value for 1921 of all property in the State of $1,804,178,776.94, exclusive of value of incomes taxed, which was $135,785,094, as against a total valuation of property for 1917 of $1,269,555,995, exclusive of values of incomes taxed, which was $64,259,538.

Our roads have been greatly improved and re-built. Our schools have been enlarged; our teaching force increased, attendance showing unprecedented enlargement.

Our health conditions have been exceedingly favorable under the splendid work of our Health Department.

Our Corporation Commission has functioned well, showing a large increase in income from the corporate interests of this State, yet at the same time meeting out equal and fair justice to the same.

Our agricultural interests have shown a steady improvement; our crop yields substantial growth, but a heavy decline in price.

Our Industrial Commission is serving well both employer and employee, protecting the interests of the widows and orphans of our laboring men who have lost their lives in the onward march of industrial service.

The laboring man in Virginia has been conservative. Both he and his employer, comparatively speaking, have gone through the recent years without serious dispute between themselves.

Every department of State has zealously guarded whatever of her interests have been entrusted to its keeping.

Our State affairs have been handled without scandal or known fraud and free from wilfull dissipation of public funds.

In other words, I feel that we can claim for Virginia the tribute of a State, well-managed, administered with reasonable economy, yet, at the same time, a safe, conservative, progressive Commonwealth.

There is no reason for any Virginian to feel in any way abashed over this being the State of his nativity or adoption. Here and now I pledge all of the strength, energy and talent that I possess to help make the period of my administration full of advancement, growth and accomplishment.

It is especially fitting that the oath of office to the Chief Executive of this Commonwealth should be administered by the president of the highest court in our judiciary system and in the presence of the legislative bodies. Here we have united in spirit, in person, and in resolve for service our executive, legislative, and judicial forces.

I have great faith in the executive heads of our various State departments. Their judgment is sound, their interest deep and sincere; and I call upon them to ever remember that on them I shall lean heavily, and from them I shall expect strong and undivided support.

Suggestions of Retiring Governor

Since reading the exhaustive and able address of the retiring Governor, delivered before the General Assembly on January 11th, last, I feel that it is not necessary for me to detail the facts and conditions relative to our numerous State undertakings as fully as I should otherwise have done.

I am confident that it will be the pleasure of the General Assembly to consider seriously the suggestions made by him; and it will be my pleasure, as the incoming Governor, to assist sincerely in any reforms or forward-looking steps that a consideration of his suggestions may lead to.

Public Servants

The State is dependent for the faithful execution of her laws, the proper handling of her finances, and her leadership in State activities upon the character, integrity, and ability of her public officials.

Too many public servants mean confusion and waste; too few mean incomplete service; and poorly-paid officials naturally mean inefficiency and dissatisfaction.

Therefore, I urge that we be very careful in adding to the list of our State and departmental employees; yet not too conservative when the public good demands more assistance. Above all let us be fair in the compensation given to those who serve, bearing in mind at all times that men and women who render a complete service must live, enjoy a reasonable degree of comfort, and be so situated that they can meet the reasonable demands of the times.

Under no circumstances, however, should we allow the fear of effect on our political future, or the desire to gratify the wishes of our friends, to induce us to take from the treasury of our State greater compensation for those employed than the service rendered fully justifies, nor to prevent us from making economical co-ordination and consolidation.

Any movement leading to fewer office-holders, or any change of pay system which will give better results than are now obtained should not be passed by through fear of unpopularity with constituents or the class affected, but should have full and fair consideration on its merits.

Women

Since the inauguration of our last Governor, the women of Virginia have been fully and completely enfranchised. It, therefore, becomes our duty to acknowledge their new status. In the making of our laws we should remember that they are entitled to be duly recognized and protected.

I have always believed and now believe that the entrance of women into politics will be a source of strength and uplift to our public life.

Public officials will be required to measure up to high standards of ability, service and moral character, if they expect to receive and to deserve the support of women.

Public officials will be required to measure up to high standards of ability, service and moral character, if they expect to receive and to deserve the support of women.

To them I shall look for encouragement and sympathy in my endeavors to serve the people of the Commonwealth. I shall expect them to take a keen and active interest in the affairs of the State, especially in the enforcement of law, the guardianship and education of our children, the improvement of our sanitary conditions, and in those things which naturally appeal to the motherly instinct and a woman's love.

It shall be my purpose during my administration to see that they have full and fair consideration.

I endorse the recommendation in the last Budget for providing sufficient assistance for the proper supervision of the employment of women and children in industry through the Bureau of Labor and Industrial Statistics.

Children's Welfare and Mother's Relief

A commission was appointed to make a study of child life and mother's relief. In consequence of this work, I understand many bills dealing with these subjects have been presented, or will be presented, to this Assembly. The suggestions of these bills I have not had an opportunity to become acquainted with, but I feel justified in asking that they be carefully studied by a committee directly appointed for the purpose, or else by a sub-committee of an already duly constituted legislative committee. Virginia should enact into law such of these proposed bills as may be wise, wholesome, and proper.

Child-life is well worthy of consideration; and we should at all times remember that the tendencies of youth become a component part of grownup men and women, thus impressing upon ourselves the importance of starting and keeping the child right.

Confederate Veterans

I am glad to note that the Budget has recommended an increase in pensions to the Confederate soldiers. This increase is heartily approved; and Virginia, having due regard to other urgent needs of the Commonwealth, should at all times go to the very limit of her ability in dealing generously with her veterans and their needy widows. We should ever be mindful of the valiant service rendered by them.

Memorial Building

Virginia holds in highest esteem the veterans of the World War, and shall ever be ready to do all within her power for their encouragement, comfort, and advancement.

The last General Assembly made an appropriation for a memorial to the Virginia veterans of the World War in the form of a library and auditorium building.

For reasons not necessary to set forth, it now seems that there must necessarily be a change in the plans originally contemplated.

I feel that one of the urgent needs of the Commonwealth is the erection of an office building. Our officials are scattered in many sections of the city of Richmond. This condition tends to displease the people, make for inefficiency, and to prevent proper departmental supervision.

I, therefore, am constrained to believe that full and ample consideration should be given to the plan of a proper appropriation for the erection of the memorial, which should include within its walls office space, a suitable auditorium, a modernly-designed library, and a "Hall of Memory."

In making this suggestion, I do so on the theory that those in honor of whom this memorial is to be erected would prefer it to be of such character of construction as to be ever-serving to the State and her people.

The funds and bonds received by Virginia in the settlement of the West Virginia debt controversy might be wisely used in furnishing a portion of the funds required for the erection of the memorial.

Hampton Roads

I have read with great interest the report of the Commission appointed to study the question of the development of Hampton Roads, and I heartily concur in the recommendations therein made, and anticipate the General Assembly will carry the same into effect.

The State cannot longer fail to do all within its power for the development of these wonderful water facilities, not only as to Hampton Roads proper, but also as to all of her navigable inland waterways. They should both be built up together.

It is difficult to conceive of the tremendous possibilities awaiting developments in this direction, and to appreciate what this development will mean toward a greater Virginia.

Health

I feel that I should express to you my very strong interest in work for the conservation of health and prevention of disease. In proportion as people are well and strong, we may expect them to be happy, productive, and progressive.

No tax upon the people is so oppressive and so unjustifiable as the tax that is levied by preventable disease. We now know how most of the serious diseases are carried, and we know how to prevent their transmission. It is our bounden duty to utilize this knowledge.

Disclosures of examining boards, here and abroad, during the war were shocking to all right-thinking people. No one had imagined that such a large percentage of young men in our country and in other countries were unfit for military service. It is no justification for us to say that Virginia was not notably deficient—that our trouble was the trouble of all.

We cannot erase that record, but we can prevent its repetition. Health is, by and large, a purchasable commodity. We are not able to guarantee additional years to any one individual, but we are able, if we afford a sufficiency of prevention, to guarantee a longer average life to the people of a community or a State.

As a concrete illustration, the record of the State Board of Health in reducing the number of typhoid cases from more than 14,000 in 1909 to less than 3,000 in 1920, and the number of deaths from more than 1,400 in the former years to 267 in the latter, is surely sufficiently illuminating. What has been done with typhoid and the other filth-borne diseases has measurably been done with other groups; and we may expect great results from the newly-instituted co-operative efforts of the health and school authorities with the children of Virginia.

In connection with health matters we cannot overlook the serious scarcity of doctors in our rural sections; and, unfortunately, this is a condition which may not be expected to rapidly improve. It is, therefore, incumbent on our fellow citizens in the country to guard themselves. Wherever possible there should be active health organizations in counties, and I feel it a duty to urge upon all the people to heed the advice and obey the regulations of the State Board of Health.

So far as our finances will permit we should be liberal in our appropriations for public health. This is a sound, economic principle. Weak and sickly people cannot compete with strong and healthy ones. We should be willing to make economies in other lines rather than ignore this health work which, humanity and charity aside, offers to a State the most certain and largest dividends for the amounts invested.

Prison Reform

The subject of prison conditions is looming large among the States of the Union, the tendency being to introduce modern, humane, and sensible prison reform. These reforms have as their object the training of prisoners in practical lines, to fit them for a life of usefulness after their terms of imprisonment shall have expired and, at the same time to make their period of confinement less unbearable, without in any way decreasing its corrective and deterring effects.

Virginia has caught this spirit; and it shall be my purpose to participate actively in all movements towards seeing that our State, within reasonable limitations, is alive to the trend of modern thought in this direction. Especial study will be made during the period of the next two years along the line of indeterminate sentences; and if found advisable, recommendations will be made in that direction to the next session of the General Assembly.

Criminal Appeals

The act of March 19, 1920 (Acts 1920, p. 416), provided for an appeal in this State as a matter of right in every criminal case, regardless of the character or grade of the offense, or the merits of the case. Prior to its enactment appeals in criminal cases were allowed wherever the Supreme Court found upon examination of the record that there was reasonable ground to believe that error had been committed to the prejudice of the prisoner in the trial court. The practical application of this new law has been attended, and will continue to be attended, by serious and objectionable results. It not only adds greatly to the burdens of the office of the Attorney-

General, and unnecessarily encumbers the docket of the appellate court, blocking the way for speedy determination of meritorious litigation; but it affords a sure means of delaying the enforcement of the plainly just sentences of the trial courts. Such delays, harmful in all cases, are especially dangerous in cases of murder and assault, calculated to arouse public indignation and to provoke mob violence. That act, it is felt, should be repealed.

Budget System

The Budget System in Virginia has been in existence for several years. It seems to be generally admitted that the same should be continued and enlarged. My study of the question has convinced me that whilst the Governor should remain the executive head of the Budget, the law should be so amended as to authorize him to appoint a "Director of the Budget," who shall give his entire time to the proper execution and improvement of the system and to carrying into effect its real object and purposes. I recommend that so fast as may consistently be done the various departments and State institutions be included within the Budget System, and that all funds belonging to the State or to be handled by the State through any of its officials, find their way to the treasury and be disbursed by legislative appropriation to insure economy in expenditure, accuracy of accounting, fidelity to trust, and business-like administration.

Purchasing Agent

The State has, during the last few years, established a central purchasing department, through which many of the needs of the Commonwealth and its various institutions may be supplied at a cost considerably reduced below that of the old method of individual buying. Our law as now written needs strengthening. The department is merely advisory, with no authority to see that the various institutions purchase through it, even though a clear saving would be made.

The standardizing of the supplies of our institutions and departments would go far towards a great saving in the State's outlay. I earnestly request that the question of State standardization be seriously studied by those upon whom this duty devolves, and as far as possible, made an accomplished fact.

I know of no greater financial service our departmental and institution heads can render than to co-operate actively with this department in bringing it to its full measure of usefulness.

Insurance

From year to year, laws are being enacted which allow the Insurance Department of Virginia to render more and farreaching service to the people. The cost of insurance, in its many phases and varieties, to the citizenry of this State runs into many millions, and the Insurance Department should, therefore, be given sufficient authority to deal sternly, yet fairly and righteously, with the companies which desire to do business within our territory.

The State should never surrender its reserved power to demand just and fair rates, and to prevent such combinations as may tend to deny such rates. I feel that, so long as reasonable charges only are demanded for risks taken, it is better for the Commonwealth that she not enter into any phase of the insurance field—not even to the extent of taking upon herself the extra care and burden of administering funds.

If, however, the General Assembly is led to the belief that our people are not, and will not be, able to secure insurance protection at reasonable costs; then, every method compatible with the needs of the occasion should be brought to play, for Virginia must see to it that protection along this line is afforded under a schedule of equitable cost.

Department of Fisheries and Game

The Department of Fisheries and Game is one that can do much towards solving the problem of cheaper food. God, in His ever bountiful spirit, has given to Virginia, lavishly, a fish and oyster producing territory.

Information has it that this valuable asset of the State is not yielding the return in sea food that we have a right to expect. If our laws are defective and prevent the return that should be had, either in food or State revenue, or if our laws, as written, are not being strictly enforced, let us see that they be amended, or that law violation be no longer countenanced. This great and important State industry should ever be under the watchful eye of the General Assembly.

The sportsmen of our State are willingly bearing the financial burden consequent upon the maintenance of a Game Department, and, therefore, they are entitled to the enactment and enforcement of reasonable game laws.

I earnestly recommend that this branch of our government be not looked upon as one of minor importance, for in reality it deals with what is probably Virginia's greatest asset.

Education

Beyond question the chief concern of the State is to develop a high type of citizenship and to assist in providing a safe and happy economic basis for this citizenship. There is no escape from the conclusion that the training for citizenship is one of the highest and most important function of the modern State, if not indeed the very highest and most important. The system of public education must, therefore, be regarded by all intelligent people as a basic and fundamental thing in a democratic form of government. I want to re-affirm with great emphasis my unqualified devotion to the cause of public education.

There are two aspects of this very important problem to which I would call attention at this moment: First, the need of just as liberal financial support as the resources of this State and a proper regard for other interests of the State will permit. It has been shown beyond doubt that the defects in the Virginia school system are not attributable to any lack of patriotism on the part of teachers, nor to the absence of conscientious and devoted service on the part of school officials. The defects are essentially financial. For the money invested, the people in Virginia seem to be getting an educational return equal to that obtained in any other State. Terms can be lengthened, the general qualifications of teachers can be raised, and the whole system can be made more efficient only by providing a more liberal basis of financial operation. In studying this problem, the general economic condition of a State must be clearly kept in mind. It is not a safe thing, however, to undertake to develop any public institution beyond the limits of a safe and sane economic basis. Otherwise a temporary and premature development may be followed by a long period of reaction. Therefore, I re-assert that, with due regard to the resources of this State, I favor as liberal appropriations to the public school system as can with reason be provided, especially for meeting the urgent needs of our elementary schools.

The other consideration refers to the plan of local school administration. I have high respect for the hundreds of trustees who have in the past given their time and service to the public school system, and who have oftentimes led in movements for local school improvement. To my mind it appears to be a matter of primary importance to adopt in the administration of public concerns that plan of operation which appears to be the simplest, most efficient, and most directly responsive to the demands of the people.

The demand for increased funds for operation goes hand in hand, I think, with a need of that reform of local school administration which would give the best guarantee of highest returns on the investment. I, therefore, favor the county as the unit of operation rather than the district, and a county school board to act for the entire county as a whole rather than a series of more or less independent district boards. Towns with a certain minimum population should have the right of maintaining their own school boards, and should thus be constituted as related units of school operations.

The Constitutional Convention of 1901, by changing the composition of the State Board of Education and by assigning to that board large constitutional functions, sought to centralize the work of the educational system. In the circumstances which then existed, this action was doubtless wise and proper.

Within the twenty years which have elapsed, great changes have taken place with reference to the public attitude toward education. In my opinion the time has now come when serious consideration should be given to the question of local initiative's being permitted to participate more largely in the general scheme of central control. The county school board should have legislative and judicial functions, but there should be reserved to the superintendent and teachers certain particular professional functions.

I would propose that the county superintendent be recommended to the State Board of Education from a list of eligibles presented to the county school board by the State Board of Education. When once appointed, the county superintendent should become the real administrative head of the local school system. It should be his duty to carry out the plans and policies of the local school board, and to stand as the responsible agent and representative of that board.

While the people of Virginia are looking to the strengthening of the public schools and institutions of higher education, they should, by all means, however, pay a greater amount of attention than they have ever heretofore done to the establishment and maintenance of adequate free public libraries as parts of the broad educational system of the State.

I feel that, as Chief Executive of the Commonwealth, I should be very derelict were I not to call attention to the loyal serving spirit of the Alumni of our State institutions in raising subscriptions to those institutions. Especial praise is due one of them in securing in a recent drive approximately one-half million dollars. May this spirit of Alumni pride and generosity be fostered and nourished in all of our institutions of learning. In this way such institutions may be able more quickly to meet their real needs.

Workmen's Compensation Act of Virginia

The Workmen's Compensation Act became effective on March 31, 1918. Its provisions went fully into effect on January 1, 1919.

It has, therefore, been in operation for a period of three years. The results achieved have fully met the expectations of its supporters, and it has been alike satisfactory to employers and employees in establishing better relations between employing and employed classes and in giving prompt, though moderate, compensation to the injured and to the dependents of those killed in line of duty. It has also benefited the community at large by relieving the courts of a vast number of personal injury cases which had theretofore encumbered their dockets.

Compensation laws now exist in every State of the Union with the exception of five of our Southern States where industrial activities are small. The last State to adopt a compensation statute was Georgia, which practically re-enacted the Virginia statute.

At the 1920 session of the General Assembly this act was amended and compensation provided in the original act was increased from twenty to twenty-five per cent.

There are some changes which I feel constrained to suggest:

(1) The Supreme Court in the case of Mann v. The City of Lynchburg, has held that a policeman is not an employee within the intendment of the act. I would recommend that the act be amended so as to include within the benefits of the act this class of public servants, and firemen, as well as employees of the counties, cities and State in the generally accepted meaning of these terms.

(2) The Supreme Court, in the case of Smith v. The State Highway Commission, has held that the State Highway Commission is not a "political subdivision" within the meaning of the statute, that persons employed by the State Highway Commission are employees of the State, and that compensation provided by the act is payable by the State.

The court says: "While it is true that the compensation act contemplates employees of the State and expressly provides that they shall have the benefits of same, no provision has been made for the payment of claims against the State, and section 2582 of the Code provides that no judgment or decree, unless otherwise provided, shall be paid without a special appropriation by law. Neither the court nor the Industrial Commission can require the legislature to make an appropriation for cases of this character, but it is not to be doubted for a moment that such appropriation will be made in each case in which an order against it is made by the Commission.

"The State will not provide that its employees shall have the right to collect compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act and decline to give them any means whereby they may collect the compensation allowed them thereunder."

I heartily endorse this statement of the Supreme Court; and to provide prompt relief to the injured employees of the State, I recommend that an adequate appropriation be made to cover the total amount of awards made by the Commission against the State in such cases; and that, if feasible, some definite provisions be made to meet this just charge against the State in the future effectively.

Agriculture

This has been a very disastrous year on the farmer all over this country. Prices have taken decline after decline until they have gone, in many instances, below pre-war levels and below the cost of production. From the first of July to the first of November, 1920, according to government estimated yields, there was a decline in the market value of farm products of more than $7,000,000,000 in the United States.

This ruinous condition cannot be legitimately blamed upon large crops or over production. The government's reports show that farm crops and live stock were no greater last year than in 1915. But the world's demand for food products is greater today than ever before. The wheat crop for 1920 was 190,000,000 bushels less than in 1919, and the 1921 crop is short of the 1920 crop by about 27,000,000 bushels; yet the decline in farm prices continues with little benefit to the ultimate consumer.

These conditions cannot be expected to continue. Already the rural population of our country is about two million less than the urban. The new census shows that in some of the counties in the richest agricultural States the number of farm owners has decreased fourteen per cent; and the number of farm tenants increased twenty-seven per cent.

The most potent cause of our present social unrest and commercial stagnation today lies in the fact that there is no profitable market for agricultural products. This means the farmer's purchasing power is gone.

A prosperous agriculture will start again the hum of mills and the songs of workmen throughout the land. It has been so in all nations and ages. The burning question, however, relative to the farmer of today, as well as the thing he is demanding, is ECONOMIC JUSTICE!

Upon agriculture rests the primal duty of producing sufficient food; and farmers, discharging this duty to society, have a right to demand such returns as will fairly compensate them for technical skill, managerial ability, capital invested, and social, educational, and political opportunities of those in other industries.

The farmer's products, raised after a twelve months' gamble, in which he stakes seed, fertilizer, equipment, land, and the labor of himself and all his family against the weather, climate, plant and animal pests, and diseases, are sold in market in competition with the products of six million other similar producers.

These things lead to farm depopulation and decline in national virility, instead of the "top of the hill" in agriculture, the goal of necessity today. At this time only fifty per cent of the United States is under cultivation, and only twelve per cent is under a high state of cultivation.

The world needs just as many farmers as can produce what the world will take at a profitable price, a price that will make agriculture self-sustaining; turn a fair interest on the investment; pay a fair wage for the mental and physical energy expended; and take care of the risks peculiar to farming.

To make the oft-repeated slogan "Back to the Land" effective, the farmer's best efforts must insure him a better home, more conveniences for the housewife, better roads, and modern means of transportation. He must have community centers, and get away from the grip of isolation. These well-merited improvements will all follow profitable prices, and will insure increased production and a virile, contented population on the acres of idle land.

To make our remedial enactments effective in the production and distribution of farm products, and to sustain the agricultural life in the face of decreasing rural population, we must have in our political and social conferences ample, competent and sympathetic representatives of the agricultural elements, with whom other elements must actively and heartily co-operate. The man to represent the farmer in the legislative halls is one familiar with agriculture at its source.

To stem the tide of a never slackening movement toward the cities and the consequential decrease in farm tenantry, we must make the lure of the healthful and delightful country brighter to sound and wholesome people than the conveniences and amusements of the city, which continues to drain our rural population.

The farmer asks no generosity at your hands, gentlemen; justice will meet his wants.

The earth feeds and clothes us all, but she feeds and clothes us by the farmer's hand. He is her agent, through whom she confers her most essential benefits. The farmer's occupation, being in closest touch with the fertile earth, is the fundamental occupation upon which all others rest.

Fundamental things are easily overlooked, and so it has been with the farmer. His contribution to the public welfare has been taken for granted; like summer and winter, night and day. No other equal proportion of our people has had so small a part in the government, or so small a share in the benefits of progress.

How can the life of the farm family be made fuller of opportunity, freer from drudgery, more comfortable, happy and attractive? How can life on the farm be kept at the highest level, be so improved, dignified and brightened as to keep alive the pride and loyalty of the farmer and his family? How can a compelling desire to live on the farm be aroused in the children that are born there? These are questions of vital importance.

There is too much belief among our people that the prizes of life lie away from the farm. I am, therefore, anxious to bring before the people of Virginia the question of securing a more profitable agriculture and a better living on the farm, by co-operation between the farmers for buying, selling and borrowing, and by promoting greater advantages and opportunities in the country.

My desire is to impress all with the concrete thought that the agricultural interest is most deserving of serious consideration and support. I have not attempted to suggest specific remedies, but am informed that the representatives of the agricultural interests have presented, or will present, for legislative attention certain suggested laws. May I not hope that your due and sympathetic thought will be given to them.

Re-Appportionment

It seems unnecessary to remind the General Assembly that for some years it has been lax in carrying into effect the solemn provision of our Constitution demanding a re-apportionment of our legislative and judicial districts.

At the last session of the General Assembly a committee was appointed to study this question. They have made a report, and may I not insist that it is the duty of this session of our law making body to see that this report has full and fair consideration to insure us that we shall no longer find ourselves living in violation of this constitutional mandate.

I desire also to call attention to the fact that our congressional districts vary greatly in their population, some considerably under the legal requirements, others considerably in excess of them; and this condition is also most worthy of your attention.

Taxation

There is probably no subject of deeper money concern to the people of the Commonwealth than taxation.

I wish to re-affirm my many previous statements that I am unalterably opposed to any increase in property taxation at this time.

After an exhaustive search for some grounds on which to base a tax decrease, and thus relieve, to a small degree at least, the burdens of the people in this respect; after many conferences with patriotic Virginians, whom I regard as qualified to advise; and after a close and serious study of the proposition, I am, with some temerity, however, led to the belief that I can recommend a reduction in the taxable rates on bonds and notes from $1.10 to 50 cents on the hundred dollars. My reasons for suggesting that the reduction be made on this class of property are as follows:

First.—(a) It is a prime necessity that some measure be adopted to provide ready money, at a reasonable rate of interest, for the indispensable needs of all classes of people.

(b) To provide funds for the urgent demands of the agricultural class, so that they may better finance their crops, and conveniently carry until a better pay day the mortgages now upon their farms.

(c) To provide sufficient funds with which to carry on in the cities and country a more active building campaign, for relieving over-crowded housing conditions, and at the same time for furnishing work for manufacturing interests, other business plants, and the unemployed, and to promote generally the industrial activities of the State.

Second.—Investigation shows that millions of dollars of Virginia money are now being lent in other States of the Union, because a greater return is yielded to the investor than is yielded by loans to the people of Virginia, at the present interest rate, after the deduction of tax required at present under our law, and generally regarded as high.

Our citizens, in need of necessary funds, are in addition to the tax and interest, being subjected to enormous brokerage fees, far greater than legitimate investments will allow to be rightfully paid.

It is earnestly contended that in order to meet the situation, either the present interest rate of six per cent must be increased, or else the State must meet the situation by devising plans to bear this burden, instead of placing it upon the people themselves. The latter method, in my judgment, is far preferable.

Third.—Whilst, of course, it must necessarily be speculative as to the increase in amount of notes and bonds that will be reported for taxation under the decreased rate, investigation seems to indicate that as a result of this reduction, provided our public officials honestly and courageously discharge their duty, an increase in tax yield would soon result.

Fourth.—It seems reasonable to expect that the owners of this class of property in Virginia, who are now failing to list it for taxation, with the idea these securities are unjustly and inequitably taxed in comparison with other property, may as a matter of common honesty, if the proposed rate of fifty cents be adopted, give in, to a very large degree, their real holdings of bonds and notes.

If this should be the result, then the income from this source would be greatly increased, instead of diminished, and at the same time the burden would be placed more equitably upon all of the holders of this class of property, rather than, as now, upon the honest tax-giver. It would tend to eliminate fraud and deception, and to enlist the support of the people generally in seeing that the tax payer gives in honestly his assessments of the character and kind here referred to.

Let the State demonstrate its desire to be fair in its taxable rate; then, if the taxpayer does not show his appreciation by the honest listing of his notes and bonds, the General Assembly, at its next session, can meet the situation sternly.

I may say that the period now upon us is not propitious for many experimental changes in our present taxation system, and, therefore, I advise that extreme caution, save in the respect just mentioned, be exercised in any dealing with suggested plans of taxation, either State, county or city.

Inquiry further shows that the Budget Bill now before the General Assembly appropriates all of the available funds for State purposes during the next biennium, save about $120,000. I need hardly state that this does not cover the many worthy causes that will be knocking at the door of the treasury for special appropriations; therefore, may I not urge with great earnestness, that the General Assembly use exceeding care in its appropriations.

We must keep within our limitations and it is my sincere desire to be relieved from the necessity of using my prerogative of veto consequent to appropriations in excess of the State's estimated revenue, which must necessarily be used, however, if this precaution is disregarded.

I feel that I should call attention to the fact that the people of the State are not suffering so much from the burden of State taxation as from the burden of county taxation. The taxes collected by the localities amount to approximately three times the taxes collected by the State, and it is a significant fact that the State is returning to 83 of the 100 counties more than the counties pay into the State treasury. This condition leads to the belief that it is wise for the local tax authorities to give sincere thought and heed to their local conditions, to a greater degree than they have apparently been doing in the past.

Under our present system of taxation in the counties, our taxes are levied and expended by the boards of supervisors, who are giving but a very small portion of their time and talent to these particular duties. Modern experience is strenuously teaching that business management should be concentrated, rather than distributed, and I believe that the General Assembly can well afford to direct their attention at this session towards the study of a county management plan under the care of a county manager, with the assistance and advice of the board of supervisors, or else authorize the Governor to appoint a commission of five thoroughly trained business men to make a study of this suggestion and report to the next General Assembly. The commission should serve without salary, and be allowed compensation for their actual expenses only in attending to the duties of the commission only; and there should be appropriated a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars for this purpose.

Every official of Virginia should, not only voluntarily, but by legal requirement, conduct the handling and accounting for of the finances in his office in a business-like way. It is the plain duty of the State, for the protection of the State and the localities, to provide that this shall be done, and that all funds shall be properly accounted for.

Inquiry informs me again that a closer supervision on the part of the State is absolutely essential and necessary, and that if this is done, the result will far more than justify the expense. I, therefore, urge that a sufficient rotary fund be provided to allow the State Accountant to have audited, not less than once every two years, at the equal and joint expense of the State and localities all county and city offices through which funds of the State, county or city pass.

In addition to this, there should be installed by the State Accountant a proper and intelligible system of bookkeeping.

Upon mature reflection, I must say to the General Assembly that I believe it is very unwise to pass laws which levy a tax for a specific purpose. All taxes should go into the general State fund, and be appropriated out by the General Assembly. So soon as it can consistently be done, I advise that this course be adopted relative to the special taxes that are now levied. No fund should be turned over to any agency of the State without some supervision on the part of the General Assembly, the direct representatives of the people.

Highway Department

Next to schools and health, unquestionably the thing now uppermost in the minds of the people of the State is the development of our State and county highway systems.

Certainly nothing could give me greater pride during the four years of my administration than to feel that I had been able to play an humble part in the advancement of a ready and convenient means of transportation for our people in order that they may better enjoy a closer acquaintanceship and have an economical way of conveying their products to the market.

The times in which we now live demand that Virginia have a modern highway system, and we must fully recognize that the day of impassable and badly-constructed roads should no longer be tolerated. The quickness of our State growth along all lines is to be greatly measured by the speed which we develop in our highway construction work. Therefore, we are led to the conclusion that our road program must be one that calls for as rapid construction as may be consistent with economical and business-like administration.

During the last twelve months, it has been my privilege to visit some ninety of the one hundred counties in Virginia, as well as the twenty-two cities. I have spoken before thousands of Virginia people and have consulted with hundreds of them respecting our road development. I do feel that I certainly have a reasonable knowledge of what the people demand.

It is my duty, as your Governor, to place before you the conclusions that have been reached concerning the needs and wishes of our people, so as to secure their active support of a really constructive road program.

In my anxiety to test out the suggestions that I am going to make relative to the new law that should be written for the formation of the Highway Department, I have consulted with expert road-builders from other States, and with a great many of our leading and, in my judgment, wise-thinking patriotic Virginia citizens, all free of any known political ambitions. That the people may know my endeavor to seek competent advice and help in accordance with my pre-election promise has been an honest one, I may say that, in addition to many other conferences, on Tuesday, January 17th, I conferred with thirty-two prominent business men from all walks of life and from all sections of Virginia who were selected with no other thought than their outstanding reputation as cautious and clear-thinking men.

After a full and thorough discussion, the recommendations as to re-organization of the department which I now make were unanimously endorsed by this body of representative citizens.

I trust that I may be pardoned for stating that, as the Chief Executive of the State, I realize that the people look to me for results; and this means that I am intensely interested in the formation of this department. I further realize that it becomes my duty to meet this situation with no thought other than what I conceive to be to the best interest of the State, and not to take counsel of any fear I may have that my recommendations may displease any individual or individuals who may be in some degree personally affected.

In other words the question of a properly organized Highway Department is one of far greater importance than the effect of a re-organization upon any person or persons.

The plan which I shall outline in no way prevents the State from retaining in its service any or all of the skill and information that the present Highway Department has, if this skill and information is such that it is deemed wise for all, or any part of it, to be retained by re-appointment.

My recommendations are as follows:

1. Being led to the firm conclusion that the people of Virginia demand a complete re-organization of our present Highway Department, I therefore suggest that this department, as at present organized, cease to function as of July 1st next.

2. Whether justifiable or not, the fact remains that the people are not satisfied with the present plan of handling our road development, and the confidence in this department must be re-established before the people will willingly support an active, progressive program which will demand the early expenditure of many millions of dollars. I firmly believe that if such re-organization is accomplished as will lead the people to the belief that our laws are so perfected and guarded as to reasonably guarantee to them an economical and cautious expenditure of whatever funds they may provide, that then there will be no hesitancy on their part to furnish all funds necessary to complete quickly a modern highway system throughout the Commonwealth. Until this is done, I am fearful that it means a development of slow order with unsatisfactory results.

3. I need hardly state that road building has two chief elements—one, the business side; and the other, the technical or engineering side, and that both of these elements, requiring such different types of mentality, can rarely be found in one man, even were the combined duties not so generous as to be beyond the point of physical endurance.

I, therefore, suggest that the Governor should appoint the State Highway Commissioner, who should be the executive head of the department, a man of proven business qualifications, and be paid a full-time salary commensurate with the result he is expected to produce. Then, the Governor, to whom the people of the State are looking primarily for results, will be able to look to the Commissioner and demand them of him, thus insuring individual responsibility—so essential to execution and the sine qua non of satisfactory achievements.

The Governor should also be allowed to appoint four other members who, along with the Commissioner, as chairman, shall constitute what is to be known as the "State Highway Commission of Virginia." These men, removable at the pleasure of the Governor, should be selected from the five grand geographical divisions of the State, this giving to all sections a reasonable representation.

The four members of the State Highway Commission, other than the chairman, should be allowed as pay for their services a reasonable per diem and expenses for such time as they may actually serve.

This Commission should be allowed to locate routes between designated points in the highway system, routes already located in pursuance of law to be changed only by act of the General Assembly; to allocate funds to different road projects; to fix salaries subject to executive approval, of the State Highway Engineer and other employees of the department; to approve contracts; and to make traffic rules and regulations.

4. The State Highway Commissioner should be allowed to appoint the highway engineer, removable at his pleasure; thus giving him a person on whom there will rest individual responsibility for engineering and constructive results.

The engineer, with the same power of employment and removal, should be allowed to name those who are to work under him. This will create, from the Governor down, a complete chain of individual responsibility; which is absolutely essential and necessary in work of the character and nature to be done by the Highway Department.

Unless the Highway Commissioner were permitted to select his chief engineer, the scheme of accountability would be broken; and it would be difficult to find one who would assume the responsibility of results in the capacity of State Highway Commissioner if he were denied this privilege. In other words, the well established law of responsibility of the subordinate to his immediate superior must prevail from the highest to the lowest official or employee of this department.

5. Under the preceding recommendation, each superior official or employee having the power to remove his immediate subordinate, the State is insured that it shall not suffer in the event an error is made in the selection of any employee; otherwise a mistake in judgment of selection would continue its evil effect until the expiration of a definite term of employment. No capable man would desire to continue in office if his services were not satisfactory and producing fruitful results.

I shall not undertake to go into further details than I have set forth above, intended as a mere skeleton of the new formation of the department, except to ask the General Assembly to study well the bills now before them on the re-organization of the Highway Department and to adopt that bill which in their wisdom will lead us to expect results to be achieved, the people to be satisfied and, if not now, very shortly to exhibit a spirit of willingness to provide the necessary funds.

May it not be said, gentlemen of the Assembly, that I have given to you my very best thought on this subject, with no other desire than to serve; but if, in your wisdom, these suggestions are not regarded as safe and sound, then, bear in mind that whatever law you may enact shall have my most earnest and undivided support, and that nothing will be left undone on my part to accomplish the result we so sincerely desire.

plete unfinished contracts in progress on December 1, 1921....	$10,292,982 78

NOTE.—Estimates given above, with reference to unfinished contracts, are not accurate but are as nearly so as determinable. No estimate of unfinished work being done by "Force Account" on "State Projects" is given.

Certain projects have been let since December 1st, last, which are to be paid out of the fund hereinbefore mentioned, but which are to be constructed in 1922; and that there should also be deducted a yearly maintenance fund of not less than $1,700,000, plus the appropriation of $700,000 to State Aid Roads (which sum should only be available in the event proper maintenance laws are made). It must be remembered that in this fund, shown available for the year 1922, there is included approximately $1,720,000 already paid and yet to be paid into the State Highway Fund as advancements from counties and cities under what is known as the "Robertson Act," and which sum will have to be paid back in a reasonable length of time, either in bulk or in annual installments.

I am hoping, however, that the present United States Congress may make available under the Federal act of July 1, 1922, an additional sum of approximately $1,400,000. If the gasoline tax hereinafter referred to is approved by the General Assembly, and the suggestions therein made by me adopted, it should provide, also, an additional amount of $500,000 to $700,000 for expenditures on the State highway system in 1922.

INCOME YEAR OF 1923.

Auto tax (estimated) .....	$2,100,000 00
Appropriation budget (estimated) .....	1,652,950 00
10-cent tax collected in fall of 1923 (estimated).....	1,700,000 00
Federal aid .....	1,500,000 00
Total .....	$6,952,950 00

It must be remembered that from the amount last named of estimated road income for the year 1923, there must be an allowance made for maintenance amounting to approximately $1,700,000.00, and also the sum of $700,000.00 appropriated for county aid roads.

If the gasoline tax is imposed, then there should be added to the above income approximately $750,000.00.

Gasoline Tax

As previously stated, I am opposed to any increased property tax under present conditions; but on account of our urgent need for road construction purposes, I feel that I may suggest that the people will be willing to pay a gasoline tax of one cent on the gallon, effective as of this year, due to the fact that it is relatively small, is paid only by those who use the thoroughfares, and in such manner that it ought not to cause complaint. This tax has been found to be a satisfactory one in the States wherein it has been enforced.

This tax should yield (of course, the figures being speculative) from $700,000 to $1,000,000 annually, and at least $300,-

000 of this amount should be appropriated to county aid construction or maintenance, as the General Assembly may deem wise and best, and the residue should find its way to the general road fund, to be appropriated in accordance with your wishes.

If in the wisdom of the General Assembly, in order to carry out a more speedy construction of our highways, it is deemed proper to float a bond issue, then, this gasoline tax might be used for paying interest and taking care of the sinking fund in connection with such bond issue.

I believe that it is my duty to call attention to the fact that the money market is now such that Virginia bonds could be sold, if your body so desires, on a basis of five per cent at a premium, or considerably less, at par; and that labor can be readily had at a reasonable cost.

We must recognize this great truth, that it costs money to build roads, and that the speed with which they may be built is entirely dependent upon the amount furnished for this purpose. And you, gentlemen of the General Assembly, have upon you the solemn duty of deciding this question.

Warning

It is regretable that there seems to be a tendency on the part of those holding supervision of our educational and other State institutions to expend sums in excess of the amount appropriated by the General Assembly to these respective institutions.

With emphasis, may I not say that this tendency is wrong in principle, unjust in effect, and destructive of confidence. It is, therefore, my duty to express the hope that I shall not experience such action on the part of any institution when the hour arrives to make up the next Budget, for if such should be the case, it might lead to grave embarrassment.

The State must not be forced, through unauthorized action on the part of the board of visitors or trustees of any institution, to make an allowance to that institution out of proportion to allowances made to other institutions which keep within the limit of their authority.

Law Enforcement

Our Constitution probably places no greater responsibility upon the Governor of the Commonwealth than that "he shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed."

I have resolved that insofar as the power within me lies this shall be done. I firmly believe that the law-abiding people of this State should not be forced to cringe and bend their knees to the lawless element. We have been and are now passing through a period of law violation. We are just beginning to realize the consequences of such a condition and to appreciate the sacredness of the need of real law enforcement.

If I can read the signs of the times, the spirit of our people now finds itself sincerely willing to assist our public officials in leading men to know that obedience to constituted authority and statute law is absolutely essential to a happy, prosperous and peaceful citizenship.

Experience has shown us that the habit of drink and the handling of intoxicating liquors are the forerunners of law violation, and that, therefore, the enforcement of our prohibition laws seems at this time to be urgently in need of strict and effective administration.

I have always felt that all criminal law should be enforced through the regularly and duly constituted law enforcement authorities, and, therefore, I suggest and urge that the office of the Attorney-General be placed specifically in charge of the enforcement, not only of our prohibition, but of all our criminal statutes, and urge and recommend that a sufficient sum be set aside and appropriated for the use of his office in carrying into effect these laws.

I feel that by this method we will be able to secure the active help of the many peace officers of this State, along with the hearty co-operation of the general public.

May I not, with all of the earnestness of my soul, appeal to the citizens of this Commonwealth, both men and women; to her officials, and to her newspapers for hearty co-operation in my sincere and honest endeavor to protect the lives, the liberty, and the property of the people, and to enforce all laws judiciously.

Assurance is here made on my part that the Chief Executive of this Commonwealth will, at all times, and in all circumstances, stand ready to support and uphold those upon whom the burdens of law enforcement have been placed.

After mature and deliberate consideration, feeling that the violation of our prohibition laws is the chief and prime cause of our criminal activity, I here and now announce that in all cases (save where the question of actual guilt is involved) those who are convicted of dealing in and handling intoxicating beverages for monetary gain, or hope of such gain, will, so far as I am concerned, be expected to serve out such sentences as the courts may impose, and the exercise of executive clemency need not be sought.

I am done. Already I have trespassed too long upon your patience. Permit me once again to express my appreciation to the people of the State for their goodness in electing me the Chief Executive of this ancient Commonwealth. May I serve well, and may each of us always remember that human agency to achieve must be directed by Divine Guidance, and that it is well to ever march within sight of the "sign of the Cross."

Report of the Chairman of the Governor's Advisory Board on Criminal Mental Hygiene

GOVERNOR WESTMORELAND DAVIS,
Governor of Virginia,

DEAR SIR:

I am inclosing you herewith report to date of the Governor's Advisory Board of Criminal Mental Hygiene, consisting of:

1. This report as chairman.
2. Tentative report of the committee on mental tests and educational status.
3. Tentative report of the neuro-psychiatric committee.
4. Recommendations of the board.
5. Statement from Mr. Bragg.
6. Members of the board.

I wish to say that the board feels that it has engaged in a most useful, humane and constructive work, and that it wishes to extend to you its thanks for the opportunity of rendering this service to the State and also to express its belief that you have inaugurated a departure in criminal investigation which will have an immediate bearing on criminal questions in the State today and be of ultimate value to future generations.

The board entered into its work with enthusiasm and vision, and although the work was in a sense new to all of its members, they succeeded in laying out a comprehensive plan by which sub-committees communicated with the board as a whole and the work went through with smooth progression.

The board wishes to extend its thanks and appreciation for the co-operation and help given by the board of the Penitentiary, especially its president, Colonel Hodges, Major J. B. Wood and the other officers of the Penitentiary and the Penitentiary physician, Dr. Herbert Mann.

The board feels that if the legislature will carry out its recommendations that the State prisoners will be better off physically, mentally and morally; that they can be made of more economic service to the State; that the Penitentiary admissions will be lessened by reorganization and extension of the work of the reformatories and other institutions and that preventative work can be made more effective in the Juvenile and other courts.

In regard to report Number 2—Tentative report of the committee on mental tests and educational status—allow me to say that with the appropriations suggested in the recommendations we believe that all State prisoners can be examined and classified, that while this report is tentative it is extremely suggestive and important, and that this classification would lead to taking certain individuals of the Penitentiary population away from the Penitentiary and placing them in other State institutions where they more properly belong. Since we have started this investigation we have seen the remarkable transformation that the Penitentiary board has performed and we feel sure that the prisoners are better taken care of physically, that they have a chance for education and the learning of useful trades, and that the whole condition of the Penitentiary has vastly improved. In this connection we wish to commend the work of Mr. Lancaster and Mr. Bragg.

In regard to report Number 3—Tentative report of the neuro-psychiatric committee—we feel that, whereas this report is also tentative in nature, many important facts have been brought out and it shows the necessity not only of classification of prisoners, but of the removal of certain of those who are low grade mentally and of those who are insane from the Penitentiary population to other institutions.

In regard to report Number 4—Recommendations of the board—will say that the conditions in the State which brought about recommendation Number 1, State psychopathic hospital, are that under the present system many commissions of lunacy are passed upon by inexperienced examiners and most of them after no period of observation; that after the commission has been held there is a necessary delay in transporting the patient to the State hospitals and that during this delay the patient is either in the same environment in which he was discovered, under bond or kept in jail or in jail hospitals; that with a psychopathic hospital patients with brief psychoses would recover and would not have to be sent to State hospitals; that a period of observation in a psychopathic hospital is desirable and necessary before an adequate opinion can be given on a lunacy commission; that violent and criminal tendencies could be discovered; and that immediate treatment could be instituted which in many cases would prevent or lessen an attack of insanity.

Recommendation Number 2—Care of the feeble-minded—if adopted would enable prisons, industrial schools and courts to send feeble-minded cases to an institution regulated for their care and would prevent, as far as juvenile cases are concerned, the criminal defective and the potential criminal from being at large in society.

Recommendation Number 3—Intermediate sentence—will enable men under sentence to work their way out of prison and give them an incentive towards regaining their position in society.

Recommendation Number 4—State psychologist—is essential. We heartily commend the work of Mr. H. D. Coghill, who has proved himself a competent and efficient psychologist and who has worked under adverse circumstances with very little help or remuneration. We think he should be made either a whole or a part time State psychologist with a commensurate salary and, that if his work is to be really effective, he should have at least two field workers who can go to the homes of the prisoners, trace up their hereditary and environmental tendencies and keep in touch with the prisoners after they are discharged and make reports and recommendations as to their welfare.

Recommendation Number 5—Appropriation for work of the board—is important. It is necessary for the board to meet a good many times during the year. They have thus far paid their own traveling expenses and board, or if State employees, charged them to other institutions. The employment of a stenographer at times is imperative, certain office equipment and instruments for examination, etc., are essential, and it is also advisable at times for delegates or committees to be sent to other institutions or localities, which expenses should be paid by the State.

Recommendation Number 6—Examination of persons charged with crime—We believe that if the courts appoint expert witnesses that fairer estimation of a prisoner's mental status will be obtained than by allowing either the prosecution or the defense, or both, to introduce expert witnesses.

Recommendation Number 7—Industrial department at the Penitentiary—We believe that both from the economic standpoint to the State, from the standpoint of betterment of the prisoners and the possibility of returning the larger proportion of them as useful citizens trained in some vocation, that this should be properly financed, continued and expanded. A statement from Mr. Bragg is appended.

In conclusion let me say that this board expects to continue its work and to be able to hand you from time to time their findings and recommendations with the belief that it will be of value to the business of the State, to the prisoners under the care of the State and for the protection and welfare of the citizens and taxpayers of the State.

Respectfully submitted,

BEVERLEY R. TUCKER,

Tentative Report of the Committee on Mental Tests and Educational Status

Our committee does not feel that it can do more than submit a tentative report at this time, nor does it believe it yet possesses data of sufficient value to draw scientific conclusions. The reasons for this feeling and this belief will be apparent presently.

The prison population of Virginie with which we have to deal is distributed as follows: Penitentiary, twenty-seven per cent; State Farm, twenty per cent; road camps, fifty-three per cent. There is a constant ebb and flow between these three institutions. All new admissions are received at the Penitentiary, and must run the gauntlet of the identification bureau, medical examiner, educational director, and psychologist. A prisoner may be held at the penitentiary for any of the following reasons: (1) long term, (2) physical defect or disease, (3) mental disease or defect, (4) exceptional intelligence and attainments. The stable population, therefore, consists of the following: long-term men, physically or mentally disabled, and men of exceptional intelligence and attainments.

on September 8, 1920, it was decided that an educational and psychological survey should be made, and that it would be advisable to begin with the oldest admissions and bring the survey down to date. The survey was begun by the educational director, Dr. Lancaster, and your secretary, under the direction of Dr. Tucker and Dr. Hoke, with the promise of help from volunteer workers. The volunteer workers failed to materialize, so the burden of the survey has fallen upon the educational director and your secretary.

In the meantime, the Penitentiary Board issued an order requiring all new admissions to be examined physically, mentally, and educationally within ten days after date of admission, and also requested that the educational director and psychologist catch up on old admissions. Your secretary was given an office and equipment and designated psychologist, and immediately assumed the double duty of examining all current admissions and catching up on old admissions. This work is now up to date in quantity, but its quality is not guaranteed. The tests used are the Stanford Revision of the Binet Tests, Tucker Intelligence Tests, Knox Cube Tests, and Kent-Rosanoff Association Tests. In the majority of cases, however, only the Binet Tests were used, because of lack of time, and other tests being used principally as supplementary evidence in doubtful cases.

The educational director in his examinations has not yet begun to use tests as to educational status, but has been compelled through pressure of other duties, to accept the inmate's statement of his educational history and the grade attained. This information needs to be checked up for the reason that we have found from experience with these men in the school that 4th grade education per history frequently tests out total illiteracy.

Now the question may arise: What is the practical value of taking histories and making psychological tests after the manner of this survey? The answer may be found in the report of the industrial director (when he makes one), because every man selected for industry has been selected on a basis of psychological tests and history, and in the report of the school, in the report of the committee on neuro-psychiatric classification, and in the fact that the president of the Penitentiary Board is convinced by observation that this work is necessary, and he is lending his influence to that improvement and perpetuation.

To date histories have been taken and psychological tests made of 500 men, white and negro, and 48 negro women. The range in education, per history, is as follows (100 white men, 200 negro men):

White men, from no schooling to 4 years at college. Medium education, 4th grade.

Negro men, from no schooling to 4 years at high school. Medium education, less than 2nd grade.

White men 7.6 to 19.6. Median mental age 12.1.

Negro men, 6.6 to 14.6. Median mental age 9.8.

The school is conducted under the supervision of Dr. Lancaster with Dr. Hoke as educational advisor. At present thirty-six men are enrolled in the school and thirty-five in the shops.

In the school 16 white men are divided into two classes, one a class in elementary arithmetic, reading and writing, the other English grammar and arithmetic, just completing fractions. In the first class the median chronological age is 25, the median mental age 10.6. In the second class, chronological 25, mental age 12.6. The teacher is an inmate with 4 years high school, was formerly an accountant; is 26 years old and has a mental age of 19.6.

The negro classes have an enrollment of 20 men; in the first class they are taught reading and writing and addition; in the second class elementary grammar, simple arithmetic, multiplication and division. The first class has a median chronological age of 30, a median age of 9; second class, chronological age 25, mental age 9.6.

We are using the school and the shop as psychological laboratories for the study of individuals. In about a year from the time of the beginning of our study, that is by next November, we expect to make a report with recommendations of more or less scientific value. But not until then. In the meantime, members of our committee are constantly being called into conference by Colonel Hodges and the president of the Penitentiary Board, and numerous suggestions have been made for the betterment of the prisoners, both mentally and physically, many of which have been adopted, and others are now under consideration.

There are two ways in which an anti-social or mal-adjusted individual may be helped, (1) to change the individual, (2) to change his environment. So far as may be possible, we are trying to do both, fitting the method of treatment to the case in question.

Tentative Report of Neuro-Psychiatric Committee

Our committee has had about twenty clinics and examined thirty-odd men, some suspected of mental disease and others classified by the psychologist as border-line cases, suspected of mental defect. Certain cases have been examined as many as a dozen times before a final diagnosis was made. In addition to the cases seen, the committee has reviewed the data concerning the other cases not seen by the committee as a whole, and has approved the findings of the psychologist.

However, we do not feel that it would be fair for the board as a whole to be asked to approve our work at its present stage, with the idea that we are presenting it as completed. We feel that we have just begun. We have sampled the population and find a certain percentage of mental disease and mental defect. Whether these percentages are representative, we do not know. We think it would hardly be advisable to publish these figures at present because of their tentative nature. We will continue the investigation further, and after a year's study, present our data and conclusions for the consideration and approval of the board.

The percentage of mental deficiency among the white prisoners may seem large, indeed it is much greater than the surveys of half a dozen other prisons in the North, South and West show, yet it is in line with the statement recently made by Dr. William A. White, based upon years of experience and observation, that "Approximately fifty per cent of all classes of misfits are seriously impaired by obvious or comparatively easily discoverable mental disease, or defect."

As to the negro inmates, this percentage is about the same as that found in the negro reformatories in 1915. When we considered that while the negro constitutes only about thirty per cent of our population, he furnishes seventy per cent of our penitentiary and jail prisoners, and about fifty per cent of our almshouse population, we have in these figures a corroboration in some measure of the results of our survey.

These men are where they are largely because of failure of adaptation, and in this connection, Dr. William A. White says: "We may look upon failures of adaptation as predominantly failures at the psychological level." In other words, if a man tests out deficient by approved tests made by a competent examiner, the chances are ten to one that he is not normal. If in addition to mental feebleness shown by psychological tests his history shows social feebleness, the chances are ten to nothing that he is mentally defective or mentally diseased. "For action is the final expression of the organism," and his responses to psychological tests and his failure of adaptation are both in the final analysis.

Recommendations of the Governor's Advisory Board on Criminal Mental Hygiene

1. *State Psychopathic Hospital.

Whereas, it is the sense of this board that there should be established in this State a psychopathic hospital in connection with the State medical school, the purpose of which shall be the reception and treatment of cases in the incipency of mental disturbances and mild psychoses, and for the purpose of initiating and fostering scientific research into the causes, prevention and cure of various psychoses;

Therefore, be it resolved, That this board hereby recommends to the Governor that he take such steps as he may think proper looking to the establishment, by the next legislature, of such an institution, the capacity of which is not to exceed 100 patients.

2. *Care of Feeble-Minded.

Resolved that this board hereby recommends to the Governor that adequate appropriation be made by the legislature to provide sufficient accommodations at the State Colonies for the Feeble-minded, for the care and training of low-grade mental defectives confined in prisons and industrial schools and for other juvenile defective delinquents who may need custodial care, as a means of prevention of crime.

3. *Indeterminate Sentence.

It is resolved and hereby recommended that steps be taken to secure at the next meeting of the legislature, proper legislation whereby commitment of persons to penal institutions be on the basis of the indeterminate sentence under a parole board.

4. *State Psychologist.

It is further resolved and recommended that the position of State psychologist be established by the next legislature, and that the act establishing such office, with a commensurate salary, shall also provide for two field workers, also with commensurate salary, to work under the direction of the psychologist. That the duties of said psychologist shall be to examine or supervise the examinations of all admissions to the Penitentiary and reformatories.

The board hereby recommends that H. D. Coghill be appointed State psychologist.

5. Appropriation for work of board.

Resolved that the legislature be recommended to appropriate $2,500 a year for two years, or a total of $5,000, to be used for the expenses of the Governor's Advisory Board on Criminal Mental Hygiene, or so much of it as may be necessary.

6. Examination of Persons Charged with Crime.

It is respectfully resolved and recommended that the judges be urged to avail themselves of the present law for the mental examination of persons charged with crime.

7. Industrial Department at Penitentiary.

Resolved and recommended that the work of Mr. Bragg, the industrial director, be financed and continued.

Report of Industrial Director

March 22, 1921.

The Chairman, Advisory Board on Criminal Mental Hygiene, Richmond, Virginia.

DEAR SIR:

At the suggestion of your board, I am submitting herewith a brief outline of the purpose and ambition in the work here for the benefit of the inmates of this institution, together with a brief description of our methods and operation. I also want to bring out the points of benefit and helpfulness due to the work of your board.

PURPOSE

Our purpose is three-fold: (1) To absorb idleness. (2) To give vocational training. (3) To effect an economic saving to the State.

By giving employment to the idle we are destroying the most prolific source of trouble among the men, and at the same time we are making men more contented and giving them a happier outlook in life. In giving the men vocational training we are giving them something personally substantial, something that will enable them to stand up against competition on the outside when they leave here, something that will make them have more confidence in themselves as well as their fellowmen. The economic saving to the State, a by-product of the fundamental purpose of our work, measured by the lowest standard, dollars and cents, is considerable, but when we measure this saving in re-established character and regained citizens, our ordinary units of measurements fail us.

ORGANIZATION

All our work is covered under one head called the industrial department, over which is the industrial director. In the industrial department at present are the following shops: (1) Printing, (2) Wood-working, (3) Clothing, (4) Shoe, (5) Metal, and (6) Wood Finishing. In the printing shop we have an instructor foreman in charge from the outside, but in the other shops we are using a prisoner foreman for each shop and the industrial director gives direct supervision. Each shop is handled as a separate unit in every way, with a separate accounting system. Each shop has its own accountant, and all accounts from all shops come to office for check and audit.

WORKING SYSTEM

All men in the industrial departments work under the honor system. We have no guards, and the men are encouraged in every way to do right because it IS right, and to feel that they are still human beings that can be trusted, and that they ARE trusted.

COMPENSATION

In addition to the ten cents per day allowed by the State for all men detailed on special work, each man receives twenty-five cents per day in the industrial department, this amount being covered into the cost of the output of each shop.

The men in this department are given certain special privileges, such as better food, better sleeping arrangements, better recreation hours, etc., which privileges they lose when any act is committed that necessitates their being dropped from the rolls of the industrial shops.

While in the shops, and during the working day, the men have no guards as such, but they are treated and governed as any set of workmen on the outside. Their work hours are from eight in the morning until five in the afternoon, with half hour for dinner.

Each man in the industrial department is given a vocational course of instruction in the subjects of English, mathematics, and industrial history, the work followed by each man being that pertaining especially to the needs of the particular vocation selected by him. Those who desire extra instruction in the academic subjects, and it is seen that it is desirable that this extra instruction be secured, arrangements are made for such men to attend the academic classes most suitable to their needs.

METHOD OF SELECTING MEN

After a man has been examined by the doctor for physical derangements, by the mental expert for mental and nerve derangements, and by the educational director for data on education and experience, the industrial department has jurisdiction of first selection if the data secured gives indication that he can be used to advantage in one of the shops. Right now, in order to get an experienced operation force, we are aiming to select experienced men, even taking short-term men, but the aim later is to select the longer-term men, even though they possess no vocational experience.

RESULTS

The entire force to a man is standing up like men to the conditions imposed, and they seem to be deeply appreciative of the efforts being made to better their living and working conditions, and they seem to especially appreciate the fact that they are being trusted, and thus far we have not found that this trust is being betrayed.

The men are working with a zeal and energy that is unequaled on the outside, and at no time have I found it necessary to call any one down for loafing, or for infraction, actual or implied, of shop discipline.

We have the utmost confidence of the men, and throughout the prison there is a feeling that whatever is desired to be done with thoroughness and dispatch it is only necessary to turn it over to the industrial department.

URGENT NEEDS

The work has reached a point where it is very desirable and necessary to have a thoroughly competent bookkeeper and accountant to handle this phase of the work, thus relieving the industrial director of a lot of detail and work, and thus giving him more time to look after the actual work in the various shops. This bookkeeper should be employed from the outside, and a competent woman bookkeeper is recommended.

There should be employed a competent school man from the outside to assist the educational director in outlining and handling the work of the various classes, both academic and vocational. This man need not be a trained vocational teacher, as this feature of the work can be handled by the industrial director through suggestion and conference. The special need for this man is that of training a corps of teachers for instruction in the various classes. We have good material here for the making of teachers, but they need to be trained and supervised. This is a very important matter.

The men in the industrial department should be so grouped in the cell block and in the dining room that certain privileges can be granted them outside of working hours that are not granted the other men. That is, there should be some difference shown these men during the entire twenty-four hours, since we are aiming to show that the honor system is a good thing and that men live up to the requirements of the system. Having the honor system in effect for nine hours a day and the old system in effect for the balance of the twenty-four hours is not giving the honor system or the men under it a fair test.

The general scheme should have prominently embodied in it a place for athletics and social amusement. The band and athletics should be under the direction of the industrial director, that is, these should be included in the industrial activities.

An appropriation should be urged from the next legislature to take care of the expense incident to vocational instruction. This item forms no mean part of the expense of the industrial work, and is too large to be absorbed in the general overhead of the shops. It is a very important feature of the work and should be taken care of by a direct appropriation.

An appropriation should be secured to care for the needs of the various shops due to natural expansion, and to equip new shops to take care of industrial needs of the State. The making of automobile tags, brooms, galvanized iron products, the repairing of automobiles, auto trucks, carts, wagons, harness, and such other industries that will effect a saving to the State and at the same time give employment to men who are compelled to be confined within the walls, and for those who can be brought in from the roads and other places and worked here to advantage.

In closing I wish to express my personal appreciation to your board for the big work you are doing, and to state that your efforts have very materially aided us in what little we have been able to accomplish thus far, and has laid the foundations for great advancement in the future. Your work has been especially beneficial in and through the examinations establishing the mental fitness or unfitness of the men which form our source of supply. We are able to assign a man more definitely through the data furnished by the mental tests, and at the same time we are given an insight into the probable abilities of the men that is invaluable in the personal study of the men we select. You also help us very materially by furnishing such information and recommendation that certain men who are unqualified for work in any department, which unfitness may develop after selection has been made, that enables us to shift these men where they can best be cared for. You are also doing a big work in awakening the public to the needs of just work as you are doing, and in creating public opinion for the maintenance and furtherance of this work.

Thanking you for the privilege of getting before your board, and again expressing our appreciation of the help you are giving us through your efforts.

Very respectfully,

Signed: H. P. BRAGG,
Industrial Director.

REPORT
OF
THE INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION
OF VIRGINIA
TO
THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY
OF VIRGINIA

at Its Session of 1922

Pursuant to the Request Contained in the
SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION

Requesting the Industrial Commission of Virginia to Obtain Certain Data Relating to Certain Boilers.

Pursuant to the Senate joint resolution requesting the Industrial Commission of Virginia to obtain certain data relating to certain boilers, passed at the nineteen hundred and twenty session of the General Assembly of Virginia, the Industrial Commission of Virginia respectfully submits the following report:

Report of the Commission

The joint resolution referred to above reads as follows:

Whereas, there have been introduced from time to time in the General Assembly of Virginia bills relating to steam boilers and the inspection of the same; and,

Whereas, the General Assembly has had no data on which to base its judgment as to the necessity or propriety of legislation of the character mentioned; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Delegates concurring), That the Industrial Commission of Virginia be, and it is hereby, requested to ascertain as near as practicable the number of stationary and portable boilers located in this State used for generating steam for power purposes, except portable sawmill boilers, boilers under the jurisdiction of the United States, railroad locomotive boilers and boilers not exceeding five horsepower; also the number of such boilers which are insured; reporting to the General Assembly at its session of nineteen hundred and twenty-two this and such other information as may be deemed by it desirable as data on which to base legislation relating to boilers.

Agreed to by the Senate and House of Delegates.

The report here requested of the Industrial Commission may be divided into two parts:

1. To ascertain as near as practicable the number of stationary and portable boilers located in this State used for generating steam for power purposes, except portable sawmill boilers, boilers under the jurisdiction of the United States, railroad locomotive boilers and boilers not exceeding five horsepower; also the number of such boilers which are insured.

2. Such other information as may be deemed by it (the Commission)

I.—The information requested in (1) above being specific received the first attention of the Commission. Since the resolution appropriated no funds and did not authorize the expenditure by the Commission of any of its maintenance fund, the Commission, by letter dated January 25, 1921, requested the Attorney General for an opinion as to whether, under the authority of the resolution, funds to the account of the Commission could be used for the purpose of employing persons to procure the information desired. His reply, dated February 16, 1921, was in the negative (copy of this correspondence is in the file of exhibits marked "A").

The matter was, therefore, gone into almost entirely by correspondence and information obtained from the following sources:
desirable as data on which to base legislation relating to boilers.

(a) Employers who are within the provisions of the workmen's compensation act.

(b) The files of the workmen's compensation inspection rating bureau of Virginia.

(c) All insurance companies who write boiler insurance in this State.

(a) Employers Who Are Within the Provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act.—A questionnaire (see Exhibit "B") was mailed to all employers under the compensation act whose business would indicate the use of power. From the replies received the data here summarized was obtained:

Insured:

Stationary .....	1,345
Portable .....	135
Plant locomotives .....	38

Not Insured:

Stationary .....	298

Total ..... 1,979

The data obtained from this source cannot in the nature of things represent an accurate census of the boilers in the State because:

1. Questionnaires could be sent only to employers who are under the compensation act and have complied therewith, i. e., employers who employ more than ten persons and who have covered their liability by insuring or self-insuring which gives the Commission a record of them.

2. Under the terms of the resolution there was no way to compel replies. Some employers, especially those who had not insured their boilers, were no doubt reluctant to report. This leads to the conclusion that the percentage of uninsured boilers reported represents a ratio smaller than actual facts would disclose as well as that a good many insured boilers were not reported.

(b) The Files of the Workmen's Compensation Inspection Rating Bureau of Virginia.—This bureau maintained in the State in part for the purposes of inspection and rate-making carries on an inspection service in all compensation risks where the annual premium is $50.00 or more, or the annual pay roll is $5,000.00, or more. Their files on these risks contain data showing the number of boilers and the steam pressure at which they are operated. (Not the horsepower.) These are divided into boilers which have an inspection service approved by the bureau and those which have not such a service. Usually approved inspection means inspection by some boiler insurance company. The following summary sets out the information obtained from this source:

Boilers without approved inspection.....	265
Add boilers of self-insurers.....	399

The foregoing is necessarily more incomplete than the information obtained under plan (a) since only risks above a certain size are inspected by this bureau. A more detailed statement showing the above boilers by pounds pressure may be obtained from the Commission.

(c) All Insurance Companies Who Write Boiler Insurance in This State.—From this source more information as to the number of boilers in the State was obtained than from either of the other two sources, although no detailed information as to horsepower was obtainable. All figures relate to boilers of over fifteen pounds pressure and while the classes excepted by the resolution are included they appear from opinions given by some of the companies to constitute a negligible portion of the total numbers here given:

Insured:

Stationary .....	1,880
Portable .....	241
Not stated .....	552

In (a) the not insured boilers were thirty-one per cent of those insured. Therefore, for an estimate add .....	828
--	-----

The uninsured boilers above added are based upon the ratio of thirty-one per cent obtained from reports of employers. This ratio is no doubt too low since it may be assumed that employers under the act would be of a class that would tend to insure and also since those under the act who did not insure were less inclined to report to the Commission than were those who had insured their boilers.

It would, therefore, seem not at all unreasonable to conclude that there are at least 4,000 boilers in this State within the classes mentioned in the resolution of which about 2,500 are insured, leaving 1,500 not insured. These uninsured boilers are, of course, in the vast majority of cases never inspected.

II.—The information requested in the second part of the resolution is not definite and the Commission sought to obtain data along all lines that might be of interest or aid to the General Assembly in dealing with the subject. In this no attempt has been made to form an opinion as to the necessity for boiler inspection in Virginia.

Investigation shows that, including the Federal act, there are twenty-nine laws in the United States relating to steam boilers. With few exceptions, these acts provide for inspection which is, generally speaking, compulsory.

Copies of all these laws are filed and marked "D," and in addition there is filed a model bill prepared by a representative of the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers. This bill with the original letter of transmittal is marked "E."

Numerous communications relative to the necessity for boiler inspection laws have been received and the following original letters are filed and marked as indicated:

From Clifford B. Connelly, commissioner, Department of Labor and Industry, Pa.—Marked "F."

From E. Sidney Berry, counsel, The Hartford Steam Boiler Inspection and Insurance Company—Marked "G."

From the vice-president of the Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York—Marked "H."

Much literature has been from time to time forwarded to the Commission by the American Uniform Boiler Law Society which seems to be organized for the purpose of fostering the adoption of the boiler code of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. The code in question deals more with the standardization of construction than it does with inspection. Since, however, the literature deals with the broad principle of boiler supervision for the purposes of reducing accidents and damage a part of it is filed for your consideration. This Commission has not formed any opinion as to the merits of the code of this society and indeed has not attempted to go into such a technical question. The literature is, therefore, recommended only in so far as it presents reasons for some supervision of the construction and use of boilers.

The following matter is filed and marked as indicated:

"Ten Years of Boiler Standardization"—"I."

"A National System for the Inspection and Registration of Boilers"—"J."

"Uniform Specifications for Boilers"—"K."

"Editorial from Dallas News"—"L."

"Uniform Boiler Code"—"M."

"Address Before Cotton Manufacturers Association Annual Meeting, 1916"—"N."

"Uniform Boiler Laws"—"O."

The Commission has in its files other correspondence, pamphlets, bulletins and the like which are, of course, accessible to any interested person. This material would appear to be of little value in the preparation of legislation and is accordingly not discussed.

In conclusion, the Commission desires to express its appreciation of the aid and co-operation of the following:

The Insurance Department;

Ex-Senator J. E. West;

The Compensation Inspection Rating Bureau of Virginia;

Several representatives of organized labor, particularly Mr. Jas. B. Casey, formerly a representative in the legislature and now editor and manager of "The Boilermakers and Iron Builders Journal"; and to acknowledge the work of M. N. Fisher, examiner and statistician, in connection with gathering the above data and preparing this report.

Mr. C. E. Shultz, of Portsmouth;

Respectfully submitted,

THE INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION OF VIRGINIA.

C. G. KIZER, Commissioner.

The exhibits accompanying the report are filed with the Legislative Reference Bureau.

REPORT

OF THE

Special Joint Legislative Committee on Investigation of State Departments and Merger and Abolition of Offices, Boards, Commissions, Etc.

---

To the General Assembly of Virginia:

A joint resolution of the General Assembly of Virginia, passed January 23, 1922, provided that a committee of nine, five from the House of Delegates and four from the Senate, of which at least one from each body should be a member of the minority party, should be forthwith appointed by the Speaker of the House of Delegates and the President of the Senate, respectively, which said committee should investigate and report to the General Assembly what offices, boards and commissions of the State, if any, can be merged with other offices, boards and commissions, or can be safely abolished without detriment to the efficiency of any department of the State government; and whether any officers or members of boards or commissions are drawing pay from the State out of proportion to the just value of their services or not commensurate with the decrease in the cost of living or the deflation of capital.

The said joint resolution further provided that the committee should report its findings to the General Assembly on or before the tenth day of February, 1922, and should prepare and submit to the House of Delegates and the Senate, bills, and joint resolutions proposing amendments to the State Constitution, designed to carry its recommendations into effect.

Appointment of Committee

The President of the Senate named Senators W. B. Cocke, John J. Miller, Robert F. Leedy and J. M. Parsons, on the part of the Senate, and the Speaker of the House of Delegates appointed Messrs. R. L. Gordon, Jr., R. L. Jeffreys, L. F. Smith, A. C. Beatie and Marvin Smithey, on the part of the House.

Organization of the Committee

The first meeting of the committee was held in the Hall of the House of Delegates, Richmond, Va., on January 24, 1922, when formal organization was effected. At this meeting, Marvin Smithey was elected chairman of the committee, and F. C. Owen was designated clerk of the committee by the Clerk of the House of Delegates.

Time Limited

With the limited time at its disposal, the work of the committee was necessarily confined to an imperfect examination of the organization and methods of the government of the State and its political sub-divisions. In such a short time, only the most striking examples of extravagance and duplication of effort could be considered by the committee with any degree of thoroughness. Notwithstanding the limitation of time, and the magnitude of its task, the committee proceeded diligently to investigate such matters to which it could give reasonable consideration.

An Insuperable Obstacle

From the beginning of its work, the committee found itself confronted by an almost insuperable obstacle in the present State Constitution. This instrument is practically a code of laws and embraces almost every activity of the State, and has, since its proclamation, been amended in many particulars at great expense to the people.

Recommendations

The committee recommends:

1. That the Bureau of Labor and Industrial Statistics and the office of Commissioner of Labor be merged; that the Industrial Commission of Virginia, heretofore created, be continued under the name of the Labor and Industrial Commission of Virginia, and that all powers now exercised by the Bureau of Labor and all duties imposed upon it by law be transferred to and imposed upon the Labor and Industrial Commission of Virginia. This consolidation, if effected, will result in an annual saving to the State of Virginia of from $18,000.00 to $20,000.00, without detriment to the labor interests of the State.

2. That the Banking Division of the State Corporation Commission be merged with the Bureau of Insurance, and that the name of the latter be changed to Bureau of Insurance and Banking, and that all duties now performed by the Banking Division of the State Corporation Commission be transferred to and performed by the Bureau of Insurance and Banking. This recommendation, if carried into effect, will result in an annual saving to the State of from $5,000.00 to $10,000.00, with increased efficiency in the administration of the banking and insurance laws of the State.

(NOTE) Mr. Gordon unites in this recommendation of the committee, but wishes to go farther and abolish the Commissioner of Insurance and place both the Banking Department and the Insurance Department under the control and management of the State Corporation Commission, believing that the greatest economy can be effected by abolishing heads of departments and concentrating the work under efficient supervision.

3. That fees paid to the commissioners of the revenue for making transfers of land upon the land books, commonly known as "transfer fees," be abolished, and that such commissioners be required to perform these services without compensation. This recommendation, if carried into effect, will result in an annual saving to the people of the State of more than $115,000.00. Vide Annual Report of the Auditor of Public Accounts, pages 91, 92, 93 and 94.

4. That the office of assessor of lands be abolished and that his duties be transferred to the commissioners of the revenue, without additional compensation, who shall assess the lands as now provided by law, thus saving to the people of the State $231,000.00 every five years. Vide Annual Report of the Auditor of Public Accounts, pages 147-150.

5. That the State Accountant be required, at least once a year, to make a full and complete audit of the accounts of all county and city treasurers, and at the same time, to make an investigation and report upon all the financial transactions of the boards of supervisors of the counties, of the county and district school boards, and the clerks of all courts of the Commonwealth collecting State revenue—one-half of such audits to be borne by the localities affected and one-half by the State. The committee, in this connection, recommends that all public funds collected by localities be kept in depositories designated by the boards of supervisors of the counties and the councils of cities, such depositories to be required to execute bonds, with security to be approved by such boards of supervisors and councils, in a penalty double the amount of money on deposit, and to be located within the said counties and cities.

This recommendation is not strictly within the province of the committee, but it is a matter of such grave importance that they deem it proper to call it to the attention of your honorable bodies, being satisfied that it will increase both the economy and efficiency of the State and local governments.

6. That the present system of employing and compensating game wardens of the State be abolished; and that not more than twenty-five game wardens be appointed for the entire State, who shall receive such compensation as the Game Commissioner may determine, not to exceed the sum of $1,000.00 each, per annum, in addition to the fees provided by law. This recommendation, if adopted, will result in putting into the State treasury approximately $100,000.00 annually.

7. That the compensation to county and city treasurers and division superintendents of schools, commissioners of the revenue, and clerks of the courts be reduced to the amount they received prior to the increase made by the General Assembly of 1920, thus restoring the salaries of these officers to their pre-war basis. These salaries were increased in 1920 to meet the abnormally high cost of living. This recommendation, if adopted, will save to the people of the State a very large sum of money, the exact amount of which your committee has not the time to determine. It believes, however, that it will exceed one-quarter of a million dollars annually and that under the present depressed agricultural conditions it will not be unjust to the officers as their compensation will still be larger than that of the producers, who will pay these salaries.

8. That all State and county appropriations to farm demonstrators and similar agencies be discontinued. This recommendation, if adopted, will probably reduce the expenses of the State and county governments something over $100,000.00 annually.

9. That the duties of examiners of records be confined to omitted taxes of a non-fiduciary nature; that the penalty imposed on the individual for failure to report intangible property be increased from five to ten per cent, out of which penalty alone shall be paid the compensation of the examiners of records; and that the work of reporting fiduciary taxes, now performed by the examiners of records, be transferred to the county clerks and commissioners of revenue, without additional compensation to these officers. This recommendation, if adopted, will save to the State treasury approximately $50,000.00 annually.

10. That the local boards of review be abolished and their duties transferred to the clerks of the courts, the chairmen of the boards of supervisors and the county treasurers of the respective counties, without additional compensation. This recommendation, if adopted, will result in a saving to the State and localities of approximately $40,000.00 annually.

11. That the commissioners of court, appointed to examine the accounts of collections made by clerks of courts, be abolished, if the recommendation contained in Recommendation No. 5 be adopted.

12. That the salaries of the heads of all State departments, boards and commissions and their clerks, stenographers and other employes be reduced to what these salaries were prior to the increases made by the General Assembly of 1920. The committee believes that the decrease in the cost of living since these salaries were increased is sufficient to justify this recommendation.

13. That the State Forester and Department of Forestry be abolished. This department costs the State approximately $16,000.00 annually and is of practically no value to the people of the State under present conditions, as the State is in no condition to spend the large amount of money upon this subject required for any kind of efficient service.

14. We recommend that the office hours in all of the State departments be prescribed by law, fixing such hours from 9 o'clock A. M., to 5 o'clock P. M., with one hour for lunch as a maximum.

15. That the office of Register of the Land Office be abolished, and all his duties as Register of the Land Office and otherwise be transferred to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, without additional compensation. This recommendation, if adopted, will result in a saving to the State of from $3,000.00 to $5,000.00 annually.

16. That the offices of counsel to the State Corporation Commission, commerce counsel to the State Corporation Commission, and counsel to the State Tax Board be abolished, and their duties transferred to the Attorney General of the State. This recommendation, if adopted, will result in an annual saving to the State of approximately $10,000.00 and will, the committee believes, tend to increased efficiency by placing under one responsible head all the legal activities of the State.

17. That the boards of supervisors of the counties and the councils of the cities be prohibited from appropriating any part of their local revenues to the payment of salaries of division superintendents of schools.

This completes the imperfect examination that the committee has been able to make as to matters that can be reached without Constitutional amendments; but if the committee had an opportunity to go over and critically examine the various departments and the many offices, boards and commissions, which have been created, and the many special privileges which have been granted by legislation, they feel sure that many more economies could be recommended.

Recommendations Requiring Constitutional Amendments

18. That the office of Second Auditor and the office of State Treasurer be merged with the office of Auditor of Public Accounts, and that this officer be made comptroller of the State and have exclusive control of the State finances. This recommendation, if adopted, will save the salaries of two officers and will, as the committee believes, result in much greater efficiency in the management of the State's finances.

19. That, in order to avoid the holding of annual elections, the State be placed upon a bi-annual basis, corresponding in time to that of Federal elections, so that all State, municipal, county and district officers may be elected at the time of holding Federal elections, without, however, making any change in the terms of office as now prescribed by law. The annual saving to the State and its political sub-divisions, if this recommendation be adopted, will be very great. The committee estimates this saving at something like $50,000.00 a year. The benefits that will accrue by reason of the prevention of the interruptions to business consequent upon an election will be incalculable.

20. That the office of county treasurer be merged with that of sheriff, thus restoring the latter office to its former dignity; and that a law be enacted requiring the taxpayer to come forward and pay his taxes upon notice. This law will enable the sheriff, with the aid of his deputies, to perform the duties of both treasurer and sheriff, thereby saving the expenses of one office and increasing the efficiency of the service. The merger of these offices will also result in the saving of the salaries paid to a large number of deputy treasurers, and will greatly aid in law enforcement.

Division Superintendent of Schools

21. There are now one hundred division superintendents of schools, each drawing an average annual salary of $2,000.00; there are also nine supervisors, on an average salary of $3,600.00 and expenses. The total cost of these superintendents and supervisors is $234,000.00, in addition to their expenses. The committee recommends that one division superintendent for each senatorial district is sufficient, and that the nine supervisors now employed by the Department of Public Instruction are superfluous and should be abolished. This recommendation, if adopted, will save the State $156,000.00 annually, without impairing the efficiency of the public school system. The committee believes that increased efficiency on the part of teachers will more than compensate for the inspections or supervision provided by these officers; and that efficient teachers, together with the local authorities, can, under the general supervision of the division superintendent of schools for each senatorial district, perform more effectively the duties now performed by the division superintendent and the supervisors.

Bills providing amendments to and repeals of existing statutes, and joint resolutions proposing amendments to the Constitution, designed to carry the foregoing recommendations into effect, have been prepared by the committee and are herewith presented.

A Cursory Survey

While the committee has been able to make but a cursory survey of the matters entrusted to it, the foregoing recommendations are based upon careful consideration. It is apparent, however, that the specific recommendations of the committee are but a starting point upon which to base a complete investigation of the governmental economies that can be effected.

The committee has ascertained from an examination of the Code of Virginia that since the proclamation of the present Constitution, offices, boards and commissions have multiplied almost without number, and it believes that a thorough and searching investigation into this subject will reveal the fact that the State and its political sub-divisions can be saved an untold amount of money annually by a careful and discriminating re-grouping and consolidation of many such offices, boards and commissions and the abolition of others, which are of doubtful, if of any, value to the people.

Federal Encroachment

The committee finds that in a great many cases the Federal government has appropriated money for various activities, and has held out to the State and its political sub-divisions the siren promise of its aid and co-operation in these enterprises upon the condition of the appropriation by the State and such localities of large sums of money for these purposes. It seems to be the tendency of the times for the Federal government and the State and local governments to perform a multitude of duties for the individual, which, under a Democratic form of government, the individual ought to perform for himself—a tendency destructive both of individual character and responsibility and of Constitutional government. The committee is of opinion that this extension of the power and influence of the Federal government, occurring under both Democratic and Republican administrations, is subversive of the rights of the State and tends to paternalism and socialism. It is a plausible and insidious method of amending the Federal Constitution, tends to the centralization of power at Washington, and is vicious both in theory and practice. The committee perceives here a grave danger to free government and deems it its duty to call these matters to the attention of the General Assembly. Such a course, if persisted in and carried to its logical conclusion, with the acquiescence of the State, will inevitably lead to an abandonment of the rights of the State.

The Present Constitution of Virginia

Our Constitution is a code of laws. It inhibits and prohibits the people of the State and their duly elected representatives at every turn.

It is not responsive to the will of the people. Its provisions cannot be changed except through the costly and cumbersome process of amendments. It was conceived and framed apparently in distrust of the people. It provides for various State, municipal, county and district offices, with the result that the General Assembly can neither change nor abolish them. The committee believes that there should be a drastic change, not only in the organization of the various State departments, but an entire re-grouping of such departments. Other drastic changes should be made in the organization of county and city governments. This would result in fewer officeholders and greater efficiency. At all times, the structure of government and the details of its management should, as far as possible, be under the control of the people and their representatives.

Justice to Taxpayers

The people of Virginia are burdened with excessive taxation. This is due in large measure to the multiplication of offices, boards and commissions, and also to the increase of salaries of officers and their assistants. When the cost of living was mounting, such increases seemed to be just; but inasmuch as the cost of living has declined, and the prices of farm products have fallen below the cost of production, on account of lagging industries, the salaries of our officers and their clerical forces should be brought to a pre-war basis. When the present Constitution was proclaimed, the entire cost of operating the State government was approximately $3,900,000.00 annually. Today it has reached the enormous sum of $25,000,000.00, which is out of all proportion to the growth of population of the State and its industrial development. The cost of operating our local government is now approximately $75,000,000.00. Thus the total cost of operating the State and local governments is approximately $100,000,000.00.

Schools and roads take a large proportion of the State and local revenues. This committee is unqualifiedly in favor of good roads and good schools; yet it believes that the State is not receiving value at all commensurate with the heavy expenditures in these governmental activities. The prosperity of the farming industry of the State, upon which depends the prosperity of every citizen of the Commonwealth, is a matter of first consideration. The farmer is not receiving actual cost of his products. For the past two years many farmers have been compelled to borrow money with which to pay their taxes. Their condition is deplorable and should be immediately remedied by the General Assembly, so far as possible. The elimination of waste and extravagance in the expenditure of State and local funds, and the consolidation of some offices and the abolition of others, will help to solve the problem, certainly so far as the burden of excessive taxation is concerned.

Recommendation for a Constitutional Convention

Under the present Constitution, the Department of Public Instruction is a fourth co-ordinate branch of the State government, ranking in dignity with the executive, legislative and judicial. This department, as now constituted, is too far removed from the people, and within the broad privileges granted by the Constitution, it can exercise a power that can easily tend to tyranny.

The tax laws of the State are in such hopeless confusion that the progress and development of the Commonwealth is hampered by these laws and by the inhibitions of the Constitution.

This committee believes that by placing the State and local governments on a sound economic and financial basis millions of dollars of the $25,000,000.00 now yearly required for State governmental purposes can be saved and that the cities and counties can be relieved of other millions of taxes.

It is the earnest conviction of this committee that these results can only be obtained and secured by calling a Constitutional Convention and by the adoption of a new State Constitution. This Constitution should embrace the bill of rights and a simple, comprehensive scheme of fundamental organic laws for the government of the Commonwealth. To the people, through their chosen representatives, should be left the right, at proper intervals, and when changed conditions of society so require, to enact such legislation pertaining to the government of the State and its political sub-divisions as may to them seem proper. Under the present Constitution, the duration of the sessions of the General Assembly is limited to sixty days, a restriction which results in hasty and ill-considered legislation, not conducive to the best interests of the people.

In the short time at its disposal, the committee has been confronted at every stage of its proceedings by some Constitutional provision. Many amendments to the present Constitution have already been adopted. A partial revision of the Code of Virginia has been made at an expense to the people of the State of over $100,000.00. Resolutions looking to other amendments are now pending in the General Assembly. It can readily be seen that the cost of a Constitutional Convention will be no more than the expense of future amendments, and that the last estate of the people, so far as their Constitution is concerned, will be worse than the first.

The committee, therefore, urgently recommends, as the only solution for the present uneconomic and unbusinesslike administration of the affairs of the State and local governments, that an act be passed by the present General Assembly submitting to the qualified voters of the State on Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1922, the question whether or not a Constitutional Convention shall be called, such act to provide that the Constitutional Convention shall be called for business and economic reasons and that no change in the suffrage laws of the State shall be made, and further, to provide that no Constitution framed by such convention shall be effective unless ratified by the present electorate.

A bill submitting this question to the people has been introduced by the committee both in the House of Delegates and the Senate, and it is the earnest hope of the committee that this bill will be promptly reported from the committees now considering it to the respective Houses for discussion and passage.

Conclusion

From the foregoing it will be seen that the committee has covered a great deal of ground in a short time. It introduced in the House of Delegates and secured the passage of a joint resolution extending the time beyond February 10, 1922, within which it should investigate and report. The resolution also provided for an enlargement of the powers and duties of the committee in order to enable it to visit the various educational, eleemosynary and correctional institutions of the State to ascertain whether or not economies may be effected in their administration. Authentic information was placed at the disposal of the committee, leading it to believe that many economies can be effected and that much waste and extravagance can be eliminated. It was also provided in the joint resolution that the committee shall sit in the interim and shall report its further findings to the General Assembly of 1924, but that the members of the committee shall serve without compensation. The joint resolution was promptly reported to the Senate, but has not been acted upon by that body.

To the General Assembly of Virginia:

As members of the special joint legislative committee, appointed on the 23rd day of January, 1922, we beg leave to report that we concur in the findings of the majority report as to items two, four, five, seven, ten, eleven and fifteen.

Department of Labor

We do not deem it wise to merge the Department of Labor with the Industrial Commission even though it is probable that such consolidation would save money actually spent by the State government. We feel that the Department of Labor has served a very useful purpose and that the consolidated department might not serve the purpose served by the Commissioner of Labor. The Department of Labor has been very successful in handling matters of grave importance to the State, and we believe that it is proper to continue this office which has so successfully handled the many matters presented to it. Although the abolition or consolidation of the department with the Industrial Commission might save money to the State government, however, we feel that it is a business proposition to continue the office as it will save money to the State at large, which, in the last analysis, should be the determining factor in the conduct of any office of the State.

Transfer Fees

We do not join in the report of the majority in reference to fees of commissioners of the revenue for transferring lands on the land book. There are at present several bills before the General Assembly having for their purpose the regulation and control of all fee-offices in the State, and it does not seem wise that this committee trespass on the duties of committees that have reported on this matter at great length. It has been suggested that in case the fee system were abolished it might be wise to retain the transfer charge, and, instead of passing it to the Commissioner of Revenue that it be turned over to the Commonwealth for State purposes.

Game Wardens

We agree with the general purpose of Item Six of the majority report, referring to game wardens. However, we are not prepared to report what reduction there should be in the number of game wardens. In some sections of the State this department has performed a very important duty well and its work is well worth the money expended on it. It is true that the number of game wardens might easily be reduced and the efficiency of the department increased.

Officers' Salaries

We concur in the general provisions of Item Seven of the majority report in reference to salaries of county officers, but we again wish to call attention to the fact that there are at present a number of fee-bills before the General Assembly which are based on the report of the commission appointed for that purpose at the session of 1920. We do not feel that it is proper for us to trespass on the duties and powers of that commission.

We concur with the majority report that in many instances salaries should be placed on the basis that they stood prior to the amendment of the 1920 session of the General Assembly. The committee has not gone into this subject in detail, and is therefore not advised as to details.

Farm Demonstrations, Etc.

We do not concur in the report of the majority referred to as item eight in regard to farm demonstrators, etc. In many sections of the Commonwealth of Virginia these officers are carrying on a very important work and are accomplishing a great deal. We believe that in most cases the money spent for this purpose is for the best interest of the State and wisely spent. We cannot agree that all should be abolished, even though it might be admitted that many are not worth the money paid them.

Examiners of Records

We agree with the majority report that examiners of records should be continued. The duties of the examiner of records might be divided into two classes: First, the listing of omitted taxes, and, second, the listing of fiduciary accounts. The majority report recommends that the examiner of records retain and perform the first duty, but that the second duty be transferred to some other officer. We can see no good reason for this division of duties. We recommend that the present law be amended by the substitution of a twelve and one-half per cent penalty in lieu of the five per cent penalty for failure to list property for taxation. It has been shown to the committee that the penalty of five per cent pays about one-half of the expenses of the collection of omitted taxes and the fiduciary accounts. We believe that by increasing the penalty from five to twelve and one-half per cent the number of tax-dodgers will be reduced through fear of the high penalty and that sufficient amounts will be collected out of the penalty alone to pay the entire costs and salaries of all examiners of record.

State Officers

We concur in the principle contained in item twelve of the majority report in reference to salaries of State officials. However, we have not gone into the subject in such detail as would warrant us to make any recommendations on this subject.

We were unable to be present at the hearings concerning the State Forester, and for that reason do not concur in the majority report. The same is true in regard to the report concerning the office hours of State officials.

From the investigation and the evidence produced, we cannot say that a saving could be had by the abolition of counsel for the various departments of the State government. We feel that each department requires the services of a specialist in that branch. We are inclined to believe that although a small amount could probably be saved to the State, yet the efficiency of the department might be effaced.

Constitutional Offices

The committee has spent much time investigating offices which are created by the Constitution and which cannot be moved, consolidated or abolished save by an amendment to the Constitution. In the short time allotted the committee we are not in a position to recommend any changes on this subject. The committee could not recommend amendments to the Constitution unless it had investigated carefully and at great length and in detail. We do not believe that the committee has had sufficient time to consider these matters and therefore cannot join the majority in its report recommending the wholesale reorganization of departments created by the Constitution.

Constitutional Convention

The committee has heard a great deal of evidence which indicates that the Constitution should be amended in many respects. It is clear that the present Constitution is wholly unsatisfactory in many respects, but we are not satisfied that the State is in a condition to redraft and frame a Constitution at this time. The redrafting of the fundamental law of the State should be well considered and approached with great care. The question of cost should be carefully considered. Normal times, not abnormal times, should be chosen to approach such subjects. We feel that there are many other considerations which enter into the question.

Conclusion

In many parts of the State local authorities have placed on the people heavy burdens which are especially burdensome at this time of general depression, but we believe that the State is receiving fair returns for the money it spends. The cost of carrying the business of the State, is in our opinion, as low as any State in the Union.

Respectfully submitted,

L. F. SMITH,
R. L. JEFFREYS.

MINORITY REPORT No. 2

To the General Assembly of Virginia:

As a member of the special joint legislative committee, appointed on the 23rd day of January, 1922, I beg leave to say that duties on other committees and attendance upon the Senate has prevented my attendance upon this committee, and I have, therefore, been unable to be present with the committee more than three times during all of its sessions, and then only for a limited period. I am, therefore, not in possession of first-hand data upon which the majority report of the committee is founded, and am unable to pass upon many of the recommendations and proposals made therein, nor indeed do I pretend to so pass. I wish to say, however, that that part of the report which protests against the insidious encroachment upon the rights of the State, and the persistent influence of its power by the Federal government has my very hearty approval.

I am not in position to join in the recommendation that a Constitutional Convention be called at any near future date, and I have great reason to fear that the temper of the Commonwealth is not in such condition that would render it wise to risk a Constitutional Convention within any near future date, and that it might be better to go on amending the present Code, known as our Constitution of 1902. Without particularizing, and upon their face, owing probably to my lack of information on the points involved, it might be well to say that there are many recommendations and propositions within the said majority report that I cannot endorse.

I greatly and sincerely regret that duties of greater importance have rendered it impossible for me to serve constantly and regularly with this committee; and I cannot refrain from taking advantage of this opportunity to commend the other members of the committee for their great labor and conscientious attention to the duties imposed upon them by the General Assembly in selecting them for such important service, and owing to knowledge already in possession of this committee, I am of opinion that it should be continued in the interim.

Respectfully submitted,

ROBERT F. LEEDY.

OF THE

Committee on Currency and Commerce

Regarding the Bills on Pilotage

To the House of Delegates:

Your Committee on Currency and Commerce has this day reported the bills known as the Page and Brown-Ewell bill regarding pilotage, with the recommendation that they do not pass, and in view of the State-wide importance and prominence of the matter they feel that they should give the reasons for their action in writing. All questions involved in these bills were referred to a sub-committee, which enlisted the expert service of the State Accountant, and their report to the full committee is as follows:

To the chairmen and members of the Committee on Currency and Commerce:

The undersigned sub-committee appointed to report on the House bill known as pilotage bill, begs leave to report as follows:

First: We find, after due consideration, based on the best information obtainable, that the pilotage rates at the Port of Hampton Roads compare favorably with the rates in effect at other ports, and as compared with the port of New York the rates at Hampton Roads appear to be less than those of New York, in view of the reduced bunker coal rate given by the Hampton Roads Association. We have failed to find any evidence that any shipping has been diverted from the Port of Hampton Roads, while on the contrary, we have abundant evidence from shippers that this is not the case. We, therefore, recommend that the rates be not disturbed.

Second: In connection with the proposed change in the method of appointment of Commissioners, we find that this question seems to be more a political one than otherwise; that to change the appointment, as proposed in the Page bill, would be to put the matter more into politics than it is at present. We, therefore, recommend that the Commissioners be appointed as now provided.

Third: In view of the fact that there is now pending in the House of Delegates a bill to create the Hampton Roads Port Commission, section two of which bill so nearly covers the present needs or requirements for legislation in regard to pilotage, in our opinion, we see no necessity for the provisions of the Page bill and recommend that it do not pass.

In connection with the proposed increase in the number of pilots provided for in the Page bill, we are of the opinion that this should not be done.

The fact that during the great World War the port was tested and taxed to its capacity, during which time there seemed to be no undue scarcity of pilots, together with the probability of such increase resulting in the impairment of the service, leads to this conclusion.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

J. R. HORSLEY,
J. K. McCOTTER,
Sub-Committee.

Which report is adopted and approved by your committee.

The bills were fully considered by your committee and unfavorably reported for the reasons stated in the report of the sub-committee above quoted, and for the further reasons that to admit Federal licensed pilots who have not had the training required of Virginia apprentices, would, in the opinion of your committee, seriously injure the present satisfactory status and should not be done. And for the still further reason that the method of appointing Virginia apprentices is that employed in most of the great ports of the world and to adopt the changes suggested in these bills would be harmful to the best interests of the port.

Your committee further reports that the Hampton Roads Port Commission recommended that the Board of Pilot Commissioners be required to report annually to the Governor, upon the equipment, personnel and efficiency of the pilots as well as upon the question of pilotage rates as compared with other ports. This recommendation of the Hampton Roads Port Commission is embodied in House Bill 174 reported from this committee, and your committee believes that this bill covers all questions which should be passed upon at this session of the General Assembly, and until official information as provided in that bill is received from the Board of Pilot Commissioners.

Your committee, therefore, recommends that these bills, reported adversely, should not pass.

To the General Assembly of Virginia:

Feeling that my duty, as Governor of the Commonwealth, demands that I appear before your body and give to you my views on a most important matter of very vital concern to the State and her people, I trust I may be pardoned for this intrusion upon your time, now so fully occupied.

In justice to myself and in order to correct some rather inconsiderate and inaccurate statements that have been made relative to my position on the road bond issue during the campaign, I trust I may be pardoned for something of the personal in what I shall say.

In the campaign, I, at no time, expressed any view as to a road bond issue, further than that under the then existing conditions I did not feel that I would be justified in recommending to the General Assembly a bond issue. I did not express my views as to the wisdom or unwisdom of a road bond issue under normal conditions, and, although often importuned so to do, I positively refused to state that I would veto such an issue, if passed by the General Assembly. I reserved to myself the privilege of passing on the bond issue under the conditions as they might exist at the time it became necessary for me to act. I resolved when I became a candidate in the primary, that I would not, in any way, make any promises or pledges that would deny me absolute freedom of action, when I became Governor, to use my best judgment on each and every occasion when it was demanded. I made no pledges to either support or veto any particular measure.

To make my position perfectly clear, I can do no better than to refer to my keynote Clintwood speech, made on September 27, 1921, and a copy of which was largely circulated over the State. In that speech I had the following to say:

"I feel, and have so expressed myself through the months, that our Highway Commissioner has probably more power than any one man should have, and I have and do now advocate a change in our highway laws, and a reconstruction of our Highway Department, so as to guarantee, as far as possible, a dollar's worth of roads for a dollar's worth of money. Just what changes should be made, I am not able to say at this time, but this question, at my instigation, is being investigated by experts along that line. All of the various highway laws of the Union are being studied and digested, and an endeavor will be made to amend our laws, after consultation with business and practical men, so as to give to us the best system of any State in the Union, and I pledge myself and the Democratic party to an honest and active endeavor to perfect our highway laws.

"The question of a bond issue may or may not be before the next General Assembly, but I feel that under present existing conditions I could not recommend a bond issue; and my idea is that we should first perfect our highway laws, so as to insure to the public a safe and well guarded expenditure of the road funds, and THAT THEN FAIR AND JUST METHODS FOR THE FURNISHING OF THE NECESSARY FUNDS FOR A REASONABLE, ECONOMIC AND RAPID ROAD CONSTRUCTION WILL BE FOUND."

Feeling secure in the thought that I was free to meet the road bond issue, under conditions as they now present themselves to me, I gave briefly in Norfolk my views on the question, and now, in order that there will be no misunderstanding as to my views, I desire to give my reasons for the conclusions that I have reached.

Being so thoroughly convinced that the times in which we now live demand that Virginia have a modern highway system and that it should be fully recognized that the day of impassable and badly constructed roads ought no longer to be tolerated. The quickness of our State growth along all lines is to be greatly measured by the speed which we develop in our highway construction work.

I feel that it is my duty, as Governor of Virginia, in a matter of such vital importance to the people as our highway development, to present my honest convictions relative to the same, with no other desire than to place these views before you for your full and fair consideration, rather than to remain silent at such a crucial period of our State development.

My conclusion in this matter has been reached after most deliberate consideration and with a keen sense of my duty to the people of the State and my sincere desire to serve, and this decision was given to the public, not at the request of any one and without the knowledge of any one that it would be given, but only as a result of my determination that it was my duty so to do.

In my speeches and statements I pledged to the people of Virginia an earnest effort to reorganize our Highway Department under a system of laws more perfect than those now in existence. I shall leave it to the members of the General Assembly and the people of Virginia to say whether or not my efforts in that direction have been sincere, open and frank. As a result of the effort of those interested in the change of the laws relative to our highway organization, it seems certain that a new bill will be made by the General Assembly to accomplish the desired result, and I rely upon this presumption.

This law has been carefully prepared, after mature deliberation and study on the part of those interested, and I feel we have exhausted the ability of the Executive and legislative bodies of the Commonwealth in making it as nearly perfect as our combined talents can suggest. Therefore, I am led to the conclusion that we can safely go on the theory that this department, organized under the new law and directed by the character of men I hope to secure for our Highway Commission, and who will direct our highway affairs, that our funds will be economically, honestly and efficiently expended, with a due regard to the rights of all sections of the Commonwealth.

Bearing this thought in mind, that of itself relieves, in my judgment, the greatest objection to the authorization of a bond issue at this time and gives freedom of action that has not previously existed since the organization of the same.

Our Highway Department being organized along lines that seem to be satisfactory, then we should next consider what other changed conditions have presented themselves and I conceived them to be as follows:

1. Information leads to the conclusion, and the bill authorizing the bond issue requires, that an interest rate of not over four and one-half per cent will be paid, with the possibility of securing the funds at a less rate. This being quite in contrast to the six per cent interest rate that prevailed a few months back.

2. Labor is now plentiful, can be secured at a most reasonable charge and, in addition, employment can be given to many who are now in idleness and yet who are honestly seeking employment. The time for a State to render help to its citizens is in the hour of distress. Labor being assured at a reasonable price, means economical construction cost. The farmers and the manufacturers can easily spare from their service help for highway work, without serious inconvenience. If the matter is delayed until times are more prosperous, the demand for labor greater, the wages necessarily will be higher. The funds expended in payment of labor and in the cost of material, will be immediately passed back to the pockets of the people in buying the necessities of life and in paying the labor bills in the preparation of the material that will have to be purchased in the make up of the highways.

3. Materials, that is such as are used in the construction of highways, is now purchasable on a reasonable basis. If there should be any decline in prices, the benefits of such reductions would be had, as the funds derived from the bond issue will not be available for some time.

4. My recommendations are based on the presumption that a gasoline tax of one cent per gallon will be approved by the General Assembly. This tax, it is estimated, will yield a revenue of approximately $800,000.00 per annum, and is certainly sufficient to take care of the sinking fund and interest charges on a bond issue of $12,000,000, thus insuring the people of the State that there WILL NOT be any increased property tax as a result of this bond issue. This gasoline tax is paid by those who use the automobiles, and as a consequence impair the highways. It does not fall on the general taxpayers of the State, and is more than repaid to the automobile owners, who do pay it, by the saving in gasoline bills, wear and tear on tires and machines, to say nothing of the comfort of the good roads, the increased loads that can be handled and the general prosperity that will be added to the State.

This tax will be paid, as near as it can be estimated, sixty per cent by the people who live in cities (I might mention that the cities receive none of the funds back for the roads or streets in their corporate limits), three per cent is paid by tourists who come into the State (this amount will increase yearly as the good roads are developed); leaving thirty-seven per cent to be paid by the towns and country.

5. The bill proposing the bond issue is not mandatory, but permissive, leaving it in the discretion of the Governor, Attorney-General and Treasurer (all three officials being elected by the people) to issue same, if, in their judgment, conditions make it expedient that such bonds be issued. This provision throws around the issue another safeguard, for certainly those charged with this high duty to perform, will not give their approval of the bond issue, until they feel convinced that our new highway organization would properly function; that our organization is fully prepared to expend the money without waste or extravagance and to construct the roads on the basis that a dollar's worth of value will be had for a dollar of expenditure.

In order to give this matter intelligent thought, I give you the latest financial statement relative to our road funds, which is as follows:

It will be noted that there is included in the funds above available an item of one-third of the automobile tax for 1922 (estimated) of $700,000. My information is that under the new highway law, taking over the entire State highway system for maintenance by the State, that this will depreciate this amount by $350,000, and, therefore, $350,000 should be deducted from the amount named above as available for actual construction purposes during 1922.

I should also call attention to the fact that in the funds available for actual construction work set forth above on the State highway system, is included $1,157,078.43, funds advanced and to be advanced under contracts made under the Robertson act allowing the counties to loan funds to the State and this sum will have to be repaid, either in a lump sum or else at intervals through the years.

I would further call attention to the fact that the item of $1,644,314.21, the estimated amount of ten-cent tax, is not, under the law, available until December 20th of each year.

If deduction is made as above of $350,000 on the maintenance charge, and $1,157,078.43 from the total funds available of $5,786,- 607.83, it will leave new funds available for construction work for 1922 amounting to $4,279,529.40.

It is proper to call attention to the fact that there will also be available for maintenance purposes the sum of $1,650,000, and for county aid fund $700,000.

FUNDS AVAILABLE FOR ROAD CONSTRUCTION AND ADMINISTRATION FOR 1923.

Convict labor, administration and general appropriations.....	$ 867,350 00
1 mill tax (not collectable until December 20, 1923).....	1,700,000 00
Federal aid, estimated .....	1,500,000 00
	$4,067,350 00

It will be noticed that no credit has been allowed for construction purposes out of the automobile tax, because under the new highway law, which takes over the entire Highway System for maintenance at the expense of the State, the entire automobile tax of $2,100,000 will be consumed, and the law now provides for this entire sum to be used for maintenance purposes.

In addition to the amount available for road construction and administration as set forth above, there will be the county aid fund of $700,000, or such an amount as the legislature may appropriate.

May I be permitted to say that nothing would give me greater happiness and joy then to be successful in helping to build up a real highway system for this State and to make Virginia progressive and forward looking. Every ounce of my strength will be used towards securing the proper and just handling of these funds, if it becomes advisable to issue the bonds. I long for Virginia to re-take her place of leadership among the States of the Union; to see her territory developed; her highways swarming with industry and her people contented and happy. I am a co-laborer of yours in the development of Virginia.

I have presented to you my honest convictions relative to the proposed authority to issue bonds, with no thought of dictating, but merely for your consideration. I have long since learned that men honestly differ as to policies and I endeavor never to criticize those who differ with me, feeling that it is but just to give to every man the same right to his individual thought that I claim for myself.

If, in the judgment of this body, it is regarded not wise to pass the road bond bill now pending before the General Assembly, please bear in mind that it shall in no way weaken my ardor to serve and that every endeavor will be made to carry out your wishes.

In a general way, your duties are, of course, to the entire State, but necessarily, your minds are centered to some degree, upon your localities, while my position, as Governor of the entire people, give me, as my chief concern, the interest of the entire State. We must not let the fact that some section or sections, county or counties, as a result of their fortunate geographical locations, are having an early road development, lead us to forget that it is absolutely essential for State growth to see to it that our development does not stop short of a complete highway system, reaching to a reasonable degree, every section of the Commonwealth.

I here state that I have not in mind the name of any man who will be selected on the Highway Commission, or of any one who will be named as chairman thereof. I am absolutely open for any suggestions as to those most capable to serve and those selected for this important work will be selected only on the basis of their presumed merit and capacity to serve. No promise of any kind has been made by me relative to appointments on this commission.

Gentlemen, as I see it, the high and responsible positions which we have been honored with, carry with them the idea that we are capable of the exercise of discretion and judgment and if, in the sincere exercise of that discretion and judgment, we are led to believe that under changed laws and changed conditions, now warrant the authorization of a bond issue for the rapid construction of our roads, then we should exercise that discretion and judgment, even though it may differ from our previous views formed under different conditions, feeling confident in the fact that our constituents will approve this action when they recognize and become acquainted with the conditions under which we have acted. If this view, just above stated be not correct, then the State would be deprived of our best judgment. None of us can follow a safer guide than to do that which our judgment dictates to be the right.

The questions now before you are:

1. Whether we desire roads to meet the demands of the times.
2. If so, whether they shall be built quickly or slowly. This is the issue which rests with you.

In conclusion, I want to make it clear that my approval of the passage of the proposed authority to issue bonds, is based on the assumption that both the highway reorganization bill and the gasoline tax bill will be enacted into law, otherwise I do not favor passage of the bill.

I feel that my duty has been discharged in making these suggestions and I hope they may help you in arriving at a wise conclusion.
